Threats to Retaliate In Far East

By FREDERICK KUH,
British United Press, Exclusive Cable to Edmonton Bulletin

LONDON, May 27.—Japan stirred up grave threats of retaliation in the Far East today against the decision of Great Britain and France to pool their armed strength with Soviet Russia in completing the European security front.

On the surface, neither the Japanese nor their moral allies, Germany and Italy, were disturbed by the historic change of British policy toward Moscow, but indirectly the sudden flare up of international controversy in China waters indicated the tremendous implications of this week's developments in Europe's diplomatic conflict.

Today's developments included:

1—After a conference of defense minister, Britain invited Soviet War Commissar Klementi Voroshilov to attend British army manoeuvres in September. The unprecedented visit will be followed by a visit to Russia by British War Minister Leslie Hore-Belisha, thus completing British-French-Soviet general staff co-operation.

2—Hiroshi Oshima, ambassador to Berlin, and Toshio Shiratori, ambassador to Rome, both refused to advise the Nazi and Fascist governments that Japan had turned down participation in the military alliance and threatened to resign—creating strong possibility of a general foreign ministry shakeup.

3—Great Britain considered resorting to economic reprisals against Japan or establishing a British-French warship patrol off the China coast if it proves neces-

ACTION C.C.F. EXECUTIVE IS TERMED UNFAIR

Expulsion Of Calgary Members Brings Statement From Official

Taking the stand that recent actions of the C.C.F. provincial executive are entirely unconstitutional and the expulsion of Calgary members of the party was unjustified, C. H. Fletcher, president of the Central Council of C.C.F. Clubs in Calgary, has issued a statement regarding the dissension which has followed the action of the executive.

His statement follows:

Regretting that internal differences of the C.C.F. are being aired in the daily press and over the radio, I am nevertheless compelled, on account of the confusion that has been aroused in the minds of the people, to make another public statement in order to clarify the situation.

AN UNDERSTANDING

The first thing to make clear is that there was an understanding between E. J. Garland and E. E.

Doubly Honored

HON. JAMES A. MacKINNON
Minister Without Portfolio.

Double honor came to Hon. James A. MacKinnon, member for Edmonton West, when, as Alberta's representative in the Federal cabinet, he was invited to lunch with Their Majesties King George VI and Queen Elizabeth on board the Royal train en route from Medicine Hat to Calgary. Hon. Mr. MacKinnon was the sole guest on that occasion, and today, this time with Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King and 12 other guests, he is again lunching with Their Majesties in the Royal Suite at Banff Springs hotel.

OIL PIPELINE TO COAST IS NORTH PLAN

U.S. Interests Purchase Holdings in the Pouce Coupe Field

GRANDE PRAIRIE, May 27.—An oil deal has just been completed whereby the Pouce Coupe field, comprising the holdings of F. I. Batchelor, Edmonton, the Empire Crude Oil Co. Ltd., Calgary, and a local company, the Guardian Oil Co. Ltd., have all been taken over by American interests who have also filed on an additional 175,000 acres.

The program, it is understood, provides for drilling a number of wells and also a pipeline to the coast, in all probability through the Monkman Pass, which has an easy grade. It is also understood that the Guardian Oil Co. have insured northern farmers in their agreement a continuous supply of cheap fuel as well as safeguarding returns to original shareholders.

A few months ago a group of farmers in the Grande Prairie district organized for the purpose of drilling a well in the Pouce Coupe field, the object being to get cheaper fuel for farm operations to offset the high freight rates on commodities in and out of the Peace River country. The project was looked on as part of farm development.

In September last the new organization took over equipment and some seven thousand acres of leases from the Empire Crude Oil Co. and a well was drilled to a depth of 2,500 feet. Well and holdings have been turned over to the new organization.

Reception For MacKinnon To Be Held Monday

Hon. James A. MacKinnon, M.P. for West Edmonton and minister without portfolio, will be honored at a public reception in the Macdonald hotel, Monday between 5 and 6 p.m. The reception is being planned to testify to the regard in which Mr. MacKinnon is held in this city and in recognition of his work at Ottawa.

Originally planned by the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce and the Alberta and North West Chamber of Mines, the reception is also being participated in by service club members, civic officials and members of various political parties.

The reception, said John Blue, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce, is to be non-political in nature and there will be no speeches.

Formality Discarded On Banff Regal Visit

REAL WESTERN WELCOME FOR ROYAL COUPLE

By A. E. FULFORD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CALGARY, May 27—Calgary, its cowboy, Indian and farmer friends joining wholeheartedly, whooped up a western welcome to King George and Queen Elizabeth Friday and then cheered them on their way to Banff National Park, high in the Canadian Rockies.

Their Majesties, winning affection everywhere they went, saw Calgary in its happiest mood. The weather was ideal. A bright sun blessed the visitors. The crowds were gay, and Their Majesties joined in the happy spirit.

From the prairie lands and the rolling foothills, from hamlet, village and town the folk came to Medicine Hat and Calgary to cheer loyally and see Their King and Queen. After a 20-minute stop in the morning at Medicine Hat, the Royal train rolled to Calgary for a two hour visit and then, with eventide falling, sped westward to the Rockies.

At Medicine Hat school children from surrounding towns and from across the international boundary joined pioneers over 70 years of age and just the ordinary plain folk in greeting the Royal couple. It was Medicine Hat's "biggest celebration."

BANFF, May 27.—King George and Queen Elizabeth went for a stroll this morning to start off a day in which they will wander and rest as their fancy chooses. The day broke bright and clear with the sun shining and Their Majesties enjoyed the exhilarating atmosphere of the towering mountains.

BANFF SPRINGS HOTEL, Alta., May 27.—The King and Queen arose this morning with an open mind as to how they should spend the day. Members of their party expected the King would motor part way up one of the mountains which range around the hotel and continue with a walk in the high altitudes.

Their Majesties decline to map out their program ahead of time. They have been living to a schedule for 10 days and wish to get away from it. They had a walk together around the hotel last night and retired early after dinner in which buffalo steak was served.

ENTHUSIASTIC FISHERMAN

The Earl of Eldon is the enthusiastic fisherman of the Royal party. Soon after the Royal tran pulled in late yesterday he went trout fishing with Captain Michael Adeane and were successful in catching three fish which they had for breakfast. They were planning to leave on a more extended fishing trip early today.

"We shall leave at five o'clock," Lord Eldon said last night. "It is delightful here. Even with so wonderful a train as the Royal train is, we all welcome these two days on land."

With golf, tennis, fishing, boating, hiking, riding on the bridle trails, motoring and swimming, the guests have a variety of recreation and Their Majesties are expected to try several of them during their stay.

While the hotel has been opened early especially for the Royal Visitors, the golf course is green and the air quite balmy. Most of the mountain peaks around are streaked with snow.

COUNCIL DEBATES NAMES TO RECALL VISIT OF ROYALTY

City council will hold a special meeting Monday at 5 p.m. to consider a by-law to commemorate the visit of Their Majesties by renaming streets and parks.

The committee named to make recommendations proposes that Portage avenue and Kingsway, diagonal thoroughfares cutting the Hudson's Bay reserve, have their names exchanged. Portage avenue, down which the Royal couple will be driven, will take the name of Kingsway.

Queen Mother Showing Rapid Recovery Now

LONDON, May 27.—Queen Mary, who suffered eye injury and bruises in an automobile accident last Tuesday, has so far improved that no further medical bulletins will be issued until Monday, it was announced today.

The Queen Mother observed her 72nd birthday yesterday, remaining in her flower-filled apartment at Marlborough House. She was forced by her injuries to forego the usual family birthday party that annually marks the day.

Alberta Recognized Real Battleground Monetary Reform

The Social Credit Secretariat of Great Britain entertained the Hon. N. E. Tanner and Mrs. Tanner at an official dinner held in the Hyde Park hotel, London, on May 3 and attended by a representative gathering of Social Crediters. The Earl of Tankerville performed the honors of chairman. In responding, Mr. Tanner dealt with the progress made and difficulties encountered by the Alberta Social Credit Government in its endeavors to introduce economic and monetary reform. Major C. H. Douglas spoke also—but the text of his speech is not yet available.

That Alberta is the real battle-ground today for those forces of progress which are endeavoring to strike from the people of Canada and other parts of the British Empire the shackles of a financial dictatorship, was the point made by the Earl of Tankerville in his address to a gathering of prominent Britishers who attended the luncheon tendered to Hon. N. E. Tanner, Alberta minister of lands and mines, and Mrs. Tanner on their recent visit to London.

"It is with the greatest pleasure that we welcome as our guests of honor this evening the Hon. Mr. Tanner, Minister for Lands and Mines in the Government of Alberta, and Mrs. Tanner," said Lord Tankerville in his opening remarks.

"As no doubt you already know, Mr. Tanner is in England to conduct certain important negotiations on behalf of his Government; but whatever these negotiations or their immediate outcome may be, they have at any rate already had one happy result in that they have brought Mr. and Mrs. Tanner to London, and thus are indirectly responsible for giving us this very pleasant opportunity of meeting some of those from Alberta who are playing so important a part in the battle for the realization of Social Credit.

AN IMPORTANT BATTLE

R. J. MANION AGAINST RAIL UNIFICATION

But Conservative Majority In Senate Votes For Merger Plan

OTTAWA, May 27.—Conservative Leader R. J. Manion reaffirmed his opposition to unification of railways in the House of Commons yesterday as the Conservative majority in the senate endorsed a report favoring unification.

Speaking in support of a government bill to compensate railway employees displaced or demoted as a result of co-operative economies between the two railway systems, Dr. Manion declared unification impossible and co-operation the only constructive policy. While the upper house followed Conservative Leader Arthur Meighen in voting for unification, Dr. Manion said continued talk about unification only de-

Britain to Start On Mass Production Of Fastest Bombers

By J. F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 27—Great Britain is to start mass production of the world's fastest twin-engined bomber, the Bristol Beaufort, with a top speed of higher than 310 miles an hour.

Every month sees a steady stream of warplanes delivered to the Royal Air Force, ranging from the Giant Bomber Wellington which can carry two tons of bombs a distance of 3,240 miles, to the single-seater Spitfire with a top speed of 350 miles and mounting eight machine guns.

The Beaufort is a new development still on the secret list and the air ministry declines to give its performance figures. But this much is known—it is the fastest twin-engined bomber in service in any country and is designed as a bomber, torpedo bomber or long-range reconnaissance plane.

It carries a crew of four, has a mechanical gun turret amidships and mounts other guns forward. Its speed is in excess of 300 miles an hour—perhaps considerably in excess.

Alex. Kyle Wins British Amateur Golf Championship

HOYLAKE, England, May 27.—Alex. Kyle, the Scottish Walker Cup star, today won the British amateur golf championship with a 2 and 1 victory over Tony Duncan, Welsh army officer.

Kyle, a cloth designer, succeeds Charley Yates, of Atlanta, Ga., eliminated in the early rounds by Dick Chapman, Connecticut Yankee. Chapman fell before Duncan in the quarter-finals yesterday.

Their Majesties Take Earned Rest in Rockies

In a week and a half, Their Majesties have endeared themselves to Canadians in all the cities which they have visited. At Calgary Friday they declared they were delighted with the frontier style reception accorded them in Calgary, and won the hearts of thousands of Indians who were led by their medicine man in wild cheering. Today the monarchs are holidaying high in the Rockies at Banff.

ITALY SEIZES GOLD PLATE OF EX-KING ZOG

ROME, May 27. — Nearly 50 pounds of gold dinner plates emblazoned with the arms of the Albanian royal house were seized last night by Italian authorities at the Greek-Albanian frontier, a despatch from Tirana said. The plates were hidden in milk cans which an Albanian—believed to be an agent of exiled King Zog—was attempting to take across the border. The man fled into Greece.

KING VOICES APPRECIATION TO CALGARY

CALGARY, May 27.—A telegram of appreciation of the welcome extended by Calgary was voiced by King George in a telegram from Banff, Alta., to Mayor Andrew Davison of Calgary last night.

CHARLES MAYO, NOTED MEDIC, DIES FRIDAY

Famous Physician Succumbs To Pneumonia Attack

CHICAGO, May 27—Dr. Charles H. Mayo, famous surgeon who teamed with his brother in developing the internationally known medical clinic in Rochester, Minn., died of pneumonia Friday at Mercy hospital.

The 73-year-old doctor saved the lives of patients from all sections of North America. At the bedside, when death came, were his wife, his son, Dr. Charles W. Mayo, and three daughters.

Dr. William J. Mayo, 77, who worked with Dr. Charles in building the renowned "Mayo Brothers" institution, was at his home in Rochester, recovering from a recent operation.

NEARLY ALWAYS FATAL

Dr. Charles W. Mayo announced his father's death was caused by "lobar pneumonia, type No. 3, a rare type nearly always fatal."

Dr. Charles and Dr. William transformed a single, small town infirmary into a huge establishment embracing six large hospitals and skyscraper office buildings and laboratories. They earned honors at home and abroad. But Charles once stated:

REMOVES 700 CATARACTS

He performed thousands of operations.

He removed 700 cataracts from eyes. He was recognized generally as the originator of modern goitre surgery. He was a pioneer in surgical treatment of the nervous system.

Charles, who was born in Rochester July 19, 1865, was graduated by the Chicago Medical College in 1888. The brothers inherited the general practice of their father and his interest in St. Mary's hospital. They organized the clinic formally in 1912. The success of their surgery attracted wide attention.

Frequently, poor patients were given a "paid in full" receipt and a cheque, too, to enable them to start anew. Dr. Charles explained:

"We make it up on the other side."

Dr. Charles served as president of American Medical Association in 1916 and as head of the American College of Surgeons in 1924.

BOUQUET OF ROSES

Prime Minister Mackenzie King, stepping quickly from the Royal train as it drew to a stop in the station, presented Mayor Andrew Davison and Mrs. Davison and Brig.-General G. R. Pearkes, V.C., to Their Majesties. Mrs. Davison presented a bouquet of roses to Her Majesty.

The official civic welcome was extended by Mayor Davison at ceremonies in the city hall, where 43 persons were presented to Their Majesties. The city hall chamber, with purple and gold canopy, was brightly lined with flowers.

CROWDS CHEER

Along the whole of the eight-mile procession route traversed by Their Majesties crowds cheered and shouted. Their first hint of the arrival of the Royal couple in the city came from the booming of a 21-gun salute that echoed to them.

Starting on the procession, Their Majesties stood in their maroon car and acknowledged the cheering. From then on they passed through cheering throngs. The crowd broke through police lines in the vicinity of the armories and shoved into unoccupied bleacher seats.

The Indian encampment of 30 brightly colored tepees gripped the interest of Their Majesties as the Royal procession passed. The Indians came from the Peigan, Stoney, Blood, Blackfoot and Sarcee tribes.

SAW OLD WEST

It was the spot where the old west lived again in all its glamor.

Two Indian children raced out to the Royal car and presented Queen Elizabeth with an Indian medicine bag. The appeal of the Indian encampment was too much to pass hurriedly by. The Royal Procession stopped and the King and Queen stepped from their car onto a row of buffalo skins.

SPOKE WITH CHIEFS

They spoke with the tribal chieftains, shook hands with them and saw the old west live again. Then they waved goodbye, stepped back into their car and the procession went on through cheering throngs.

All along the eight-mile route the crowds cheered and waved. Back to the railway station came the procession and then, waving again, Their Majestes left for their royal train to head into the Rocky Mountains.

Chicken Thieves

REGINA, May 27.—Chicken thieves recently made their annual call at the farm of K. Seidler. They got 17 birds. "They've been doing it every year for five years," he told police.

QUINTS FETE FIFTH NATAL DAY SUNDAY

They'd Rather Go Back To Toronto—Doc Dafoe Hedges

CALLANDER, Ont., May 27—The Dionne quintuplets will celebrate another life milestone Sunday but they just can't become enthusiastic—the famous sisters would much rather kiss "the beautiful Queen" and play with medals on the King's naval uniform.

The children will be five years old Sunday. Instead of cutting the usual birthday cake on their nursery table, they want to return on "the shiny train" to Toronto, where they met the King and Queen privately last Monday and where they think they will meet them again.

TALK OF VISIT

Since returning to their hospital home 2½ miles from here last Monday night, Marie, Cecile, Emilie, Yvonne and Annette have talked about the presentation to Their Majesties almost continually.

Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe hasn't the heart to tell his charges they can not make another trip to see the King and Queen—he hedges with "perhaps" and "maybe soon."

SANDMAN ON JOB

Marie still thinks the bridge the Quintland Special train passed under on entering railway yards in Toronto is the "London Bridge" she has heard so much of in play periods. Emilie would like another ride but next time she wants the "black screens" taken off the windows.

ONE BIG CAKE

After much to do about cakes, currants and candles, it has been decided the Dionne quintuplets will celebrate their fifth birthday tomorrow with one large angel cake, studded with five tin candles.

The Quints still are so enthralled over their trip to Toronto last Monday to meet the King and Queen, they didn't bother much with arrangements for the milestone celebration.

Each Quint will have one candle to blow out—and the candles will be supported in rosebud-shaped holders, gifts of Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, their physician. The children will play hostess to their mother and father, and seven brothers and sisters.

Tea will be served at 6 p.m. tomorrow because, birthday or not, the Quintuplets retire at 7:30.

QUEEN GETS GIFT INTENDED FOR THE KING

CALGARY, May 27—Two flustered Indian children got all tangled up and gave Queen Elizabeth a gift that was intended for the King, it was learned last night.

Litle seven-year-old Holy Spring, a boy, and five-year-old First Snake, a girl, planned to present "Their Great White Father" with a beaded medicine bag to be used as a "tobacco bag," said white-headed chief, medicine man of the Blackfoot tribe and the children's grandfather.

"But the children were excited," he said. "The Queen was very kind and took the gift."

Bergdoll, No. 1 Slacker Of U.S. Back in Prison

NEW YORK, May 27.—Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, No. 1 "slacker" of the United States, is back in the land of his birth, confined to an army prison cell and admittedly ready to "face the music" for evading the Great War draft.

Bergdoll

Mrs. Bergdoll

A short, squat man with a round face, Bergdoll was arrested yesterday on a charge of desertion as he arrived aboard the liner Bremen from Germany. He was hustled to Governor's Island where 19 years ago he was convicted as a deserter, dishonorably discharged from the army and sentenced to five years in a military prison.

Bergdoll, who offered his services in 1914 to the German aviation corps, sought exemption when drafted for the U.S. army in 1918. When this was refused he evaded draft authorities. After his sentence, he escaped his guards, fled to Canada and since has lived in Germany.

He faces a possible sentence of four years, 10 months in jail for desertion of his unexpired term and a new trial for escape.

Scenes From Royal Show

MEDECINE HAT, Alta., May 9—Members of the Canadian Legion here yesterday thought of Queen Mary as they welcomed King George VI and Queen Elizabeth. They sent a telegram to London expressing birthday greetings to the Queen Mother who was 72 today.

CALGARY, May 27—Chief of the Blackfoot tribe, Duck Chief, 75, greeted King George VI yesterday with "Oke-napi-is-tsi-piki-ninan." An Indian interpreter said in English the chief had said "Hello friend and great father."

BANFF, Alta., May 27—Near-perfect weather was promised the King and Queen for their well-deserved rest at Banff. Their Majesties, who arrived last night, will be here until Sunday. And the weather man promised "fair" weather.

LILLOOET, B.C., May 27.—A speical passenger train—the longest ever to be hauled over the Pacific Great Eastern line—will roll southward out of the Cariboo country today carrying hundreds to the coast to see the King and Queen.

REGINA, May 27—Meanest thief to strike during the festivities attendant upon the Royal Visit to Regina was the man who stole $3 from the Canadian National Institute for the blind workshop.

CALGARY, May 27 — Though Edna McLean, 15, of Calgary fainted twice while waiting for Their Majesties to pass along the parade route she was able to fulfill a desire to get a snapshot of the Royal Couple. One hundred and fifty persons received emergency treatment at the 37 first aid posts.

MONTREAL, May 27—The Canadian destroyers Skeena and Saguenay, which escorted the liner Empress of Australia up the St. Lawrence river to Quebec with the King and Queen, sailed Friday for their base at Halifax after a stay of several days in Montreal.

VANCOUVER, May 27 — Foon Sien, secretary of the Chinese Benevolent Association announced Friday, two blocks of Pender street in Chinatown will be roped off between 8 p.m. and midnight, Monday for dancing, commemorating the visit of the King and Queen to this city.

Japs Active

sary to combat a virtual Japanese blockade.

4—Chinese reports circulated in Tientsin that Japanese intend to stir up disorders in the British concession as an excuse for occupying it.

All of those threats of trouble in the far east appeared to be a coordinated campaign linked to the European developments.

Another suddenly important European problem was emerging as a vital part of the general picture. Diplomatic sources in Paris reported that France and Britain were backing Russia's refusal to agree to fortification of the Aland Islands, owned by Finland, at the mouth of the Gulf of Bothnia and adjacent to the Gulf of Finland.

Finland, backed by Sweden, has sought permission of the League of Nations to fortify the islands in order better to preserve her own neutrality in event of war. The islands were demilitarized by international agreement after the World War.

Russia, however, objected, and it became evident that the Soviets feared that, in event of war, Germany would immediately seize the islands and use them to bottle up the entire Soviet naval forces in the Baltic. The islands would be vital to maintenance of Nazi communications with Sweden, which supplies Germany with iron, and would provide an excellent aerial base to use against Russia.

Now, it appears, both Britain and France are supporting the Soviets' position, which probably means that the islands will remain unfortified and that the security front will gain another point in strength.

Corporal Punishment Is Still in Favor By Women of Great Britain

By J. E. NORCROSS

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

LONDON, May 27.—Judging by the proceedings at a conference of women Conservatives in London, the proposal to abolish corporal punishment, embodied in the Criminal Reform bill now before Parliament, is not popular with the women of the country.

About 3,000 women were present, representing more than 480 parliamentary constituencies in Great Britain and Northern Ireland. A resolution was offered deploring the proposed change in the law and urging that the courts should not only retain their present powers to order flogging for certain offences but should have further powers to order it for male offenders in respect of assaults on women and children.

Mrs. Tate, M.P., said she had seen the "most appalling cases" result in the offenders being sent to prison merely for one year.

Lady Davidson, M.P., said the government was making a real mistake.

Then Viscountess Astor, M.P., took up the cudgels for the government. Interruptions began as soon as her audience realized that she was against the use of the "cat." She could not make herself heard.

Captain Osbert Peake, undersecretary for home affairs, from which department the bill emanates, defended the measure, but with little success. The resolution was carred, after further hubbub, by a very large majority, the announcement of which was received with cheers.

through Alberta's foothills, arrived in Banff last night for a rest spell on their trans-Canada tour.

Tucked high in the Canadian Rockies, Banff gave the Royal Visitors a quiet welcome after their rousing receptions at Medicine Hat and Calgary yesterday. Their visit here will be devoid of formal ceremonies and they leave for the Pacific coast Sunday morning.

It was a new part of Canada in which Their Majesties rested today. And, if plans materialize they will see the beauties of Banff from a western buggy drawn by a sure-footed mountain pony. The drive is slated for this afternoon.

Banff, 4,532 feet above sea-level, is in its springtime glory now. Poplar trees are turning a deeper shade. The blue Bow river is gathering strength from melting snow and racing swiftly to the prairies.

All-year-round residents of this mountain resort did some decorating to honor their Royal visitors. But they did it on a modest scale in the knowledge Nature's handiwork needed no adornments. Flags constitute the major part of decorations.

From the windows of their suite Their Majesties will see the Bow river wind through its frame of rugged mountains to seemingly disappear at the foot of the snow-ridged Fairholm Range. Almost beneath their window the Bow Falls play a symphony.

Their Majesties will see towering Mount Norquay, Mount Rundle and Cascade mountain with their wooded slopes and a score of other mountains capped by snow. Cascade and Stony Squaw mountains lie at the end of Banff avenue.

On the golf course, in the woods or wherever Their Majesties care to stroll they will find a luxurious green carpet of grass.

A preview of Banff's beauties were given Their Majesties as the Royal train climbed into the mountains last night. Mountain sheep, white tail deer and a moose calf added variety to the mountain scenery.

It is in this mountain splendor that King George and Queen Elizabeth, winning Canadian hearts wherever they go, will spend a quiet spell. An influx of tourists is expected but there will be no official appearance to disrupt the quiet visit.

Banff's homefolk were entering into the quiet spirit of the visit. They are taking the royal couple into their hearts and making them feel right at home.

CEREMONY AT CITY HALL ONE OF SIMPLICITY

Hearty Handshakes, Breezy Greetings As Rulers Meet Citizens

CALGARY, May 27.—Hearty handshakes and breezy greetings of the foothill country marked Calgary's official welcome to King George and Queen Elizabeth Friday. The ceremony at the city hall was one of simplicity and intimate contact by Their Majesties with the people of the Rockies' rolling foothills.

The King strolled along the walk to the city hall with Mrs. Andrew Davison. Queen Elizabeth was accompanied by the Mayor, who is just "Andy" to the citizens.

Bowing and waving to the cheering throngs, Their Majesties moved slowly to the city hall. In the council chamber the Royal couple walked leisurely to a position in front of the mayor's chair.

ADDRESS OF WELCOME

The King, dressed in a lounge suit, moved to a table and dropped his hat, then returned to the Queen's side. The mayor presented the address of welcome and Mrs. Davison tendered the Queen a bouquet of roses which brought the simple remark from Her Majesty, "Thanks very much."

Forty-five of Calgary's leading citizens were presented to the King and Queen by Mayor Davison and the Royal couple greeted each with a hearty handshake and smile. The presentation, headed by the Anglican and Roman Catholic bishops of Calgary, included members of the legislature, chairman of the school board and Mayor D. H. Elton of Lethbridge.

The Queen gave a private interview to Mrs. H. K. Callister, secretary-treasurer of the Toc H Women Helper's Society before resuming the tour of the city.

200 Sanatorium Patients Glimpse Their Majesties

CALGARY, May 27—Two hundred patients in the central Alberta sanatorium eight miles west of here saw their King and Queen Friday.

Standing on the observation car as it moved slowly past the sanatorum en route to Banff, Their Majesties waved greetings to the patients. The patients had been brought outside specially to see the Royal train roll by.

Royal Holiday In Perfect Weather

By THOMAS WAYLING

BANFF SPRINGS HOTEL, May 27.—Their Majesties' most perfect day of rest in Canada started this morning with perfect weather.

The King's surgeon, Captain White, participated in a golf foursome with Hon. James A. MacKinnon, Federal minister for Alberta, Dr. Keenleyside, of External Affairs Department, and A. D. P. Heeney, the Prime Minister's secretary.

PREMIER BUSY

The remainder of the Royal Suite went swimming or walking. The Prime Minister had a lot of Federal business to attend to and spent most of the day at work in his rooms.

Shortly before 11 o'clock Their Majesties appeared, dressed for walking. The Queen wore a gold colored sports dress with matching scarf and hat. The King a belted coat and hat with turned down brim.

As they stepped into the car The King held a camel's hair coat for The Queen, and Brig.-General Panet entered the car with them.

The Royal Suite piled into two cars. They were all dressed for walking and there was a supply of extra long crook-handled canes for mountain walking.

ENTIRELY FREE

The Scotland Yard men took the last car and the four automobiles started off for Tunnel mountain—and not a press man or press photographer followed them. The Royal party will have the morning free entirely from eye-witnesses, amateur or professional.

The R.C.M.P. have kept all traffic and unauthorized persons away from this part of the world but across the Bow River cars park now and then to try and get a long distance view—particularly in the hope that The King and Queen may be playing golf.

DESTINATION SECRET

Their Majesties' destination this morning was not made public but they have gone to Tunnel Mountain. They will leave the motors at the beginning of the trail leading up the mountain and will then walk.

Tunnel Mountain is about 1,300 feet above Banff village and a marvellous view is obtained of the surrounding country, including Bow Valley each way. There is also a fine vista of Spray Valley.

Their Majesties spent a quiet evening after their arrival yesterday, and with the exception of a brief walk spent the time in their own apartments.

GUESTS FOR LUNCH

They will return from Tunnel Mountain about one o'clock when they are having fourteen people to lunch with them in the Alhambra room. The guests will include the Prime Minister and Hon. James A. MacKinnon.

This evening Their Majesties dine quietly with eight members of the Royal Suite present and perhaps an extra guest or two.

The entire atmosphere of Banff is conducive to rest and recreation. Last night was cool and clear and today there is a fresh breeze under white clouds in a blue sky. Conditions are perfect for walking and with nobody around but their personal friends Their Majesties will have an enjoyable morning.

Half Dozen Indian Tribes Acclaim King And Queen at Calgary

By THOMAS WAYLING

Edmonton Bulletin Staff Correspondent

CALGARY, May 27.—The King and Queen were acclaimed by half a dozen Indian tribes Friday afternoon as they made their triumphal progress through Calgary and vicinity. As Their Majesties approached the encampment the tom toms beat and tribal cries rent the air.

It was not known if Their Majesties would stop, but a word from the King and the Royal car pulled over to the side of the road and Their Majesties descended.

The delight of the Indians knew no bounds. Half a dozen plump squaws rushed forward and laid Buffalo robes for Their Majesties to walk on, and Duck Chief danced around and led forward four little papooses who presented the King with a beaded fire bag and then scampered back to their mothers in the line beyond.

Their Majesties, however, walked forward to the little group of paramount chiefs and their squaws. They stod beside an old picture of Queen Victoria, framed in gold, and one of the older chiefs held a silver-tipped staff presented by the good Queen. A number wore the large medals presented from time to time.

When the King and Queen walked over to chat with the Indians the crowds broke the police line and thronged in. The police were patient and seeing it was impossible to send the crowd back they contented themselves with maintaining a shorter line, around Their Majesties.

The Queen went to the little line of squaws and chatted with them and had them presented to the King and herself. The chiefs also were presented and Duck Chief shook hands vigorously with the King and then more gently with the Queen.

EVERYONE FOR SELF

As Their Majesties returned to their car the crowd closed in. They were not jostled. But every other member of the entourage found themselves engulfed.

The Prime Minister helped Lady Nunburnholme through the crowd to his car, and after that it was every man and woman for himself and herself. The crowd wanted to see the King and Queen—and they did.

Their Majesties smiled appreciatively as the crowd showed its enthusiasm. The cheers were so vociferous that the mounted Indians had difficulty in restraining their horses, as did the cowboys and cowgirls. (The London Times is said to have referred to them as cowboys and their ladies).

KING GETS GAUNTLETS

The Indians presented His Majesty with a pair of embroidered red buckskin gauntlets. Presentations were definitely not on the program but the Indians put them on.

The city of Calgary excelled itself in the warmth of its welcome, and cheering crowds told Their Majesties of loyalty and devotion. As the Royal train left for Banff the railway tracks were lined for miles.

As I write this in the Palliser hotel there is a sudden roar, excelling all others. Out of the window I can see the Royal train is just leaving and Their Majesties have appeared on the back platform.

As their observation coach comes into sight past the hotel, the crowds on the street have sighted it crossing the subway and the roar came spontaneously from thousands of loyal throats. Calgary is giving Their Majesties as warm a send off as the reception.

The King and Queen will have a pleasant rest at Banff, a rest that will continue over Saturday and Saturday night and they will leave Sunday morning for their ride through the Rockies to Kamloops, bound for Vancouver.

LAKE LOUISE COUPLE TAKE COSTUME PRIZE

CALGARY, May 27.—The cowboys and cowgirls who got away from the ranch—and other spots—went on parade in Calgary Friday to welcome the King and Queen.

And a husband and wife from the mountain resort of Lake Louise copped the first prize for the best dressed cowboy and cowgirl. They were Mr. and Mrs. Percy Bennett. Mr. Bennett is a mountain guide.

The contest was conducted by the Royal Visit reception committee. Harry Brogden of Priddis and Even Bremner of De Winton exhibited chuck wagons—the very vital piece of equipment for cowboys on the range.

JAPS BECOME BLUSTERY OVER AMOY AFFAIRS

SHANGHAI, May 27—Japanese naval officials declared today their minimum demand for withdrawing a landing party from Kulangsu, international settlement of Amoy, is the addition of three Japanese to the Amoy Municipal council.

The Japanese said they would station troops on Kulangsu, an island in Amoy harbor, indefinitely if Great Britain, France and the United States do not accept their terms.

tire Dominion of Canada, there can be no doubt—even though such an opinion be formed only upon such items of news as come to us over here from time to time from sources, which are necessarily other than the banker-controlled newspapers.

"From such reports as have occasionally come my way, it would seem that "Public Enemy No. 1" in Canada is being steadily and surely compelled to unveil himself, to come out into the open where everyone will be able to see what he is, how he works, and who benefits from his anti-social machinations. If this is correct, then it must be but a matter of time before he can be made to suffer a decisive defeat at the hands of the voters of Canada; for, correctly used, the combined voice of the electors is invincible.

WILL SPARE NO EFFORT

"Undoubtedly, every effort will be made by those, who have the monopoly of costlessly creating and controlling the Dominion's financial credit to their own advantage, to see that the voice of the electors is neither combined nor, if combined, that it is correctly used. These enemies of individual freedom-in-security will of course spare no effort to divide the people of Canada by political party strife, or, if that should fail—and probably in any case—they will covertly support any popular demand for technical methods as against a united demand for the results which everybody desires.

"But, from what I hear, I have every hope that these attempts at diversion will soon fail, not only as they are already failing in Alberta, but in the rest of Canada as well.

"It seems to me that the people of Canada have an exceptional opportunity at the present time. If so, there rests upon all representatives of Canadian voters a very heavy responsibility in the light of that opportunity.

TAKE ADVANTAGE OF WAR SCARE

"Here in Europe, our attention is largely concentrated upon the possibility of war and upon the need for defending ourselves should war break out; so that it is not difficult for the conscious or unconscious agents of International Finance not only to keep us from any serious effort to abolish the unnecessary suffering of an enormous number of our own countrymen, but also to have the most plausible excuse for forcing upon us an ever-increasing bureaucratic dictatorship.

"But I should think that in Canada there is, in many respects, much less possibility of, or good excuse for diverting the attention of the ordinary individual from the anomaly of a potentially-wealthy (as well as under-populated) country, but one in which nevertheless he finds it increasingly difficult to obtain access to the vast store of real wealth which is under his very nose.

CANADA'S GREAT OPPORTUNITY

"Canada's present opportunity seems to me to lie in the probability that world events just now must be proving rather a handful for the international financial controllers working through New York, London, and other centres, if they would increase, or even maintain, their power through the disruption in Europe which their activities are engendering. In other words, that Canadian legislators, if backed now by their electors in a united demand for results, and for so long as the British Empire remains out of war, have an exceptional opportunity for a vital flank attack upon the common enemy at a time when his leading generals cannot give Canada such full attention as might otherwise be the case.

"Be that as it may, however, I am anyhow convinced that we are already in the midst of probably the most stupendous crisis which mankind has yet had to face. Of the outward signs of what is taking place, one of the most noticeable seems to me to be the way in which the intervals between war scares are now so rapidly diminishing. The war crises between the military dictators and the bureaucratic dictators—these latter being mis-named "the democracies" — are becoming more and more frequent and more severe. Another sign is the constant speeding-up, in this and other so-called "democratic" countries, of the imposition of various and increasing methods of centralizing power at points ever further and further out of the reach of the individuals who are affected by the use of that power.

"To make these evils possible at all, it is necessary to create and maintain an atmosphere of increasing anxiety, confusion, and tension; and, furthermore, the resulting events themselves automatically augment the causes which make still further and more drastic encroachments on individual liberty and security seem a necessity to those who are unable critically to examine, and if necessary to discard, what, through upbringing, environment and mis-direction, they have previously regarded as axiomatic.

CRISIS IS APPROACHING

"Such is the present state of affairs as I see it, and I would guess that the mighty crash, or series of crashes—not necessarily by armed warfare—which this gigantic vicious circle must inevitably bring about, is almost upon us now.

"What can the individual do about it? How can the little 'David' effectively do battle against the Goliath of the international money-power? These are questions which we are all asking ourselves. I do not myself think that the crash itself can now be averted, for the momentum of its causes seems too great; but I do think that by right action its effects can be so modified as finally to result in benefit for the individual and in frustration of the designs of those who seek world-domination through the control of credit.

CAUSE OF ACTION

"I can see only one principle of effective action at the moment (though its possibilites of application are, of course, many), and that is first to find out and to realize what are the underlying facts—not the superficial results—and then, by every means possible, to put those facts before as many responsible people as one can.

"Let people know these facts which the international usurers do not want people to know. Call the attention of members of governments to those facts, so that they may realize that they themselves stand only to lose, just as will those less prominent folk of all nationalities who are killed, maimed, and broken in any war intended to make the world safe for international bankers—though naturally it will not be advertised as having any such intention. Let them know the facts so that they may see who and what is the common enemy of mankind; for only then can the peoples of the civilized world unite to overthrow him, instead of being deceived by him into mutual murder and destruction for his benefit.

"However, it is not to hear my views that we came here this evening, and I do not want to abuse my privilege as chairman by taking up your time any longer. But, if he is willing to give us that pleasure, we should very much like to hear Mr. Tanner's views and anything he may care to tell us as to the progress of events in Canada; for, as Douglas Social Crediters, we are watching with the keenest interest the splendid fight which Mr. Tanner and his Government are putting up in their determination to see that their electors shall get the results they demand, and shall cease to have imposed upon them results which they do not want.

LEADERS OF REAL DEMOCRACY

"This indeed is the coming of real Democracy—though, in these days, I hesitate to use that much-abused word—and, when the people of Canada, through their Government, have won this battle, it will be to the Government of Alberta that their gratitude will be due for having shown them the way to make Democracy a reality, for having led the world into the age of political and economic freedom-in-security for the individual—into the full enjoyment of that social credit which is our objective."

Woman's Army

LONDON, May 26. — Peacetime training will be given to a woman's "land army," Sir Reginald Dorman-Smith, agriculture minister, told the House of Commons today. Comimttees will be established in all countries to enlist women who will be trained as tractor drivers and instructed in other farm work to replace men in the fields in time of war.

Gift From British Wool Growers

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt admiring the sheer woolen fabric, especially woven from the finest fleeces of the British Empire and the gift of the Empire's wool growers, which had just been presented to her by (left to right) I. R. Magregor, R. M. Firth, Trade Commissioners for Australia and New Zealand, and Emil Horne, Counsel for the Union of South Africa, in New York. From this wool will be fashioned a dress to be worn when Mrs. Roosevelt welcomes Queen Elizabeth to Washington on June 8. A similar gift from the wool growers of the United States was recently presented to the Queen.

KING GEORGE SHY UNIFORM OF R. C. M. P.

By THOMAS WAYLING
Edmonton Bulletin Staff Correspondent

ON BOARD ROYAL PRESS TRAIN, May 27.—The King is shy one uniform in his comprehensive wardrobe.

Believe it or haven't you heard it: His Majesty is Honorary Commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. At Regina, the training headquarters of the famour force, Commissioner S. T. Wood was in uniform for the first time since the royal arrival.

The Honorary Commissioner, however, was unable to don his R.C.M.P. uniform. He hadn't one.

The R.C.M.P. were hoping their honorary chief would have turned out in their famous scarlet and gold, to tell the world he was a member of the force and proud of it.

This, however, was the first occasion His Majesty had been on parade in the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

By THOMAS WAYLING
Edmonton Bulletin Staff Correspondent

ON BOARD ROYAL PRESS TRAIN, May 27.—Herr Hitler may regiment his German crowds to cheer and "heil" or else, but the German folk of Western Canada are thronging into the cities to cry their free allegiance to King George VI.

Medicine Hat on Friday was the British shrine for thousands of German born and German descended Canadians. They came from a hundred miles around. They came by train, in cars, in trucks, in "Bennett buggies" and on foot, eager to hail the King whose reign meant freedom to live their lives as they desired and without regimentation or coercion.

One old German arrived in Medicine Hat and sought out those in authority.

"I wish to be presented to the King," he said.

They explained it was not possible. The old farmer could not see it that way.

PRESENTED TO BENNETT

"I was presented to R. B. Bennett once," he said. "Why should I not be presented to the King."

There is no doubt as to where the Germans of Western Canada stand with respect to Canada and to their fatherland. They have traversed the prairies to get to the King, and they have cheered him to the echo.

"God Save the King" has replaced, "Faderland, Mein Faderland" as their national anthem.

Two Little Princesses Get Two Sailor Dolls Sent From Canada

LONDON, May 27.—Two sailor dolls sent from Canada by the King and Queen to Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose were delivered at Buckingham Palace Friday by J. Voce-Moore, official of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company.

He also delivered two inscribed photograph albums to the princesses. The albums had been subscribed for by every man and woman on the liner Empress of Australia when it took Their Majesties to Canada.

A quantity of mail, including a letter to the princesses and one to Queen Mary, as well as letters to other members of the Royal family from the King and Queen, was delivered by Voce-Moore.

The two princesses left Buckingham Palace by car late today, accompanied by Miss Marion Crawford, for the Royal Lodge at Windsor, where they will spend the Whitsun holiday. They are expected back in London Monday or Tuesday.

Unification

layed effective measures of cooperation.

The house ceased labor until Monday after adopting the railway measure and Finance Minister C. A. Dunning's central mortgage bank bill on second reading, besides completing the passage of estimates for the department of trade and commerce and voting several items for the mines and resources departments, $6,500,000 in all.

Conservative Majority Votes For Unification

OTTAWA, May 27.—In the face of the party's attitude against unification of the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railways as declared by the national leader, Hon. R. J. Manion, the Conservative majority in the senate has voted for unified management of the two roads.

Last night the senate voted for an amendment to the majority report of the special committee on the railway problem, calling for continued co-operative efforts looking toward economies, 25 to 21. The amendment, moved by Hon. C. P. Beaubien (Con., Quebec) substituted the minority report of the committee calling for unification.

All those who voted for the amendment were Conservative appointees, but six of the Conservative members voted with the Liberals against it.

CHIEF OPPONENT

Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Senate Conservative leader, was chief opponent of the committee's majority report and admitted, during debate, that he was sole author of the minority report.

The special committee on railway problems sat throughout last session without reporting and has been holding public hearings most of the present session.

Senator Meighen said he regretted going against the Conservative platform as opposed to unification and as enunciated by the national leader, but declared he could see no other course.

The majority support, sponsored in the Senate by Hon. Raoul Dandurand, government leader, would have urged the two roads to exert themselves toward greater co-operation looking toward elimination of duplicate services and efforts for economies. Legislation passed in 1933 instructed the two roads to so co-operate.

The Conservative majority declared co-operative efforts had failed to produce results and long evidence before the committee by experts from both companies indicated there was no hope for further economies by co-operative efforts.

To adopt the majority report, Senator Meighen said, would be to leave the question exactly where it was when the committee began its sittings. It was no answer to the question placed before the committee.

PROTECT SHAREHOLDERS

Liberal opponents of the minority report declared it was designed solely to protect the dividends of Canadian Pacific shareholders and was playing into the hands of that company whose president, Sir Edward Beatty, had widely urged unification.

Conservatives who voted with the government against the amendment were J. J. Donnelly (Ontario), Charles Bourgeois (Quebec), J. L. P. Ribichaud (Nova Scotia), Lucien Traud (Quebec), A. D. McRae (British Columbia), and Arthur Marcotte (Saskatchewan).

All Liberals in the chamber voted against the amendment except Hon. W. A. Buchanan (Alberta), who said he would have done so had he not been paired with an absent member. Senator G. V. White (Con., Ontario) was also paired but said otherwise he would have voted for the amendment.

Present standing in the Senate is Conservatives 54, Liberals 33, vacant nine.

OTTAWA, May 27—Hon. Raoul Dandurand, government leader in the senate, told that chamber last night "there is a hope we may have prorogation at the end of next week." He moved that the senate adjourn until Monday and come back "prepared for a week of hard work." The adjournment was made as moved.

France Discusses Proposed Pact

PARIS, May 27—The cabinet conferred for two hours today in a meeting devoted to the proposed Franco-Turkish mutual assistance agreement and the international situation in general.

Premier Edouard Daladier summoned his ministers to tell them of negotiations whereby France is expected to cede to Turkey the strategic Hatay Republic to gain the pact, perhaps by Tuesday

WAR TENSION PLACES CRIMP NORTH TRADE

Business Drops Off As European Scare Upsets Development

FORT McMURRAY, May 27—Herr Hitler may be only bluffing, Senor Mussolini may be only blustering, Mr. Chamberlain may be the "real McCoy" as a peace dove, Monseur Daladier and his Maginot lines may be so much sensationalism, and maybe Danzig doesn't even exist; but be that as it may, it is a recognized and undeniable fact here that the European tension and war searing has put a definite crimp in the development of the north and the carrying on as usual of its business.

Booming for the last two years, both Fort McMurray and Waterways are struggling through with the early season business cut in half at the most conservative estimates. Some blame the European situation, others the policies of local governments, while still others maintain the law of the inevitable pendulum is taking its natural swing.

Some optimists insist that it is yet too early to cry "wolf" and that conditions will flourish this season as in others, only at a later date.

UNEMPLOYMENT

Meantime, the forerunner and the aftermath of all slumps in business, "demon unemployment," is making his appearance here. While it is hard to estimate the exact number of transients who joined the local unemployed since the start of the season, it is a fact the Waterways is crowded with men seeking work which apparently does not exist.

A few weeks ago every train brought in large numbers of "rod riders," men without work or money, seeking employment. Now the situation is somewhat reversed with each train going out carryng its quota of box car riders, who, despairing of finding lucrative employment here, are returning to the cities where they can at least claim a spot in the hand-out lines.

Some criticism has been levelled at the railways for throwing these men off the train before it leaves Waterways. This makes them a local responsibility, and it is utterly impossible for local authorities to help these men out.

WON'T RISK

A fair indication of the situation is the fact that not one prospecting party, financed by outside capital, has been reported leaving Fort McMurray this season. Under present conditions, financiers in Toronto, Montreal and New York, the main sources of capital for such enterprises, are not risking money.

River transport companies have sleed their crews thinner this year and as yet are not handling half the freight they were last year, according to local estimates. Demand for airplane transport has also fallen off, but their season has barely started.

TAXIS SUFFER

The town of Waterways experienced somewhat of a boom last year with the addition of a licensed hotel, a spacious dance hall and some minor business places, but taxi companies operating between Waterways and Fort McMurray now report a substantial reduction in the number of fares this season.

The Abasand tar sand plant has not as yet resumed operations, while the salt plant, which was in full swing earlier, has closed down temporarily due to over-production.

DR. G. G. WANNOP TO HEAD B. P. O. E. FOR NEXT YEAR

CALGARY, May 27—Dr. G. G. Wannop of Wetaskiwin will head the Benevolent Protective Order of Elks in Alberta during the next year, it was officially announced last night. He succeeds J. P. Ferguson of Trochu.

A. N. McKinley will continue as secretary-treasurer. Other executives include Fred Haney, Calgary, first vice-president; J. H. Kennedy, Vegreville, second vice-president, and P. Derbyshire, Edmonton, third vice-president.

Grand Exalted Ruler John Vaselenak, Lethbridge, head of the B.P.O. Elks in Canada and Newfoundland, told Alberta delegates the importance of Canadian unity. The 1940 convention will be held at Red Deer.

Drought Areas Get 5 Inches Rain to Give Growing Grain Impetus

WINNIPEG, May 27. — King's weather came to the western prairies this week with the visit of Canada's King and Queen. In other words, it rained.

The drought areas in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta report to the Canadian Pacific railway department of agriculture four to five inches of welcome moisture; seeding is almost finished and the coolish days, uncomfortable for parades and crowds, have tightened the rooting grain sprouts over a grateful land.

According to C.P.R. agents, some points along the Empress, Maple Creek, Altawan and Nutukeu subdivisions as much as five inches of rain were recorded. South-central and western Manitoba and southern Alberta and parts of south-eastern Saskatchewan are still in urgent need of still more moisture, but the general crop picture is decidedly changed since last week and the grain belt is happier.

Fields are green and grasshopper activities are curtailed with the advent of rain. Pasturage also looks promising, with consequent benefit to livestock.

Londoner Lauds International News Service

MONTREAL, May 27. — Graham Hutton, author, traveller and former assistant editor of the London Economist, said in an interview on Friday that although he had been away from London since last January he had been kept better informed of what has been going on in Europe than if he had been there.

Service of international news on this continent is "remarkable," he said. "It is much more comprehensive than anything we get in England or for that matter in any other part of Europe."

Fossils are not all made of the same material.

MAYOR ELTON OF LETHBRIDGE IS HONORED

CALGARY, May 27.—Mayor D. K. Elton, K.C., of Lethbridge was singled out for special honor by Queen Elizabeth in the city council chambers here Friday, when 43 persons were presented to King George and his Queen.

The Royal tour did not include Lethbridge, most southerly Alberta city, on its itinerary, but 4,000 persons from the Lethbridge district came up to see their King and Queen. Both Mayor Elton and Mrs. Elton were presented.

When it came to Mayor Elton's turn, the Queen showed interest in the fact she was meeting a mayor from another city.

"Your Majesty, it is 150 miles," answered Mayor Elton.

"Oh, so far as that!" exclaimed the Queen in surprise.

Parents Criticized Not Calling Doctor

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

VEGREVILLE, May 27—A coroner's jury, investigating the death of Metro Krywusik, seven-months-old son of Steve Krywusik of Two Hills, Alberta, who died after a three week's illness for which no doctor was called, Thursday brought in a verdict of death caused from intestinal inflammation but added a rider to the verdict reprimanding the parents for not calling medical assistance.

More "Readjustment"

Implement men report that Alberta farmers have bought more tractors and power machinery this spring than for several preceding seasons. One Edmonton dealer says his firm has sold more of this class of implements in the last six months than it sold in the last six years.

The inference seems to be that the farmer is following the lead of the industrialist and buying more—and more efficient—machines as one way to cut down his production costs. Since the world will no longer pay a good price for wheat, cheaper production offers one chance for farm profits. It pays the manufacturer to spend more on machinery and less for labor, and the rule may hold good on the farm also.

That appears to be the only explanation that fits the case when farmers buy more machinery though their incomes are less than they used to be. Maybe the farmer is going in for "mass production," as others have done. This does not brighten the outlook for the farm laborer, nor for governments which find unskilled men making up a large proportion of the unemployed. But if it stabilizes agriculture and enables the farmer to keep going at the lower price level, that will strengthen the foundation on which the whole western business structure rests.

"Amalgamation Never"

The Senate inquiry which was hailed in some quarters as bound to end in the amalgamation of the railways, and may have been instigated with that object, has turned out to be a dividing, not a unifying, procedure. Instead of joining the railways it split a political party, leaving a group of Conservative Senators marooned.

The fusionist arguments were buried at last session under an avalanche of facts and figures, to the accompaniment of a chorus of popular approval from one coast to the other. When the session ended some of the committee members obviously hoped the inquiry would be allowed to die quietly during the recess.

But when parliament met again the committee was told, quite properly, to finish the job. It has carried on during the present session in a half-hearted way and keeping out of the limelight as much as possible. The majority has brought in a report condemning the unification idea, and calling for continued co-operation between the railway systems; leaving Senator Meighen and a die-hard minority to bring in a contrary report, which is more notable for obduracy than for reason.

This ought to end the amalgamation talk. It has been demonstrated that unified control would not make the railways profitable, while it would subject the suspicious public to a virtual, but likely far from virtuous, railway monopoly. Which, it has been shown very decisively, the public would not stand for.

Good News for the West

Next to the proceedings at Winnipeg, including the drenching that Manitoba needed, the most important item of western news over the holiday came from Ottawa. The Royal Society, meeting there, learned that research investigators have discovered, or developed, a drought-resistant type of fodder crop which they think will meet the needs of the dry areas.

If they have found an equally good successor to the bunch grass which formerly clothed the plains and provided summer and winter food for countless head of buffalo, the importance of this is almost beyond calculation. Man plowed up the bunch grass that he might grow wheat; only to find that when dry seasons came he could grow nothing. The even worse feature was that the original prairie grass had gone, like the buffalo. Scientists have for years been searching for something to take its place, something equally good as stock food and equally resistant to summer drought and winter frost.

If, as is said, the investigators of the Research Council have found what they have been looking for, that is the best of news for the west. It means that dust storms can be stopped, and land hitherto useless in dry years made to support herds of cattle. As an item in the program of rehabilitation that will have to be carried through, a drought-resistant forage crop might be more valuable than the making of artificial ponds, necessary as this also will be

The Bill Should Pass Now

Parliament, it is suggested in despatches from Ottawa, may prorogue next week. It should not prorogue until the Central Mortgage Bank bill has been passed. That is the most important measure brought in during the session, barring the trade agreement with the United States. It is the most reconstructive piece of legislation this parliament has been invited to consider, not even excluding the housing scheme. Building all over the Dominion is hampered, and in one province stalled, by deadlock and confusion in respect to mortgage loans. Capitalists are afraid to lend and would-be builders are afraid or unable to borrow. The normal return flow of savings into investments is blocked, and thousands of tradesmen are idle in consequence.

The bill offers a fair and workable scheme for a general adjustment of existing mortgage debts, and lays down a reasonable and permanent basis for future lending and borrowing on mortgage security. Parliament, if it has to sit all summer, should write that bill in the statute book before it prorogues.

As for the members who plead that the bill be hoisted to another session because this session has been long and they want to go home—they are among those who have wasted weeks talking about matters of lesser and sometimes little import. Having gabbled half the winter they now want to hold up this constructive and much-needed legislation. They should not be allowed to put that over.

Editorial Notes

Russia's defence budget amounts to $8,054,345,000; compared with $3,349,000,000 last year. The author of Mien Kampf and his associates should be interested. That doesn't look like the budget of a Government that intended to sit on the sidelines if they start a fight.

Mr. Fritz Kuhn, leader of the German American Bund, who won a sort of distinction a while ago by scurrilous abuse of President Roosevelt, has been arrested on twelve charges of grand larceny and forgery involving the alleged theft of something more than $14,000. He ought to be glad now that the President isn't a Fuehrer.

At Busteed, Manitoba, ten school children of Swedish parentage assembled at their school at two o'clock in the morning and walked five miles to see the train bearing the King and Queen. They did it, of course, because they wanted to, not because they had to. This is another side-light on the significance, and the strength, of democracy. Children would not do that of their own accord to do honor to a tyrant.

Denmark is reported from Berlin to be willing to make a non-aggression pact with the Fuehrer; perhaps because, being next door, the Danes are afraid to arouse his ire by refusing. Norway, Sweden and Finland are reported in the same dispatch to be likely to say they "see no necessity" of a pact. Which may mean they think the Fuehrer is not as dangerous as he sounds; or may imply a doubt that pacts would stop him if he wanted to grab some of their territory.

Can Canadians Cheer?

As to organized cheering, for the Royal Visit, our sturdy Canadian school kids can be trusted to make the welkin ring, spontaneously, in a manner that would be the envy of Bermondsey or Wigan. They have the will and they have the lung power, and they will shout with enthusiasm whether they are organized or not.

If anyone still has any doubts let him attend any movie theatre with a newsreel in which Their Majesties appear. Canadians are not wont to applaud or to hiss news pictures. But lately, especially during the spring crisis, Winnipeg audiences have lustily cheered Their Majesties every time they appeared upon the screen.

Those hardy Canadian vocal chords and lungs of brass, which can drive a pitcher off the mound and send the umpire scurrying for his cyclone cellar in the dugout, are at least a match for those of our "well-played-air," hand-clapping cousins across the Atlantic.—Winnipeg Tribune.

Debt An Asset?

Something more should be heard of the statement made by Mr. Graham Towers, governor of the Bank of Canada, before the banking and commerce committee of the House of Commons the other day. Mr. Towers stated that public debt was an asset of the people of Canada. He further intimated that it was better business for this country to increase its indebtedness.

If Mr. Towers is right, then individuals as well as the Dominion of Canada should measure their progress in business by the amount of money they owe. The theory is so startling and so much at variance with the accepted practice in good business that one wonders how Mr. Towers ever got away with it before a supposedly intelligent body of men like the committee on banking and commerce.

Mr. Towers is the head of a very important bank, and if he is suggesting that banks do not expect their debtors to pay their obligations, he advocates a policy which in the minds of most people in this country will lead to nothing but ruin.

Mr. Towers gave a pat on the back to reckless spenders and a rebuke to people who, in the final analysis, put some value on thrift and industry. Are we to accept Mr. Towers' pronouncement as the accepted policy of the House of Commons of Canada? To the ordinary layman Mr. Towers' pronouncement is just so much balderdash and an insult to ordinary intelligence. But the queston most people are interested in is: What will the committee on banking and commerce do about it?—Telegraph-Journal (St. John, N.B.).

Wheat Prospects

The wheat crop estimate of the United States secretary of agriculture places the total yield of both winter and spring wheat in that country at 704,000,000 bushels. That figure is roughly 250,000,000 bushels less than the yield last year and it is approximately what the United States requires for domestic purposes. Thus, of the new crop the United States should not have much to export, not enough to be a factor in world markets, although it may still have some of last year's harvest to dispose of.

As a matter of fact, this year's yield may be smaller than the estimate. Winter wheat is at a critical stage and it is suffering from heat and lack of rain. If widespread rains do not come, further deterioration is expected.

Nor has the spring wheat sowing had an auspicious start. There has been insufficient moisture. But abundant rains coming now or at an early date will still assure a plentiful yield.

There is some expectation that wheat prices will strengthen under the present condition, although any large and sustained advance is still believed to be highly improbable. There is still a large world carryover to be disposed of and that will likely prevent a sharp upwards movement.

Last year the Prairie Provinces produced 324,000,000 bushels of wheat. This year the acreage sown is about the same and the outlook for a large yield neither good nor bad. There are many weeks ahead in which various hazards will be run, the most threatening of which at present is another 'hopper plague.—Saskatoon Star-Phoenix.

Unemployment

Outside of the actual threat of war, unemployment remains the outstanding problem in the democratic countries. In the dictator countries the use of conscription and of forced labor have taken up the reserves of man power. A recent survey shows that in the United States there are about 11,000,000 potential wage-earners unable to find work.

It is pointed out that the U.S. unemployed today represent almost exactly the increase in the working population since 1929. There are employed in non-agricultural industries 33,000,000 workers. In 1929, at the very peak of prosperity, employment was only 35,300,000. In other words, a return to the "prosperity" of 1929 would scarcely make a dent in today's unemployment.

Today there is work for almost 7,000,000 more than there was in 1933. But the working population has increased much faster. To have a 1929 level of prosperity, the United States would have to employ today not 35,300,000 workers as then, but perhaps 45,000,000.

This problem is common to all the world. Pointing to Germany and Italy and saying "No unemployment there," is no answer. Picture the result if the United States suddenly clapped 2,000,000 men into the standing army, stepped up industry and agriculture to feed and equip these men, themselves suddenly drawn from production. Two million would be about in proportion to the 1,000,000 Germany has constantly under arms. Three out of four men thus enrolled would leave a vacant job behind, to be filled by others. All industry, all agriculture would feel the stimulus. Such a move might well "solve" unemployment. But such a "solution" is no solution.

The Canadian situation runs fairly well parallel to that in the United States although Canada may not have poured as much money into projects to create employment.

It must be plain to everyone that the solution has not been found and that the finding of the solution still stares Canada as the greatest task facing her legislators.—Regina Leader-Post.

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

Just when Vancouver has sanctioned expenditure of $390,000 on additional school accommodation, announcement is made that the school population is 575 less than it was a year ago. Other places mark the same phenomena. At Harrup, B.C., last week, the Women's Institute cancelled its customary picnic for school children because there weren't enough to justify a picnic. United States has a million empty seats in its elementary schools, a drop from 21,300,000 to 20,000,000 in 8 years. Stuart Chase, able writer on economics says that if present trends in population continue, by 1960 there will be 10,000,000 more empty desks in the schools and colleges.

DECLINING POPULATIONS

Though Canada and United States show increases in their populations, the rising curves now show signs of flattening out. It starts with the school population; it will spread into the large age groups as time goes on.

In twenty years from now—to take a practical illustration—the army of oldsters in United States will be 8,000,000 greater than in 1930. As these drop out there will be insufficient born Americans to replace them. It affects more than old age pension calculations. It means that United States will be compelled to look to immigration to maintain its population figures. Men anxious to build up an American race with American ideals foresee difficulties.

The fecundity of the French-Canadians will avert that problem for Canada by making Canada a more predominantly French nation, ultimately a French majority.

Birth control is the immediate cause of this shrinkage of school populations. It affects nations everywhere in the western world. In 1875 the birthrate on this continent was 37 per thousand—the equivalent of a new baby each year in every fifth family. By 1912 it was down to 26 per thousand—one baby in every eight families. By 1935 it was down to 17 per 1000—and is still falling. Other countries are having the same experience. In Sweden the rate is 14 per 1,000; in England and France 15. The German rate was 17 per 1,000 in 1930 before Hitler came to power with his requirements in cannon fodder. Mussolini facing a drop in the birthrate from 27 in 1930 to 23 in 1935 has bonussed marriage and extolled big families. In Germany a bachelor tax has been imposed. One German city offers a bonus to unmarried women of 29 or over who will enroll to bear children.

RESULTS FROM BIRTH CONTROL

Big business is concerned about it. C. M. Chester, chairman of General Foods Corporation in a recent address at Los Angeles quoted a questionnaire to show that the marriage state is still popular. Out of every 100 men, 85 expressed the view that a man had more chance of success if he married. Where then is the trouble?

Economics lie at the bottom of this, as of nearly every other problem. The standard of living have improved, but with it there is less security in employment than at any previous time. People dependent on wages or salaries are afraid to have children. If they do have children they limit the family to their ability to provide. Not until the lowest economic stratum of all is reached, where poverty is chronic, hope has fled and fear has flown is there unrestricted child-bearing. In the handicraft age, and on the old-style farms, children were an asset; the machine age has made them a liability. Big business is worried about it because fewer children mean less food and milk profits, less clothing and footwear; less books and toys, less everything. It is another argument for reducing labor hours to occupy all, even if it does mean that the laboring classes get more security and leisure.

MORE SECURITY MEANS MORE BABES

The thoroughness of the German mind is reflected in the Czech language handbooks supplied to the German soldiers in readiness for the invasion of Czecho-Slovakia. The first phrase is: "Good morning, Mr. Mayor!" This amiable method of opening a conversation with His Worship soon gets down to business. It proceeds with Nazi ruthlessness to ask "Are the inhabitants peaceable?" "If you lie you will be shot." "Your head is at stake."

TALKING TURKEY TO THE CZECHS

"It is punishable by death, first, to go near the railway; second, to use the telephone."

"We have a requisition order for food. If foodstuffs are hidden, the village will be fined 10,000 crowns. I need ten wagons with horses and drivers to remove food. If the drivers purposely mislead us, you will be shot."

"Are you the Mayor? Open all the cupboards. Where is the safe? How much money is there in it? Write down the amount. Have you any more money? I confiscate the money."

Any budding John Dillinger or Baby Face Nelson wishful to know the correct phrases for the well-dressed bandit to use, should send to Field Marshal Goering for a copy of this useful handbook.

AT THE AIRPORT

One of the "sights" of Florida is the daily arrival of the big planes at the Pan-American Airport. Like homing birds, the great ships of the air come winging in, on scheduled time, from South America and Puerta Rico and Cuba and the Virgin Islands.

My special interest is the passengers, who come tripping gaily ashore, often without hats or wraps, eager for reunion with waiting friends.

This scene suggests that other great arrival when, after safely crossing death's waters, we shall land at our desired haven, to be welcomed by loved ones and by our Lord Himself. And we shall be as carefree and happy as these who have flown the wide waters to an earthly port.

We look for "happy landings" at the home of our souls, which Christ has prepared for us; and we pray, our Father, that all our anticipations of the end of our journey may be serene and faith-filled. Amen.

A British Youth Movement

Editor, Bulletin: As one who has lived and travelled in many parts of the Empire, I have been greatly struck, and at times not a little depressed, by our failure to organize the youth of the Empire in the cause of the high principles for which a democratic confederation of nations should stand.

Whether or not we regard the solidarity of totalitarian countries as superficial and ephemeral, it can scarcely be denied that the power behind the dictators largely derives from the way in which the young mind has been influenced, through organized training almost from infancy, to put the State first in all things and to repose blind confidence in the actions of its leaders. I naturally do not prescribe any such philosophy for the youth of the Empire, which has been built up on a generous foundation of personal and collective self-expression, but it seems to me that in the present drift of events we might well take a leaf out of the book of Germany and Italy in a systematic attempt to lead the children of the Empire out of paths of haphazard development and muddled thinking and bring them up to accept unswervingly one or two simple ideals to which everybody, irrespective of creed, or party, can subscribe.

It is one of the penalties of democracy that it is many-sided, and many movements which, to their founders, appear to be altruistic and above controversy are apt to be assailed because of some supposed or implied quality of which their originators never dreamed. Yet so great and so imminent is the peril to democracy today that few people will, I imagine, object to my suggestion that the answer to the domination of the child mind by pernicious political philosophies in totalitarian countries in the systematic training of the children of the Empire, irrespective of race, creed or color, in the knowledge and belief that the British Empire is the chief bulwark of peace, freedom and good government in the world. The dostrine of force and violence, of national exclusiveness, of arrogant superiority of blood and race, can, I submit, be effectively countered by the teaching of tolerance, justice, mutual helpfulness, industry, integrity and steadfastness to simple and unselfish ideals. All these are part of the creed of the Empire Day Movement, of which I have the honor to be president.

Empire idealism today is far removed from flag-wagging and jingoism, although we make no apology for the Union Jack, for our loyalty to the Crown and for pride in the edifice which British enterprise has built up. We all know that the strength of Britain lies in the strength and unity of the Empire and that, in turn, the British Empire is and must remain the chief citadel of democratic freedom in the world.

Is it too much to hope that all prejudices may be forgotten on this Empire Day, May 24, and that every education authority, every school and every parent in the Empire will make this day the occasion for impressing upon the children that "the British Empire means justice, freedom and peace"?

From this simple beginning—an Empire-wide observance of Empire Day—we could with greater confidence proceed to build a Youth Movement covering all countries of the Empire, which would aim at the physical and mental training of its future citizens, and would, I am convinced, be immeasurably more potent than the corresponding movements in Germany and Italy. By such means we may slowly but surely re-direct the erring footsteps of mankind into the paths of true civilization, progress and peace.

President, Empire Day Movement.

On This Date

By FRED WILLIAMS

Tomorrow will be an important anniversary in the annals of female education in Ontario. It was on May 28, 1879 (sixty years ago), that the first woman student was admitted to the medical classes at Queen's University, Kingston. Prior to that women who wanted to study medicine had to cross the border to the United States, but after Queen's opened its doors there was a change and Canadian girls with medical ambition were able to study at home.

A few years later a women's medical college was opened in Toronto, a college with but three students at first. It continued to function for 22 years and proved to the doubters of that age, when "women's work was in the home," the fitness of women for medical service, both at home and in the mission field.

Its closing came as a result of the opening of the classes of Toronto University to women students on a parity with men. Dr. Stowe Gullem, the founder of the medical college, while lamenting its closing, recognized the benefits which have come from co-education.

Sunshine Shafts

A Scottish student was asked by a professor, in the course of a viva voce examination, how he would discover a fool. "By the questions he would ask," was the reply.

Mrs. Timkin: "I suppose you've had lots of new dishes since your chef arrived?"

Mrs. Simkin: "Yes, almost a complete new dinner service."

A commercial traveller, looking at the dingy shop, asked the shopkeeper: "How in the world do you make a go of things at all?"

The tradesman pointed to the other end of the shop and said: "You see that fellow there? Well, he works for me and I can't pay him; so in two years he gets the shop. Then I work for him until I get it back."

One night a young man, saying "Good-bye" to his fiance, was leaning on the garden gate. "I'm going to ask you a great favor," the girl said hesitatingly. "It is already granted," he answered. "A very great favor," she repeated, as if doubtful of the propriety of saying what it was. "You're sure that you won't think it presumptuous or forward of me?" "Never!" he assured her. "Only tell me what I can do for you." "Well," she replied, "would you mind not leaning on that gate? Father painted it this afternoon and he will be awfully provoked if he has to paint it again."

ROSE BUSHES COMMEMORATE ROYAL VISIT

300 Planted In 12 Beds In Calgary's Memorial Park

By SAM G. ROSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CALGARY, May 27.—Roses will bloom amid monuments to heroes in Calgary's Memorial Park to commemorate the visit of King George and Queen Elizabeth Friday.

Three hundred rose bushes have been planted in 12 beds in the park under direction of W. R. Reader, park superintendent, to commemorate the first visit by reigning sovereigns to the city of the foothills.

War memorials in the park pay tribute to those who founded Calgary; to the dead of the South African war and to the dead of the Great War. Besides the rose garden of 12 beds other roses have been planted elsewhere in the park.

SPOT OF REST

Bordered by busy streets and a heavily-treed residential avenue, Memorial Park is a spot of rest for scores who luncheon downtown and take a brief walk. Many an old timer has reclined on its benches to swap yarns with cronies about early days in the frontier town.

Founding of Fort Calgary in Calgary in August, 1875, when "F" troop of the Royal North West Mounted Police under command of Inspector E. A. Brisebois, reached the junction of the Bow and Elbow rivers is commemorated by a stone cairn in the park.

THREE MONUMENTS

Nearby is the monument erected by Calgary citizens in tribute to those who died in the South African war in 1899-1902. Two monuments honor the dead of the Great War—one erected by the Colonel MacLeod chapter of the I.O.D.E. and the other the Cenotaph erected by Calgary citizens.

The route of the Royal Procession took Their Majesties past the park Friday. Trees were out in leaf. Flowers bloomed. The rose bushes planted to mark the Royal Visit shoved their roots deep into the nourishing soil. They will bloom later to recall the historic visit.

KING'S PORTRAIT IN N. Y. ARMORIES

NEW YORK, May 27.—As a token of the friendship between Great Britain and the United States, an original portrait of the King in the full dress uniform of an admiral has been hung in the 107th United State Infantry (old Seventh Regiment) armory here.

The portrait, painted by Frank Beresford, noted British artist, was unveiled by Sir Ronald Lindsay, British ambassador to the United States. Presentation of the portrait was sponsored by L. Charles Wallach, British industrialist and art collector.

Colorful ceremonies attended the unveiling, including a review of the regiment by Sir Ronald and a parade of 50 British Great War veterans before 10 stands of dominions' colors.

His Majesty sent his good wishes to Colonel Ralph Tobin and the 107th. Both the Canadian Club and the Canadian Society were represented at the ceremony.

DUTCH TO CURB UNSAFE PRESS

AMSTERDAM, May 27.—A bill to alter the Dutch penal code so a complete prohibition can be praced on newspapers and other periodicals "repeatedly endangering the safety of the state" or the public order and authority has been submitted by the government to the second chamber.

Major And Minor Notes

By John Oliver

Leading the song hit parade in this country today is that world-wide favorite God Save the King. Second in the hit parade is O, Canada. With less than a week to go before Their Majesties King George and Queen Elizabeth visit the city, naturally that event is the one that is uppermost in the minds of all at present. That Their Majesties will receive a welcome here that will compare with those given elsewhere along their highly successful visit to the Dominion, goes without saying. In view of the fact that there will be tremendously large numbers of visitors from rural parts here on that day, it is comforting to know that about 18 bands will be spread along the route. That music is the best method of keeping up the spirits of the crowd goes without saying and it has been amply demonstrated on many occasions. From Washington comes word that when Their Majesties visit the United States capital, there will be bands and more bands. The recent visit of the president of a South American republic saw a parade in Washington which served more or less as a dress rehearsal for Their Majesties' visit.

John Oliver

Experts studied the parade and then analyzed motion pictures of the event. They came to the conclusion that when King George and Queen Elizabeth visit Washington there should be "more bands and less delay." A despatch states that the army and state department experts concluded "there was not enough band music along the line of the parade." Thus, there will be more bands.

It is to be hoped that those responsible for the musical portion of the ceremonies will see that there is plenty of music. While it is hard on the bandsmen to keep playing for long periods at a time, it is hoped that extra efforts will be made on this one great occasion to put forth a little extra effort, as with the long wait that must take place before many spectators see Their Majesties, the bands can do more than anything else to while away the time and also to rouse enthusiasm, which of course, will reach its peak when the royal visitors arrive. So, go to it, "good old band," and make a valuable contribution to the cause.

Mrs. Ernest Meaden, president of the Women's Musical club and secretary of the Celebrity Series of concerts which the club is sponsoring in the 1939-1940 season, states that Mary Munn, famous blind pianist, has been engaged for the club's guest recital, to be held on the first meeting of the club in January of 1940. The soloist has been widely acclaimed wherever she has appeared. She will play in Montreal, among other points, on her way west.

In view of the coming repeat performance by the Edmonton Civic Opera society of Sigmund Romberg's glamorous romantic operetta, The Desert Song at the Empire theatre on June 1, 2 and 3, it is interesting to note that Warner Brothers, Hollywood picture moguls, are planning a new sound version of this widely popular work. The Desert Song was one of the first operettas to be transferred to the sound screen. With John Boles as The Red Shadow and Carlotta King as Margot the picture played here several times and was rated highly.

Information to hand is that Dennis Morgan probably will be cast as The Red Shadow in the re-make. The only other contender for the role apparently, is Allen Jones. He is probably to be ruled out because he has signed a long-term contract with Paramount. One of his pictures with Paramount will be entitled Victor Herbert and will deal with the life and works of this great composer, conductor and cellist. The life and works of Victor Herbert will afford opportunities seldom equalled in the films and Paramount can be relied upon to put forth every effort to tdo justice to Herbert, whose music is more generally popular than that of any other American composer, past or present.

With Their Majesties King George and Queen Elizabeth in this country, interest has turned to a dance highly popular in England, entitled The Chestnut Tree, which is accompanied by a modern version of an old song. The dance is widely popular and supplanted The Lambeth Walk. Additional interest in this dance is contributed by the fact that Jaromir Weinberger, Czech composer, whose opera Schwanda, der Dudelsackpfeifer, or in other words, Schwanda the Bag-Pipe Player, is one of the most successful contemporary operas, has composed a new work, a set of variations and a fugue on the same chestnut tree song that serves as the basis for the now popular dance.

Weinberger's Polka and Fugue from Schwanda is a popular work with symphony orchestras. His new composition is entitled Under the Spreading Chestnut Tree. It was written for the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra and is dedicated to the society and to its brilliant conductor, John Barbirolli, who has conducted the Weinberger Polka and Fugue on many occasions. Weinberger composed this music last February and March. It will be given its world premiers at the opening concert of the next Philharmonic season at Carnegie hall on Oct. 12, with Mr. Barbirolli conducting. The orchestra has the composer's permission to perform the work as frequently as desired.

Weinberger's music was inspired by a news reel which he saw last summer in Southern France. The picture showed King George at a boys' camp singing and laughing with his youthful subjects in democratic simplicity. They sang a "gesture song" which Weinberger has described as "an amazing, wonderful tune." It is this melody which forms the theme of the new variation cycle.

The variations capped by the fugue are entitled respectively Her Majesty's Virginal, The Madrigalists, La Dame Noire, Scottish Highlanders, Pastorale, Mr. Weller Sr. Discusses Widows With His Son, Samuel Weller, Esq., "and Sarabande for Princess Elizabeth, Electress Palatine and Queen of Bohemia." Weinberger is now in New York and he decided to dedicate his new work to the Philharmonic and Mr. Barbirolli after hearing the orchestra, under Mr. Barbirolli give a masterly performance of his Polka and Fugue from Schwanda.

Town or village school duets: 1, Florence Vikse and Valerie Hoover, Donalda; 2, Catherine Morrison and Irene Ericson, Stettler; 3, Sylvia Johnson, Hazel Rund, Donalda.

High school duets: 1, Bernice Naylor and Ruth Naylor, Mirror; 2, Jean McCorkindale and Mildred Walker, Cora Lynn; 3, Mavorette White and Norma White, Mirror.

KILLAM

C. E. Fee Elected President Killam Board of Trade

Some 25 citizens of Killam met in the town office recently to organize a board of trade with C. E. Fee as president, N. S. Johnson vice-president; M. Leonard as secretary-treasurer. The following members were named to the executive: C. Nash, D. V. York, and W. Grant, Sr. Arrangements were made to have a children's sports day on May 20 and June 7. The regular sports day will be held on July 12.

Mrs. H. George was elected president of the C.W.L. at a recent meeting with Mrs. R. Gaume named first vice-president; Mrs. Ed. Kueber, second vice-president; Mrs. V. Justice, third vice-president; Mrs. R. Simons, recording secretary; Mrs. Gaume, corresponding secretary; Mrs. J. Edwards, treasurer, and Mrs. Len George, Mrs. Elmo Gaume and Mrs. Ted George as councillors.

CAMROSE

Funeral services were held at Camrose recently from the Baptist church for Emanuel Weisser, 56, a resident of Camrose since 1901. Surviving are his wife, five daughters, Mrs. Arthur Geber and Mrs. Ted Miller, both of Camrose, and Janet Mildred and Phyllis at home; one son, Paul, at home; two sisters, Mrs. Fred Schmitke, of Camrose, and Mrs. Lydia Wolfe, in the United States; five brothers, Christ, of Sifton, and Matt, John, Jake and Adolph, all in the United States, and 12 grandchildren. Interment followed in the German Baptist church cemetery northwest of Camrose.

LOUGHEED

Mrs Caroline Thoresch, oldest pioneer of the Lougheed district, passed away recently and funeral services were held from the Norwegian Lutheran church. She was 68 years of age and came to the district in 1905. She is survived by six daughters, five sons, two sisters, one brother and 25 grandchildren.

VETERAN

Recent rains have proved of great benefit to crops in the district that were getting badly in need of moisture. Wheat seeding in the district has been completed and oats and barley are almost 90 per cent finished. Summerfallowing is well started.

McLENNAN

The McLennan I.O.D.E. Women's Institute and the Elks have agreed to serve supper in the Elks hall to children coming in from the west and north on special trains on June 1. They will spend about one hour in McLennan between trains.

PROVOST

The mixing station at Provost for grasshopper poison has not been opened to date because of a lack of demand for the poison. Weather during the past two weeks has not been favorable for the hatching of eggs and no reports of hopper activities in the district have been received.

INNISFAIL

Junior Dramatic Club Presents Three Fine Plays

Sponsored by the Junior Dramatic club three splendid plays were presented recently by the local high school. Grade 9 offered the play "On Vengeance Height," while Grade 10 played "Two Crooks and a Lady." Grade 11 presented a play entitled "The Wedding." All three plays were splendidly done. Mrs. Dr. Dorsey was the adjudicator and gave the shield to Grade 10 as the best all round play and selected Miss Dorothy Bauman, the leading lady in Grade 9, as the best actress and entitled to the gold medal offered by the High School Sorority club.

SYLVAN LAKE

As usual the opening of the Sylvan Lake resort season was held on Victoria Day and a large number of visitors from adjacent points attended. The number of visitors was much smaller than usual because of the preparations being made to attend the visit of Their Majesties to Edmonton on June 2 and because many were on their way to Calgary to see the King and Queen there on Friday.

FAUST

Fishing on the Lesser Slave Lake has not been very good this season with fishermen having a hard time to find the fish "biting." Rain during the past few days has proved of great value, aiding the parched vegetation and helping to halt the scattered bush fires.

BASHAW

Approximately 95 per cent of the wheat and 50 per cent of the oats and barley in the Bashaw district has been sown. The recent rain was the heaviest in a number of years and was of great benefit to the crops which were badly in need of moisture.

Ludovico, Duke of Milan, was so fond of fresh fruit that he invented a travelling fruit garden, so that he could pluck fruit from the trees brought directly to his dining table.

10,000 PERSONS SEE RULERS AT BASSANO FRIDAY

BASSANO, Alta., May 27.—King George and Queen Elizabeth waved a cheery greeting from the observation car of the royal train Friday as it made a brief stop in this irrigation area 100 miles east of Calgary.

There was no ceremony during the brief stop. More than 10,000 farmers, their wives and children extended for a quarter of a mile in fan formation around the rear of the train and along the tracks.

The first person to greet the royal couple was James Hamilton of Bassano, a returned soldier. Departing from customary procedure, Hamilton was not presented to Their Majesties, but was simply delegated by a citizens' committee to step up and say hello on their behalf.

Mayor W. Playfair welcomed the royal visitors, and Mrs. Hamilton Smate, leader of the Girl Guides, was introduced. A band played "God Save the King" as the train pulled out for Calgary.

Great White Father Greets Indians In Calgary Encampment

By GORDON M. BATEMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CALGARY, May 27.—Queen Elizabeth received a beaded Indian medicine bag when Her Majesty and King George made a brief stop at the Indian encampment here Friday on their procession through the city.

The encampment was "the prettiest thing I have ever seen," said the Queen. And the King was "very pleased to meet you all."

Two Indian children — Holy Spring, a boy, and First Snake, a girl—stepped from the encampment of brightly-colored tepees as the royal car came to a stop. Excitedly they presented the bag to Her Majesty.

COLORFUL SETTING

"The Queen said 'It was the prettiest thing I have ever seen'," said Percy Little Dog, medicine man of the Bloods, first headman to greet Their Majesties. And what did the King say, he was asked. "'I'm very glad to meet you all'," Percy added.

During the five-minute stop in front of the 30 tepees, His Majesty greeted Duck Chief, head of the Indian encampment and a direct link with the final peace treaty that made all Canadian Indians wards of Queen Victoria.

Duck Chief wore the medal given him shortly after the signing of Treaty No. 7, the Blackfoot treaty, and another to celebrate the visit of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York, later King George V and Queen Mary, the present King's parents.

WHOOPED IT UP

White Head Chief, medicine man of the Blackfoot tribe, and father of the two children who made the presentation, whooped it up as the royal car came to a stop. It seemed to be the signal for the children who later were called back onto buffalo robes to speak to the Queen.

Duck Chief, 75-year-old son of Running Rabbit, signatory of the 1877 treaty, gave His Majesty a message that he had always wanted to meet the Great White Father, particularly after he had heard the King was coming across the water to see his Indian children.

As the stop along Calgary's eight-mile procession route ended, Their Majesties stood in the Royal car for several minutes in acknowledgement of the cheering throng.

TOM-TOMS BEAT

Tom-tom beating of five Blackfoot braves, horseback riders of the Blackfoot, Bloods, Peigans, Sarcees and Stonies, squaws in elaborate colored dress, minor chiefs in beaded buckskin clothing with headgear of black and white eagle feathers presented a colorful picture.

The scene was different than when the King's father came to Calgary in 1901. At that time 5,000 Indians staged a pow-wow, and braves, their near-naked bodies shivering in the wind, heard their chiefs tell that they were satisfied with the peace treaty.

CROWD HINDERS PLAN

As the chiefs, Yellow Horn of the Peigans, grandson of the famous Red Crow and grandnephew of Joe Crowfoot, peace-treaty leader; David Bearspaw of the Stonies and Dave Crow Child of the Sarcees, stood around Their Majesties, it was expected they would lead him into the main teepee for a peace-pipe smoke. But the milling crowd appeared to discourage it.

Before the Royal party arrived, Duck Chief, through his interpreter and son, Haughtun Running Rabbit, informed the press several gifts would be presented inside the teepee.

A head-dress of 60 feathers and a pretty beaded belt were brought to Calgary in hopes of making the presentation and Duck Chief's wife made two pairs of moccasins for the princesses, in England, said Haughtun. But the articles were not brought out of the teepee as the chiefs lined up.

CALGARY, May 27.—A milling crowd that jammed around Their Majesties at the Indian encampment here prevented the Indians from telling King George VI that they would like to know him as "Chief White Buffalo Chief," said interpreter Percy Little Dog last night.

"We could not make the great father a chief because he is chief of chiefs of all his Indian people," added Percy, head medicine man of the Bloods.

"But, we thought that since he is known to his white subjects as King George VI, we, his Indian children, should know him by an Indian name, Tza-Con-Ni Sto-Pi.

Postal Employees To Hold Rose Show At Portland, Ore.

Annual National Airmail Rose Show for Postal Employees will be held at Portland, Oregon, during the Rose Festival being held June 7 to 10.

Stamp and cover collectors interested in receiving souvenirs or covers from the show should send their envelopes, stamped and self-addressed to Myron F. McCamley, 2135 North Alberta Street, Portland, Oregon.

Standard size envelopes, without heavy enclosures, should be used; the address to be kept to the right side of the envelope to allow ample space for the cachet. Covers must reach the cachet director not later than June 5. The cachet will be in red, white and blue

Superseded

Canada's governor-general, Lord Tweedsmuir, above, is George VI's permanent representative in the Dominion when the King is not there. The visit of the King and Queen is the first time that any Dominion Governor-General has been superseded by his royal principal.

HE SAVED BRIDGE; IS GIVEN AWARD

LONDON, May 27. — Maurice Childs, dapper Chiswick barber, who saved Hammersmith Bridge March 9 from destruction by heaving a smoking I.R.A. time bomb into the Thames, has been awarded the Medal of the Civil Division of the Order of the British Empire. A second bomb, which exploded, damaged the bridge considerably.

Criticize C.C.F.

Roper, and the membership affiliated to the Central Council of C.C.F. Clubs, with headquarters at 610 Centre street, that the matter in dispute would not be ventilated in the press. However, at the first opportunity, what was obviously a prepared statement by Messrs. Garland and Roper, was published in the Calgary daily papers.

That statement was incorrect and misleading. The truth is that practically the entire membership of the clubs affiliated to the Calgary Central Council was expelled, and not merely a few members of the executive as was indicated in this and other reports. The council organized by Messrs. Garland and Roper was set up from a few individuals and does not represent the Calgary C.C.F. clubs.

The expulsion order is not recognized by the Calgary Central Council or by the membership. Neither the Federal nor Provincial executives have the constitutional right to expel individual members or clubs. This power lies with clubs, central councils of clubs, and with conventions.

ROOT OF TROUBLE

Consciously or otherwise, reports have been so phrased as to lead people to believe that the whole point at issue is between the Calgary branch of the Labor party and the C.C.F. clubs. It is quite true that difficulty has been found in arriving at a satisfactory basis of cooperation between these two parties, but the root of the trouble lies much deeper than that. It is bureaucratic control that the clubs are resisting.

We insist that the provincial executive of the C.C.F. has no moral right to impose upon the membership a constitution drawn up by twelve executive members, and not yet ratified by either a convention or reference to the membership. The action of the executive is also a distinct contradiction to C.C.F. provincial policy, written by Mr. William Irvine. On the first page the question is posed: "What is the difference between the C.C.F. and all other political parties?" The answer given is: "The C.C.F. is democratic in that the rank and file of its membership determines its policies and chooses its candidates for elections without interference on the part of any official or external authority."

This principle has been violated, so there is clearly only one possible course that the Central Council of C.C.F. Clubs can pursue, and that is to continue the fight for democratic control within the organization.

President Central Council

TANNER COMES BACK MONDAY FROM MISSION

Following a visit to England in which interviews were held with the British Admiralty, government officials and others interested, Hon. N. E. Tanner, minister of lands and mines, is expected to return here on Monday, June 5. Mr. Tanner headed a delegation which crossed the Atlantic to discuss possibilities of use for Turner Valley oil by British interests.

In the party which went to England also were W. F. Knode, chairman of the Alberta Gas Conservation Commission, and Mrs. Knode; Walter S. and Mrs. Campbell of this city, and Dr. G. S. Hume, Dominion government geologist.

Among the matters discussed were the construction of a pipeline from Turner Valley to the head of the Great Lakes, to pump the Valley product for use by Britain.

TWO MEMBERS ROYAL PARTY CATCH TROUT

By R. K. CARNEGIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

BANFF, Alta., May 27.—It's the early fisherman who gets the fish.

Lord Eldon and Captain Michael Adeane, enthusiastic fishermen members of the Royal party, left the hotel at 5 a.m., M.S.T., today, and drove by motor four miles to third Vermilion lake.

With guides N. Williams and Herb. Ashley, they went out in boats, and fishing with dry flies, caught 30 eastern brook trout. They returned to the hotel before noon.

This is ordinarily closed season for brook trout, but Banff is situated in the national park under the supervision of hte Dominion government, which has given the Royal party special permission to fish for this type of trout.

Pioneer Farmer Of Stony Plain Dies On Friday

One of the early pioneers of Stony Plain, having farmed in the district for the past 32 years, George John Darimont, died suddenly at his home Friday. He was 54 years of age. Born in Verviers, Belgium, he came to Canada 32 years ago, immediately settling in the Stony Plain district. He was well known and respected there.

Surviving are his wife, one son, Raymond, a daughter, Gabrielle, three brothers, Paul and Tony of Stony Plain and Fernand of Victoria, B.C. Funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. Tuesday from St. Joachim's church. Interment will follow in the Edmonton Catholic cemetery. Connelly & McKinley are in charge of arrangements.

Rates Increased

LONDON, May 27.—A five per cent increase in passenger rates on rail lines serving London suburbs was authorized by a court order today.

Millions See Parade

While an endless multitude of loyal subjects looks on and cheers every inch of the journey, the car bearing the King and Queen moves slowly through the streets of Montreal, largest of the many centres their majesties will visit in Canada. Heaped up at every vantage point French and English Canadians are seen here in the Place d'Armes as the procession passes. Majestic Notre Dame cathedral is in the right background.

Waiting for Glimpse of Royalty

Scenes similar to this which was photographed at Cornwall, marked the passage of the Royal train throughout the entire distance from Ottawa to Toronto. Though Kingston was the only scheduled stop, every station was crowded by people hoping to see Their Majesties.

HIGH OFFICERS PLAN TO ATTEND LEGION PARLEY

Regnald Bower, O.B.E., general secretary of the Canadian Legion and Walter Woods, administrator of the War Veterans' Allowance act, both of Ottawa, will attend the annual provincial convention of the Canadian Legion to open here next Wednesday. More than 300 delegates are expected to attend.

On Monday and Tuesday, preliminary business discussions will be held prior to the opening of the convention. The zoning committee will meet Monday morning, while on Tuesday the resolutions, ways and means and provincial council committees will meet. The resolutions committee is expected to deal with Nazi propaganda in the west, Veterans' Allowance Act, War Widows' Allowance Act and other Legion matters.

Stunt Driver To Stage Exhibition In City On June 1

Famous stunt star and dare-devil automobile driver, "Flash" Williams, who has demolished more than 1,500 cars during his career of death-defying and neck-risking thrills, will be at the Edmonton Exhibition Grounds on June 1 to bring the thrills to the Royal Visit crowd.

The stunt star not only turns cars over sideways, but turns them over end on end. He dives over ramps at 70 miles an hour and plunges from an elevated platform into a blazing house at the same terrific speed.

Although Williams is the ace stunt man on the continent he holds endorsements of safety councils of Canada and the United States and Mexico earned for his demonstrations of "how not to drive a car."

The most common failing on the road, according to Mr. Williams, is lack of courtesy, who advises the use of the Golden Rule in driving.

Two Princesses Splash In Pool

WINDSOR, England, May 27. — Pricesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose splashed in the Royal Lodge swimming pool today in their first open-air dip of 1939. The princesses came to Windsor for the Whitsuntide week-end and for relief from a minor heatwave—several consecutive days with the mercury near 75 degrees.

Proud Flag Bearer

Well schooled in the proper way to show his loyalty to Their Majesties, "Caesar," his two flags borne proudly, was in the front rank of the crowd that welcomed the King and Queen to the Christie Street hospital, Toronto. The honor of wearing a veteran's beret was obviously not lost on him, as the picture reveals.

Round Trip Tickets To The Moon Cancelled As Professor Bares Facts

By LEON EDEL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL, May 27—Wars of the worlds, trips to Mars, rockets to the moon—utopias created by Jules Verne and H. G. Wells—were punctuated in a 10-minute address by an Edmonton professor before the Royal Society of Canada.

Dr. J. W. Campbell told a group of Canadian savants it would take a rocket the size of a giant mountain to carry any earth-dwellers to the earth's satellite.

1,000,000 TONS

"For every pound of matter returning from such a trip 1,000,000 tons would have to start out to provide mass for speed control," Dr. Campbell said.

He explained his paper had arisen from an alleged recent statement by an astronomer that "The possibility of travelling to the earth's satellite in a rocket does not seem so remote now as the realization of the television dream did less than a century ago, considering the scientific principles involved."

TWO KINDS SEEN

Rockets flying by an observer, he said, would have to be either one of two kinds. One was where the part of the rocket occupied by the observer is repeatedly fired from the remaining main body or where the observers remains with the main body and it is propelled by firing of portions of itself.

Socreds Entertain In City Tuesday: Films To Be Shown

Central Social Credit Group is entertaining the West Edmonton Associated Groups at the I.O.O.F. Hall, 103 street, commencing at 8 p.m. on Tuesday next, it was announced Saturday. In the associated groups are the Calder, Westmount, Jasper Place, Oliver and 107 avenue groups.

Hon. D. B. Mullen, minister of agriculture will address the gathering.

A splendid program of entertainment has been provided. Floyd M. Baker, M.L.A., will show a series of lantern slides on this province. A magician will give a demonstration of his art and a motion picture will be shown. Several musical items are also on the program.

Cyclist Bruised

Dennis Timbys, 9732 91 street, suffered bruises and shock when his bicycle collided with a truck allegedly driven by John Harucki, of Radway, at the intersection of 96 street and 106A avenue about 9 p.m. Friday.

NEW YORK, May 27—The condition of Ignace J. Paderewski the pianist, resting in an hotel apartment following a slight heart attack, was described by a secretary today as "fine."

Veil Of The Virgin

CHARTERS, May 27—The "Veil of the Virgin," said to have been worn by the Mother of Christ, has been at Charters for almost 1,100 years, is one of the cathedral's most cherished relics, and attracts hundreds of pilgrims monthly.

That Painted Look

NEW YORK, May 27—If there's one time a woman doesn't want to look "painted," it's on her wedding day and that's the one day she's likely to look that way unless she's careful, warns Betty Clarke, beauty feature writer.

Medal For Cow

KITCHENER, Ont., May 27 — Rower's Royal Betty, Jersey cow owned by the Walterloo county house of refuge, has been awarded a silver medal certificate by the Canadian Jersey cattle club. The cow completed a junior two-year record of 9,820 pounds of milk, 489 pounds of butter fat, with an average test of 4.96 per cent in 305 days

KING, QUEEN TO TAKE RIDE IN C. P. R. ENGINE

VANCOUVER, May 27—Canadian Pacific Railway officials announced today the King and Queen will ride in a pusher-type locomotive attached to the rear of the royal train for 20 miles in the Rocky Mountains Sunday.

A set of royal blue steps to be used by Their Majesties to board the locomotive at Beavermouth, B. C., 63 miles west of Field, will be taken aboard the train at Field as the Royal party enters British Columbia.

Officials here said they believed the King had asked to ride in a "helper" locomotive, used to aid trains over the steep mountain grades.

Citizen Thanked For Composition Sent To Royalty

W. M. Birks of the Canadian Touists' association here, received a letter this week from the royal party in which he was thanked on behalf of Their Majesties for the words he wrote to the music of the National Anthem.

Typed on the royal train letterhead, and signed by M. E. Adeane of the royal suite the letter says:

"I am commanded to thank you for your letter of May 17 with which you enclose the words of a verse which you have composed in honor of Her Majesty the Queen. Although Their Majesties do not propose to make any change in the words of the National Anthem, they much appreciate the loyal sentiments which have prompted you to write these lines."

Troops At Cairo

CAIRO, May 27.—Three batteries of Royal Horse Artillery will arrive here tomorrow from India aboard the transport Dorsetshire. They will be stationed in Egypt in accordance with the plan for reorganization of Indian and Near East defence forces.

Jap Peer Dies

TOKYO, May 27—Kenkichi Kagami, 70, member of the house of peers and former chairman of the board of directors for the steamship company Nippon Yusen Kaisha, died here today.

TRIO YOUTHFUL GUNMEN KIDNAP BANKER, WIFE

Obtain $75 In Robbery, But Fail Bigger Sum—Escape

DEWEY, Okla., May 27.—Three youthful gunmen kidnapped a banker and his wife early Friday and two of them obtained $75 after failing to gain access to the contents of two safes containing more than $13,000. All escaped.

The trio, masked, accosted O. A. Patridge, vice-president of the First National bank, and his wife, upon their return home last midnight. One cut the telephone connection and stood guard over Mrs. Patridge, and the other two took the husband to the bank and demanded he open two safes.

"I let them in because I feared for my life," the banker said, explaining he didn't know the safe combinations. The bandits threatened to kill Partridge, but agreed to leave after he gave them $75.

NEWS POSTERS ALARM LONDON

LONDON, May 27.—Sir George Broadbridge is defending his stand in the House of Commons when he asked the government to impose some sort of restriction on press publication of alarming news—but he is mad at the poster writers, not news writers.

Sir George, Conservative House member for the City of London, told an audience he had received numerous letters from physicians and others noting a considerable increase in nervous complaints during crisis times and attributing them to "scare" tactics of some papers. He hit at the posters newspapers place on the streets as a substitute for the North American eight-column streamer on newspaper front pages.

TURKEY STILL $1 PER POUND IN THE YUKON

OTTAWA, May 27—The only people out of work in the Yukon are too old or unfit to work, Mrs. George Black (Con., Yukon) revealed last night in the house of commons during discussion of estimates.

The men who went north in 1898 were getting older, their health was failing, but packers still lost horses to wolves and coyotes and turkey was $1 a pound.

"We are so far, so isolated, I sometimes think the government hardly understands our needs," Mrs. Black said. If Mines Minister Crerar would fly up there and spend a week in the territory he would have a better understanding of the country than any minister preceding him.

Machine Gunner Of War Dies In Hospital Here

Member of the Canadian Corps Association who saw service in France with the Motor Machine Gun Corps, C. F. Peterson, 47, of 10325 124 street, died Friday in hospital here.

Mr. Peterson was born in Truro, Nova Scotia and came to Edmonton in 1923. He operated the Glenora Confectionery here.

He leaves his wife and two sons, Ben and Allan, at home; his father, Benjamin F. Peterson at Pittsfield, Mass.; sister, Mrs. Leon D. Murray, Battleboro, Vermont; brother, John Maxwell Peterson, Pittsfield.

Funeral arrangements are in charge of Andrews and Stretton and members of the Canadian Corps are invited to the service.

Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at 2 p.m. from Christ church.

Outstanding Royal Edition

Unique in every way, is the special supplement of The Edmonton Bulletin which is being prepared to mark the visit of Their Majesties, King George and Queen Elizabeth, to Edmonton.

Timed for publication on the day of their arrival in Edmonton, Friday, June 2nd, The Bulletin's Royal Edition, will be distributed along with the regular issue of the newspaper, which will be made up of three sections.

A feature of the edition will be an exclusive full-page photograph of Their Majesties on front cover. The section will also contain unpublished portrait and action shots of the Royal Family purchased by The Bulletin for this particular issue.

Special writers will contribute colorful news stories covering the Royal Party's tour of Canada prior to arrival in Edmonton, many of which will be accompanied by pictures.

An outstanding "highlight" of this Edition will be the many messages of welcome to the Royal couple from the manufacturers of "Made-in-Alberta" products.

Due to the historic nature of the occasion, The Bulletin anticipates an extra heavy demand for this special issue, which will be treasured for years to come, and suggests that residents of Central and Northern Alberta, who are not regular readers of this newspaper, should arrange to reserve their copies well in advance. Address your order for extra copies to The Edmonton Bulletin, Circulation Department, Jasper Avenue, Edmonton, Alberta.

Young America Is Going For The King, Queen in Big Way

By THOMAS WAYLING
Edmonton Bulletin Staff Correspondent

ON BOARD ROYAL PRESS TRAIN, May 27.—Young America is going for the King and Queen in a big way. From Port Arthur westward young America has trekked north over the border to help Canada welcome her King and Queen.

There were six American young people's bands at Port Arthur; fourteen in Winnipeg, many in Regina, some in Moose Jaw, others in Medicine Hat.

It isn't just a picnic for them. They need not travel from 50 to 400 miles, as they are doing, just for a picnic.

NEW CONCEPTION

They come to see the King and Queen, but having seen them they are returning to the United States with a new conception of what the throne means in the British scheme of things.

Instead of exalted personages surrounded by an entourage decked out like Mrs. Astor's plush horse, they find an English lady and gentleman who smile at them who talk to them, and treat them as their own president does.

FRIENDLY FOLK

They note the absence of ornate uniforms gold lace and whatnot. They find there are no squads of secret service men to keep them back. They realize that the greatest King and Queen in all the world are friendly likeable folk, who treat them as visiting cousins and do not pass them by.

The Canadians are giving the American visitors a marvellous welcome. They do not push them in the background but share the good places and spaces with them. The place of honor on the platform at Medicine Hat was given to the Big Sandy band from Montana a group of young girls smartly uniformed in white and royal blue.

MORE IN EVIDENCE

In Eastern Canada the American visitors are lost in the vast crowds. In Western Canada they are more in evidence. Western Canada seems also to make them part of the family for this great re-union.

These young Americans are the vanguard of the millions of Americans who will welcome Their Majesties in Washington and New York. What these young Americans think of the British Monarchs has already been told in the American press by word and picture, and the report is as fine as it could be.

HUMAN QUANTITIES

There may be heart-burnings and squabblings among the Washington socialites but it is becoming increasingly evident that Their Majesties are not interested in society values, but in human quantities. The big furore in the United States will commence when the King and Queen of their own desire go in among the American people.

Young Americans say: "Gee, your King's a great guy" and "The Queen's the loveliest ever."

Calgary Nurse Misses Chance To Be Presented

CALGARY, May 27—Their Majesties left Calgary last night with one disappointment. An official request that Mrs. H. C. Ironside, president of the Overseas Nursing Sisters' Association, be presented was not fulfilled because Mrs. Ironside could not be located during the two-hour visit.

OLDEST WAR VETERAN MAY MEET RULERS

DUNCAN, B.C., May 27.—Canada's oldest war veteran, who fought in the siege of Lucknow as a boy of 10, would like to meet the King and Queen at Victoria, May 30 but if it can't be arranged he's satisfied to sit home and pray for them.

While friends worked to have him presented, C. G. Palmer, 92-year-old son of General Henry Palmer who defended Muchee Bhawn Fort in the historic siege, said if his presentation could not be arranged "without trouble, I am content. I can sit here at home and pray God save the King and Queen."

Sitting in his home overlooking Lake Quamichan near this Vancouver Island town, Palmer recalled the part he played in the Indian mutiny which won him a medal from Queen Victoria. He was an ammunition carrier and messenger.

He came to British Columbia in 1910 and was a member of the municipal council here for a number of years. He also served many terms as police commissioner.

To Preserve Order

JERUSALEM, May 27.—A conference of 50 Jewish organizations today decided to ask that a public safety committee be formed to preserve order as four new deaths occurred from Holy Land strife.

Hindu Newspaper Warns Against Any Dealings With Nazis

NEW DELHI, India, May 27.—The Nationalist newspaper Hindustan Times said Friday that Hjalmar Schacht, former head of the German reichsbank now touring India, wants to know whether the Indian people would co-operate with Germany. The paper warned against any such co-operation.

The paper quoted Schacht as telling a Madras audience he had come to India not only to see the sights but also to study the country's future possibilities.

"Schacht would have been nearer the truth if he had added that he came here to discover what would be our attitude in the event of an European war and whether, in our anxiety to throw off the British yoke, we would be prepared to accept German help," the paper said.

"India has had abundant evidence since Hitler came to power of the Nazi methods and she has expressed her detestation of them in unmeasured terms. She will betray all her spiritual heritage if she accepts help from hands reeking with blood and violence."

688 Meet Death At Firing Squads Hands In Spain

MADRID, May 27—It is officially announced the Spanish Nationalists' specially constituted councils of war and permanent military tribunals had sent 688 persons before firing squads since the fall of Madrid March 28.

The councils, formed by officers of the Madrid army of occupation, condemned 1,000 persons to death, but the sentences of 312 of them were commuted to prison terms by General Franco.

Wages In Parks

OTTAWA, May 27.—Wages paid by concessionnaires in national parks this year must be on a scale approved by the particular provincial government, Hon. T. A. Crerar, minister of mines, said last night.

Vancouver Is All Set To Welcome Rulers On Their Visit To Coast

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER, May 27—Vancouver was ready today to show itself to King George and Queen Elizabeth—not only as a Canadian city but as a part of the Pacific world.

Hundreds of thousands of citizens picked the places they will occupy on Monday's 57-mile royal route. Scottish residents got out their kilts and plaids, English county societies prepared to shout that they remember the Old Land.

But 10,000 Vancouver Chinese started celebrating today with a lantern parade and Chinatown street dancing.

They will find their own places along Monday's route, too, while 20,000 Japanese will mass on an East End street, flag-waving and cheering like their occidental neighbors.

Germans, Italians and other Europeans had separate reserved spots and hundreds planned to dress in brilliant national costumes.

KILTED SCOTS

In numbers, however, old countrymen will beat them all. Thousands of kilted Scots—complete with pipers, Highland dancers and a choir to sing "Will ye no come back again" as Their Majesties pass, will mass in Little Mountain Park. Just as many Englishmen will line Burrard Bridge.

In North and West Vancouver coast Indians will wear their native costumes.

Their Majesties arrive here at 10:00 a.m. P.S.T. Monday by train, attend a reception at the city hall an hour later, and a civic luncheon at 1:00 p.m. Before sailing for Victoria at five o'clock they will have motored through all sections of the city.

DESTROYERS ESCORT

Escorted by four Canadian destroyers and Royal Canadian Air Force planes on their 80-mile trip through the island-studded Gulf of Georgia, Their Majesties reach Victoria at 9:00 p.m. for a two-night stay at Government House as guests of Lieutenant-Governor Eric W. Hamber.

Provincial government seat, Victoria's program is more formal than Vancouver's, at the same time allowing more time for rest. The capital entertains the King and Queen longer than any other city but Ottawa.

FORMAL RECEPTIONS

Tuesday's program calls for formal receptions at the city hall and provincial legislative buildings, a long drive through the city and its environs and a provincial government luncheon at which King George will make a brief speech, broadcast to the Empire.

Wednesday morning the King and Queen board ship for Vancouver, arriving early in the afternoon. They motor to New Westminster, boarding there the royal train which carries them eastward.

CHINA PUTS IN BID FOR PEACE IN NEW PACT

GENEVA, May 27.—China put in her bid today for a place in the three-power pact under negotiation by Great Britain, Soviet Russia and France.

Dr. C. V. Wellington Koo, Chinese delegate to the League of Nations, dined with Ivan Maisky, the Russian delegate who is Ambassador to London, and sought to convince him that far eastern questions should be included in the negotiations.

Moscow alone knew whether the Chinese had any hope of success in their efforts. Maisky's aides said he could do little more himself than to transmit Dr. Koo's observations to the Kremlin.

White Slave Gang Under Law's Eyes

BUFFALO, N.Y., May 27—Canadian and United States authorities intensified their efforts to round up five members of an alleged white slave ring which operated through "a gang of young fellows" who attended dances in the Dominion and persuaded girls they met there to cross the border.

Four men and three women of the dozen indicted Thursday on charges of conspiracy to violate the United States immigration laws, were arrested Friday at Niagara Falls, Tonawanda and Lockport, N.Y.

According To Culbertson

The theory and aim of the World Bridge Olympic, held this year on April 27, is to present the rarer types of plays. There is no emphasis on coups or other advanced manoeuvres that may occur only once or twice in a lifetime. The object is to familiarize players with certain groups or families of hands. One of the most interesting, as well as most instructive, was hand No. 11, as follows:

South, dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

NORTH
♥None
♦A 7 6 5
♣K 9 8 7

WEST
♥K Q J 10 2
♦Q 8 2

EAST
♥9 8 7 6 5 4
♦10 9 4

SOUTH
♥A 3
♣A J 6

The bidding recommended by the committee was:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	2 hearts	3 spades	Pass
4 no trump	Pass	5 diamonds	Pass
5 spades	Pass	6 spades	Pass
Pass	Pass

Admittedly, other sequences of bidding might be equally acceptable and, as a matter of fact, if the contestants reached the proper six spade contract, there was no demerit for the intermediate bidding. Some masters, for example, suggested that South might cue bid the hearts (bid five hearts) over five diamonds instead of five spades. Considering that South already had made one slam try in his four no trump bid, however, I strongly feel that a cue bid would have been overly aggressive, especially since South's trump suit needed considerable solidifying by North.

West's natural opening is the heart king, and right here, at the very first trick, declarer must make a shrewd choice of plays. Analysis reveals that there is no advantage to be gained from discarding either a diamond or a club from the dummy and, indeed, either discard might seriously jeopardize the success of the contract. There is a possible finesse in both suits and, if declarer decides upon one of them and is successful, and if the suit breaks 3-3, he will not have to try the finesse in the other suit. But with abolutely nothing to go by, which suit in dummy is declarer to shorten, that is, in which suit should he attempt the finesse? Obviously, he cannot tell, and his better plan by far is to avoid guessing and put the onus on the defenders. To that end the opening lead should be ruffed in the dummy and the four card lengths in diamonds and clubs preserved. Next, a low spade should be led to the ace and, when both opponents follow, but the king fails to drop, declarer should stick to his original premise that there is nothing to be gained from shortening either diamonds or clubs in dummy and, to preserve both suit lengths, should deliberately ruff away his ace of hearts before throwing West on lead with the spade king.

Now, it will oe observed, if West exits with a diamond or a club declarer gets an automatic finesse and, by finding a 3-3 break in the other suit. West's best defense is to continue with hearts, giving declarer the opportunity to ruff in same suit, avoids a finesse in the one hand and discard in the other. As a counter-measurer, declarer should ruff in the dummy, while discarding either a club or a diamond. If he chooses the latter discard he then leads a low diamond to the king and returns the jack to the ace, then ruffs the third round of the suit. As it happens, there is a 3-3 break and dummy's fourth diamond becomes established for the discard of the club six. If the suit declared chooses to establish fails to break 3-3 he always can attempt the finesse in the other suit.

Political Science Association Closes Two-day Meeting

MONTREAL, May 27.—If the parliament of the United Kingdom were to enact legislation affecting Canada, thereby upsetting the Statute of Westminster, a Canadian court might find this legislation was not law in Canada, the Canadian Political Science association, concluding a two-day meeting at McGill university, was told Friday.

The hypothetical situation was discussed in a paper by Dean F. C. Cronkite, of the University of Saskatchewan law school, which was read before the association by Prof. F. R. Scott of McGill.

"The further prophecy is made that if an appeal is taken to the judicial committee that tribunal will agree," said Dean Cronkite.

Killed By Tree

FERNIE, B.C., May 27 — Ralph Pingatore died in hospital here Friday without regaining consciousness after being struck by a falling tree in the Jack Wilson logging camp near Fernie Thursday.

The smallest and prettiest feet are said to be those of the Scotswomen from Edinburgh, Dundee and Glasgow.

Victoria (Australia) — Inscribed with name, but second type used in 1852 and 1854 (latter is lithographed), which were of "Two-Pence" denomination and shows Queen Victoria on a throne, with high pointed back.

Virgin Islands—These are so inscribed.

Wallis and Futuna Islands—Stamps of New Caledonia overprinted "Iles Wallis et Futuna" and, in some case, surcharged with new values.

Western Australia—These are so inscribed. The Black swan figures in most of the designs.

Western Ukrainia — Austrian stamps overprinted "Ykp.H.P." and new value, or "HomTa Yka.H.Pell". Also shoield and device, in white, and initials in each corner "3."-"Y."-"H."-"P.", indicating "Western Ukrainian People Republic". Austrian stamps were overprinted with letters "C.M.T." and denomination as, "60 h." in frame.

Wurtemberg — Inscribed "Wurttemberg", "K. Wurtt Post".

Yemen—First types for domestic use must be compared to identify. Later issues are so inscribed.

Zambesia—These are so inscribed.

Zanzibar—First types were stamps of British India overprinted "Zanzibar". Stamps of British East Africa Protectorate overprinted with same name in small type. Later issues are so inscribed.

Zululand—Provisionals were regular issues of Great Britain and Natal, with the name overprinted. Later issues are so inscribed.

Edmonton Bulletin
AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER IN PUBLIC SERVICE

OUTSTANDING ROYAL EDITION

Unique in every way, is the special supplement of The Edmonton Bulletin which is being prepared to mark the visit of Their Majesties, King George and Queen Elizabeth, to Edmonton.

Timed for publication on the day of their arrival in Edmonton, Friday, June 2nd, The Bulletin's Royal Edition, will be distributed along with the regular issue of the newspaper, which will be made up of three sections.

A feature of the edition will be an exclusive full-page photograph of Their Majesties on front cover. The section will also contain unpublished portrait and action shots of the Royal Family purchased by The Bulletin for this particular issue.

Special writers will contribute colorful news stories covering the Royal Party's tour of Canada prior to arrival in Edmonton, many of which will be accompanied by pictures.

Due to the historic nature of the occasion, The Bulletin anticipates an extra heavy demand for this special issue, which will be treasured for years to come.

HONOR RETIRING VETERAN

Engineer O. T. Powers of Jasper retired from active service with honor last week, and his friends and associates tendered him a banquet and dance last Thursday evening. Officials of the road and friends from Hanna were present to extend hearty congratulations on his completing more than 23 years with the C.N.R. with an unblemished record.

He was born in Dewberry, Vt., and commenced his railway career with the Boston & Maine railroad at Newport, Vt. Coming west, he entered the service of the Canadian Northern at Vancouver and in the past 23 years he has worked over the mountain divisions and over the Hanna division.

More than 40 friends attended the banquet which was served by mine host Ernie Byrne in the station restaurant, and many of those present testfied to the ability of Mr. Powers as a railroad man and as a good citizen. He was presented with a fine gladstone bag and the good wishes of his host of friends that he may enjoy many years of good health.

He makes his home in Jasper with his daughter, Mrs. R. Blewett, but will visit for a time his three sons who reside in Detroit.

The successful affair was sponsored by the B. of L.E. at Jasper with N. Stewart as chairman, assisted by W. H. Skippen and H. Volsky. At the conclusion of the banquet dancing was enjoyed in the Masonic hall.

On C.P.R. Lines

Miss Ethel Olson of the C.P.R. district accountant's office, Calgary, and who was formerly employed in that department when it was located in Edmonton, was a visitor in the city recently.

Fine weather fortunately favored the opening of the C.P.R. Lawn Bowling Association on May 24, and an enthusiastic gathering of employees and their friends made the most of the occasion. All members are looking forward to a successful season of bowling and are anxious to have any other employees or friends interested in the game associate themselves with the organization.

NOTABLE WEDDING

Of interest to her many friends in Edmonton was the recent marriage of Miss Mabel A. Dickson to Mr. C. C. Dill, former United States senator to Washington. Miss Dickson, who is the sister of Miss Alda Dickson of the C.P.R. superintendent's office, Edmonton, and who formerly made her home in this city, was the recipient of many congratulatory messages from well-wishers on both sides of the border on the occasion of her marriage, which climaxed a successful career in the Food Research Bureau, Department of Economics, of the U.S. government.

RAILROADERS SCORED

The South Edmonton Highland games meet, held on May 24, proved successful for many sons and daughters of Canadian Pacific employees. Duncan Foster, son of C.P.R. Blacksmith D. Foster, South Edmonton, triumphed in the open professional Irish jig competition, winning the coveted first prize.

Mrs. J. Stout of Kimberley, B.C., the former Miss Margaret McDonald of Edmonton, daughter of C.P.R. Carman H. A. McDonald, captured second and third prizes in open professional dancing events.

Miss Betty Cairney, daughter of C.P.R. Hostler W. Cairney, South Edmonton, won first place in the Highland fling contest for contestants under 16 years of age.

C.P.R. Boilermaker K. Emms and Mrs. Emms, of the locomotive department, South Edmonton, left recently on a three-weeks' vacation trip to eastern Canada and United States.

The executive of the C.P.R. Tennis club announce that the courts at South Edmonton will be in first class condition for any employees and their friends who care to play this week-end.

Your Health

— By Dr. Frank McCoy

Neuritis is capable of being a very painful disorder and the pain which is such a prominent symptom drives the patient to seek relief. Such relief is best obtained by locating the cause and then removing it. Any discussion of this disorder therefore resolves itself into a study of the causes.

There are four general causes which are the most common ones and the average patient will find one or more of the following causes contributing to his trouble: First, a toxic condition may be the cause; second, the cause may lie in pressure exerted upon certain nerves by spinal subluxations; third, a focal infection may be present and be partially responsible; and fourth, a lack of vitamin B may be helping to produce the symptoms.

In my opinion, the main cause is the first one, that is, a systemic toxemia coming from the use of a faulty diet with its ensuing metabolic disturbances. Faulty dietetic habits will in time produce a faulty bodily chemistry, and this in turn, paves the way for disease. When the accumulated irritating materials gather around a nerve, or a group of nerves, the nerve reacts by the sensation of pain.

However, neuritis may result from pressure due to a mechanical cause. Thus, if some of the spinal vertebrae are slightly out of their normal positions there may be enough pressure produced to induce pain.

Insofar as the focal infections are concerned, the presence of pus pockets at the roots of teeth, diseased tonsils, or infected sinuses may act in a definite way in contributing to the perpetuation of neuritis. The poisons from such local infections may affect the general system and produce aches and pains which are only relieved when these local conditions receive proper treatment. Sometimes the relief secured is very prompt, but in other cases more time may be required before relief appears. In the latter instances, the slower recovery is an indication that time is needed for the systemic poisons to drain away.

Much as I believe that focal infections should be given any necessary treatment to clean them up, I also believe that the patient should try to find out what wrong habits of living produced such infections in the first place, and should then change these habits to better ones.

There is considerable evidence that lack of vitamin B in the diet may cause neuritis. The average person using a well balanced diet will probably get enough of the vitamin; but the patient with any stomach or intestinal trouble may not absorb enough vitamin B from his foods to keep the nerves well nourished. Sometimes in the face of moderate lack of the vitamin the patient develops aches and pains in the muscles which he can not explain and what he attributes to neuritis.

Readers who are troubled with neuritis are welcome to send for my article along this line by writing to me. Please enclose with your request a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

RIALTO
One Week Starting Today

Best picture previewed this week is "Man of Conquest," the life story of Sam Houston with Richard Dix acquitting himself creditably in the title role. Particularly outstanding are the performances of several supporting players, special praise being due Edward Ellis, Robert Armstrong, Ralph Morgan and Robert Barratt. —"Jimmie Fidler"

Sam Houston is played by Richard Dix, an actor of such proportions that the studios have trouble finding roles big enough for him, the lead in the sensational "Cimarron" being the last previous casting equal to his singularly powerful talent. The part is bigger than that, and fits him like his coonskin cap. —"Motion Picture Herald."

Mazda Lamps Easier Way To Happier Eyesight

Screwing Mazda lamp bulbs of the correct size into sockets seems like an easy way to happier eyes . . . and it is, providing your lighting fixtures are correct.

The bulbs in each living room table or floor lamp, for example, should add up to a wattage of at least 100, and preferably 150. Do they? If not, change them today! Also, if your portable lamps are I.E.S. better sight ones they will help to make your eyes healthier.

When replacing bulbs in these lamps be sure to use the size intended for them in order to get the best possible lighting results.

ELECTRIC RANGE IS IDEAL STOVE

The electrical kitchen is not only admirable, it is ideal in its application of heat. It does not steal oxygen; it does not foul the air. It is steady; it can be directed to the top, bottom or the sides of the things to be cooked, for it does not depend upon the combustion of fuel or the convection of hot air, but upon the resistance of iron to the electrical current.

Instead of having to plan so that the cooking be done when the fire is in the range, the electrical kitchen is ready at any hour of the day or night to bake or broil, set the stewpan to sizzling or the hot water urn to bubbling, to brew the 5 o'clock tea or to disconnect the midnight Welsh rabbit from the fear that the alcohol bottle is empty and all the drug stores shut up; to temper the chill of the spare bed or to warm the toes under the desk; to heat the curling iron or the smoothing iron, all these appliances being connected by a flexible wire cord to a socket in the wall whence comes the energy.

It is an exemplification of the wholesale principle; instead of 1,000 chimneys smoking at a tremendous sacrifice of coal, there need be but one big fire whose heat is turned into motion, that into electricity, and that, in turn, back to heat again.

Kilowatts Are Most Efficient Laborers Known

Kilowatts are the most efficient laborers the world has ever known. Work is the life of their being. They live only when they work. They don't watch the clock. They never heard of an eight-hour day. There isn't a lazy man among them. No task is too great and none too mean. No work is too good and any work is good enough. They are jacks of all trades and experts at each. They will perform any number of different jobs simultaneously. One kilowatt does the work of 13 men per hour for two cents.

In Des Moines, a teacher took a lamb to school so her children could see it. They had been wondering what that thing was following Mary around.

Ten Out of 10 Persons In Need Of Good Lighting

Seven out of every ten persons need glasses, but ten out of every ten persons need good lighting. The need is universal! Good lighting helps conserve normal eyesight and is especially helpful to defective vision.

Young eyes need its protection, old eyes lean upon it, all eyes want it. Good lighting decreases the tension of muscles of the eyes. It therefore helps prevent the common eye defects that are caused by eyestrain.

When light is plentiful in quantity, and is properly shaded and diffused, it helps to make eyes happier!

Electric Washers Save Money, Work: Launder At Home

Next time the need of home laundry equipment occurs to your husband, and he starts talking about bills and the high cost of living, remind him that homemaking is the world's oldest and most important occupation. Point out to him that your home is your office, workshop and factory rolled into one and that like in any factory, production can be carried on most economically and easily with up-to-date equipment.

Laundering in the home saves money by eliminating outside laundry costs and increasing the life of your clothes.

Modern electric washers force dirt out of clothes by gentle but positive water action. The clothes are washed as individual pieces—snowy white—and without bunching, tangling or braiding. With perfect safety, you can entrust the sheerest silks and lingerie to these washers.

Certain modern washers carry through the processes of washing, rinsing, and partial drying, as well as automatically emptying the water, without requiring the aid of human hands. You could easily do a large family wash in your best dress.

With a modern electric ironer you can sit down and relax while you do the family ironing. It is a simple operation saving time, work, clothes and money.

Dog Rescues Woman

CHAMPION, Alta., May 27.—From the furious attack of a cow, a farm collie rescued Mrs. John Beaubier, 70. The faithful dog chased the cow from the barnyard after it had trampled the woman.

Personal Looks Improved: Reward Of Good Lighting

Improved personal appearance is one of the rewards of substituting good lighting for poor! Eyes that are strained by poor lighting are not as beautiful as they might be.

Well-fitted glasses, for those who need them, and good lighting for everyone make for rested eyes, and therefore more attractive ones.

Facial muscles are more at ease when eyes are happy! Haggard, hang-dog expressions often come from eyestrain caused by poor lighting. There's a beauty tonic in good lighting!

Lilac Teas Are Planned For Tuesday

Heralds of the loveliness of summer gardens and favorite of springtime's flowers, lilacs in their clusters of deep purple, orchid mauve and lustre white are brightening up many a grassy lawn these early season days and, in their royal colors, are lending an additional atmosphere of welcome to Their Majesties, who will favor the city with their presence during the coming week. Bouquets of these fragrant blossoms placed in the homes of a number of Edmonton women will lend color and charm to teas planned for Tuesday afternoon of this coming week. Among the lilac teas planned are the following:

McDougall Church Tea

McDougall W. M. S. members are planning a lilac tea to benefit funds for the Eleanor Slack Memorial, and Mrs. F. S. McCall has offered her home at 11129 100 avenue for the Tuesday afternoon affair.

Mrs. Robert Pearson, president; Mrs. A. K. McMinn and Mrs. McCall will welcome the guests from three to six o'clock. In charge of the dining room will be Mrs. A. M. Neilson and Mrs. J. O. Waltham. Presiding at tea will be Mrs. W. H. Facey, Mrs. A. D. Richard, Mrs. A. E. Cook, Mrs. A. D. Miller, Mrs. W. H. Wheeler, and Mrs. W. F. Empey.

Serving will be Mrs. F. Richard, Mrs. J. H. Tanton, Mrs. Clarence Miller, Mrs. J. F. Philp, Mrs. Max Ball, Mrs. N. M. Duke, Mrs. R. Carmichael, Mrs. C. E. Race, Mrs. W. Schnell, Mrs. G. Frazer and Mrs. A. Greig.

First Baptist Circle

First Baptist Mission Circle members are entertaining their friends at a lilac tea at the home of Mrs. J. F. McMullan, 11019 90 avenue, also on Tuesday afternoon of this coming week.

Mrs. W. M. Gordon is convener of the affair and Mrs. M. C. McCannel, the president, will receive with the hostess. Mrs. W. E. Stewart and Mrs. Guy Deeton will usher the guests into the tea-room.

Those pouring tea will be Mrs. J. H. Pavey, Mrs. E. E. Brazil, Mrs. Robert George, Mrs. N. McIntyre, Mrs. J. Clyde Macdonald, and Mrs. W. Smalley.

Assisting with the passing of tea will be Mrs. A. J. Faulkner, Mrs. W. E. Bowser, Mrs. J. Browning, Mrs. Roy Chubb, Mrs. S. A. Gilmour, Mrs. R. Westgate, Mrs. Harold Wilson, and Mrs. Alexander Cook. Mrs. J. W. Bishop will be in charge of a table of souvenirs and Mrs. W. Williams and Mrs. F. J. Pyle in charge of the display of home baking.

Engagements

PAUL — SHEPHARD

Mr. and Mrs. Shephard of Duagh announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Angelina Minnie Shephard, to Harold Edwin Paul, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Paul of Namao. The wedding will take place on Saturday, June 10.

700 Call At Health Group Tea Party

Entertaining during the afternoon and evening on Friday, members of the Edmonton Health and Strength League were hostesses to more than 700 guests at a tea party and demonstration of exercises in the Masonic Temple.

Guests were received by Mrs. H. M. Baker, president of the league and Mrs. George Hogg. The tea was the largest and most successful affair as yet arranged by the group.

Hon. William Aberhart and Mrs. Aberhart were honored guests during the evening and the Premier extended his congratulations to the league for their excellent work. Among other honored guests who called were His Worship Mayor John W. Fry and Mrs. Fry, Dr. and Mrs. G. F. McNally, Mrs. W. W. Cross, Mrs. W. A. Fallow and Mrs. G. M. Little.

Mrs. Baker and Mrs. Hogg addressed the guests briefly and a demonstration of exercises and musical numbers were arranged, in which those taking part were Miss Isabel Wells, instructor, Mrs. M. Young, Mrs. A. D. Campbell, Mrs. P. Shurko, Mrs. C. A. Sherman, Mrs. V. Harford, Mrs. K. S. Hawkins, Mrs. Empey, Miss Irene Fairley, Miss Jean Fuller, Mrs. B. Berg, Mrs. K. Rae and members of the Jordan School of Dancing.

In appreciation of their services during the season floral bouquets were presented to Mrs. Baker, Mrs. Paul Greenwood, Miss Isabel Wells, Mrs. Gordon Garside, Miss Margaret Coupland and Mrs. George Hogg.

Winners of a draw which was arranged were Mrs. J. Lane, Mrs. F. Ibbotson, Miss Margaret Reid, Mrs. W. Park, Mrs. H. Booi, Mrs. I. Giffen and Miss D. Reid.

Tea was served from a table attractively laid with a lace cloth and centred by lilacs. Pastel tapers lighted the table.

Called for and Delivered

In proposing a toast to the graduands of 1939, Mr. F. Armour Ford, chairman of the Edmonton school board, said that only the playing period in their lives is over now, the hard work still lies ahead. "Life is a glorious adventure," he continued, "but success involves overcoming many obstacles and every man and every woman gets out of life exactly what he puts into it".

TO CLASS OF '39

Miss Patricia McMillan, president of class '39, responded to the toast, following which she was made the recipient of a floral bouquet, presented by Mrs. Ford on behalf of her classmates.

Mr. G. A. McKee, superintendent of schools, proposed a toast to the winners of academic pins, to which Mr. Willard Worthington responded. Academic awards were presented by Mrs. McKee to John Cherniwchan, Nettit Lewko, Nestor Jardy, Willard Worthington, Ronald Biggs, Ronald Connell, Margaret Gorton, Walter Sinclair, George Kozak, Leon Kagna, Albert Deugau, Tony Lukawesky.

TOAST TO PARENTS

Miss Susie McColman proposed a toast to the parents, to which Mr. J. A. Ross responded. Toast to the school proposed by Mr. Walter Bissell was responded to by Mr. M. J. Hilton, principal of the school. In his reply he stated that the general opinion of the public that technical school is one where academe work is not taught is wrong. On the contrary, students have the same academic subjects to take and in addtion are taught practical work. "Our purpose," he said, "is to teach honesty and to build character, and the rest will take care of itself." He paid tribute to the students' union which assists the teachers so greatly during the year.

"Tech at work and at play", a set of moton pictures exhibited by Technical's own producer, Mr. W. E. Robinson, concluded the after-dinner program. Dancing was then arranged.

Ambassador Assures Press Royal Washington Dinner Will Be Pleasant Affair

WASHINGTON, May 27.—British Ambassador Sir Ronald Lindsay today assured those who will attend the dinner party for King George and Queen Elizabeth at the Embassy June 9 that while it will be "pretty much an official dinner," it will be "none the less pleasant." The ambassador received reporters while perched on the corner of a table in his oak-panelled study. The dinner is the second of two parties the ambassador and Lady Lindsay will give for Their Majesties during their two-day visit here. The first will be a garden party June 8.

HOW LONG?

Someone asked how long the King and Queen would be present at the garden party to which about 1,300 invitations have been issued.

"Oh," said Sir Ronald, "the official schedule says when they will arrive and I suppose they will go away when they've had enough of it. That's what you'd expect anybody to do, isn't it?" he smiled.

"Will the King and Queen have to have passports in this country?" the Ambassador was asked. "I guess I should say no," he replied.

The ambassador indicated that both the King and Queen had experienced the pleasure of eating hot dogs, which may be served at the picnic which President and Mrs. Roosevelt will give for them at Hyde Park after their visit here.

"But I think," he said, "it will be the first time they will have eaten the things under that name."

200 APPLICATIONS

About 200 have applied for admission to the review of British ex-servicemen in the embassy's garden which Their Majesties will hold on the morning of the ninth, the ambassador said. Several hundred other British subjects will attend.

BERNEICE STEWARD

Glamour is usually one thing in Manhattan, quite another in Hollywood. However Berneice Steward seems to have a happy combination of the two. She arrived in New York a few weeks ago and is appearing with the six Paramount starlets on the St. Regis Roof. Soon after her arrival she came to our office. She told us she had done some modelling on the coast and that she had appeared in a few pictures. The latest one is with Jack Benny and Dorothy Lamour in "Man About Town." The next day she got her first assignment as a model. She likes posing because she says it is an easy way to make a living and because she enjoys beautiful clothes and gets an opportunity to wear the finest and costliest importations from Paris.

Berneice was born on a ranch in Alamo, Nevada nineteen years ago. When she was three her family moved to Los Angeles and it was there that she received her education. She attended U.C.L.A. and took a business course on the side. After two years of school she quit and got a job as a secretary. She lasted just one week at this and then got her first job in the movies—a small part in "Artists and Models."

She is an excellent horsewoman. Her father who was a cowboy in his early youth, taught her to ride on broncos just after they had been broken. Although she had been thrown many times it is still her favorite sport.

Even before the movies and her New York modelling Berneice worked for an exclusive store on the coast. She has a vivid memory of a very large and pretentious style show given by them in an exclusive hotel. The show had proceeded at some length and she was to be the piece de resistance of the evening appearing after a very proper Wagnerian introduction by the swing orchestra in a magnificent bridal costume. She was preceded by page boys and followed by maids of honor. The inspired but somewhat alcoholic assemblage broke into cheers. Some of them, more enthusiastic than the others started playing follow-the-leader in hurtling her long train. She paused, raised her white gloved hand and commanded to one and all of them, "You will have to stop this at once." She called the head waiter who was near-by to stop them. Apparently he operated on the premise that the customer was always right and that these boys were customers because he did nothing about it.

Just as Berneice was about to gather her train and leave the room in a huff the manager, a large explosive gentleman managed to get to the rostrum. "Stop this nonsense at once!" he shouted. Sheepishly the athletes went back to their tables amid applause from the sympathetic women customers in the assemblage. Was she upset about this? Oh, no. She collected $85 fee and left for home. After all, it's all in a day's work, and for those of you who think that modelling is an easy job, just try posing on the edge of a spring board in a sustained pose for three or four hours, or wearing a heavy fur coat on a sultry summer day, or wear a thin chiffon dress in midwinter on a penthouse roof.

You Can Write Letters That Get Top Rating

Write As If You Were Talking

Are you stuck, Tom, on that letter to Joan? Afraid you'll sound stiff and dull?

Of course you'll make a bad impression writing, "Dear Joan — Things are pretty much as usual . . ."

But to sound like your friendly, entertaining self, you've only to write as if you were talking. "Dear Joan—Time out from the mad whirl of office, supper, bed—bed, office, supper! And now to give you the news . . ."

Other letters, too, you can write quickly by following the "be natural" rule. And these days simplicity is good form!

In business letters discard antiquated phrases, "hoping to be favored with an early reply, I am . . ." Instead, write "I hope I shall hear from you soon."

And your pen zips merrily along when you don't have to stop over points of grammar. Incorrect is "he gave it to John and I," "different than." Correct to say "to John and me," "different from."

Do you stew over invitations to be answered, thank-you notes, letters of condolence? Our 32-page booklet has helpful sample letters for these and many other social, business occasions. Tells how to improve your vocabulary, gives etiquette of letters.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of "Good Letter-Writing Made Easy" to The Edmonton Bulletin Home Service, Edmonton, Alberta. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

DOROTHY DIX Says:

The other day some one asked me whom I considered the wickedest woman in the world, to which I promptly replied: The child-spoiler—the mother who never disciplines her children, who never teaches them self-control, or obedience, or respect for authority. The mother who never breeds in her children rockbottom principles that no temptation can shake, and grit and courage that will enable them to face every hardship of life without turning quitter, who never holds up high ideals before her children and who lets them grow up knowing no law except their own desires.

No other woman commits such a crime as does the mother who, through her foolish fondness, or her weakness, or her laziness, or her cowardice, shirks her duty to fit her children for life and makes of them weaklings and criminals while they are still in the cradle. You can't get away from a mother's influence or a mother's responsibility. Her children are what she makes them.

Who are the murderers? The men and women whose mothers never taught them to control their tempers and who in some insane moment of fury dipped their hands in a fellow creature's blood. Who are the thieves? The men and women whose mother never taught them to respect other people's property and to do without the things they could not get honestly.

Who are the drunkards? The men and women whose mothers never taught them to control their appetites and who let them eat candy until they made themselves sick. Who are the ne'er-do-wells who drift from job to job and never succeed at anything? The men and women whose mothers never made them stick to anything until they finished it and who never taught them thrift and industry.

Who are the wild boys and girls whose parents lie awake at night wondering where they are and what they are doing? They are the youngsters whose mothers never established any authority over them when they were little and who are powerless to control them them thrift and industry.

Heart - To - Heart Talks - - - - By Kathleen Norris

Loss Of Another's Love Often Increases Our Own

When his love grows less ardent, the passionate telephoning ceases, the week-ends go by without exciting interruptions, and no letter arrives.

IT IS a very lucky girl indeed who doesn't have the experience of loving some man more than he loves her. To almost every girl comes the bitter lesson that men's feelings change; that what to her is a matter of deadly earnest, to the man is only a passing affair.

If this doesn't happen to her in girlhood it may very possibly occur later in her life, and be a husband instead of a sweetheart who fails her. Whenever it comes, it is the hardest thing in life to face courageously and wisely, and more girls and women wreck their lives on this particular rock than upon any other.

Falling in love is a delicious business. When it happens, as it usually does, somewhere along in the years between 17 and 20, both boy and girl enter into a delirium of happiness, and naturally they feel that this happiness is going to last forever. They can't see enough of each other, scribble enough notes; life is one long thrill of ecstasy.

But this, whether it comes at 18, 28 or 40, can't last. By the very nature of things it can't last. One side or the other begins to tire of it, begins to grow less ardent, and then the other side suffers indescribable tortures. The flattery stops, the passionate telephoning ceases, the week-ends go by without exciting interruptions and the postman zigzags his way up the street and is gone from sight—and there is no letter! Lucky the woman who hasn't known every detail of this process in all its agonizing slowness! For it takes weeks, and sometimes months, for her to persuade herself that he really has stopped caring.

Of course, it is sometimes the woman who changes. If a girl is a natural flirt, and has a good deal of attention, or if for want of a better suitor she plays for awhile with the affections of some man she never would seriously consider marrying, then it is the boy's turn to suffer.

But often it is just that the boy liked the girl tremendously for awhile, and then stopped and began to like some other girl; while the girl went on holding tight to him in her heart, all the more in love as the power to keep him vanished.

THIS GIRL HAS SUFFERED

The girl who wrote the following letter is only 18. But no woman can read it without feeling that she has drunk very deep of the cup of suffering that is love.

"Rod and I began to go together in our last year at High," writes Elinor. "We studied together, planned together, encouraged and helped each other. He wanted to go to college and so I planned for college, too, and we had our freshman year at the State university; the happiest time I'll ever know in my whole life. After that my family couldn't send me any more, and I came home. We live about half-an-hour's trip from college, and on the next block from Rod's family. Rod was waiting on table in a sorority and couldn't get home often. When he did he always came here immediately, and we snatched what hours we could together.

"But it wasn't the same. Almost immediately I knew that in some way he had changed; I tried not to believe it. I wrote him, sent him little things, and waited for Christmas. But he didn't come home at Christmas except for one day, and I got only a tiny share of that day, when we went about seeing people's trees and carrying things to different members of his family and mine. I kept hoping he'd say something definite that day, about being engaged, but he didn't. He [illegible] us all that night that he had to go with a party up into the mountains for skiing and winter sports, because he was coaching one of the boys, and he kissed a dozen of the girls, and me among them, and was gone.

"Well, then I began hoping and waiting again, writing him the sort of letters that I thought must bring answers, but they didn't. If he did write it was not in the old way. I take out the little notes he wrote me only a year ago and read them, and it doesn't seem possible we're the same people. In many of them he speaks of our love, and in two of them of our marriage. 'How'll you like being a professor's wife?' and 'It seems so strange to me to think that at 19 I know the girl who is to be my wife.'

"Now the Easter vacation has come and gone, and he didn't come home. His mother grieves as much as I do. I know she loves me, and is afraid of the sort of girl Rod meets, or might meet, at college. And in his heart I know he still loves his lifelong playmate and neighbor who was his first sweetheart. [illegible] anyone [illegible]."

FOOLING HERSELF TWICE

Elinor, you are fooling yourself when you think that Rod really loves you, deep down in his heart, and fooling yourself again when [illegible] one else. Thank God, our hearts are capable of many loves in this quick bewildering pilgrimage we call life, and our only safety and happiness lies in finding them anew, and when they in turn, are torn away, beginning all over [illegible].

No love is quite like first love, but other loves are more deeply [illegible] ly, but a firm, ripe apple is a more [illegible] married to an adoring mate, doesn't experience the shock of losing love until her son delivers it to [illegible] 20 [illegible] suddenly that he is straying off into love of his own, and that he is going to marry a girl who [illegible] who will soon reduce her to the status of [illegible].

So fa[illegible] Elinor, and all you other girls and women who must for awhile starve for love and flattery and all the rest of the sweet delusion. For in the end yours is the better part. It is better to love than to be loved, which is only another way of saying that it is better to give than to receive. Don't be sorry that you loved deeper than he did; that you can't stop just because he stops.

HOW TO REGAIN LOVE

But don't fool yourselves, either. Love doesn't come back for tears or coaxing or reproaches. The only way to regain love, whether it is of a school sweetheart or a husband of many tried and true years, is to change yourself into the sort of person your particular man will someday discover with a sense of newness and surprise. Don't be the same girl or woman you [illegible], because he's not the same [illegible] was. Have him suddenly discover your charm, your gentleness and fun, your originality and capability, the comfort your presence brings a man, the wonderful food [illegible]

Morning Exercises Will Perk Up Lazy Muscles

By ALICIA HART

Whether you manage to look and feel your best during summer's hottest weather depends a great deal on how well you sleep and how smart you are about starting each day in a reasonably good-natured and wide-awake fashion.

In the first place, unless you have a health problem, in which case you ought to see your family doctor immediately, there's no reason under the sun why the thought of getting out of bed should make you miserable. That is, providing you went to bed at a decent hour and had at least seven—preferably eight—hours of really restful sleep.

"LAZY WOMAN'S" EXERCISES WAKE UP SLOTHFUL MUSCLES

However, during summer months, when the average person wakes up feeling a little tired and none too young and supple, no matter how long he slept, you might consider doing "waking-up" exercises. Important Hollywood stars, such as Jane Wyman, call them "lazy woman's" routines because they are done in bed and consist mainly of stretches. They stretch lazy muscles.

You may hate reducing exercises and simply refuse to do standard setting-up routines, but don't discard the idea of these new "waking-up" exercises until you have tried them for three mornings in succession. They won't reduce your dimensions or make your muscles hard and firm, but they will stimulate your circulation and get you started off on the right foot.

START THEM OFF WITH A BIG STRETCH

Step number one in the "eye-opener" routine is a big stretch and a couple of yawns. Certainly, no matter how much you resent the alarm clock and a world which makes it necessary for you to get up whether you want to or not, you can stretch. S-T-R-E-T-C-H your arms toward the head board, at the same time trying to make your toes touch the foot of the bed. Turn over on your stomach and stretch again.

Now sit up in bed with feet wide apart, then lean forward and touch toes with fingertips. You'll feel this stretch your back muscles. It takes the kinks out of your neck and back and the "thick" sensation out of your throat. Bring knees up to chin, pulling them against your chest with your arms.

Lie flat on your stomach, grasp ankles with hands and rock back and forth on your stomach two or three times.

ALL THE EXERCISES TAKE ONLY FIVE MINUTES

Return to first position, with your back flat on the bed. Supporting the hips with hands, raise your feet upward, then lower them over your head back somersault fashion—until they are touching the bed. Keep knees as straight as possible. Lift legs upward slowly, pause a moment when they are again perpendicular to your body, then lower them.

All of this should take no more than five minutes. But, by the end of that time you should be wide awake, feeling fit, ready for your morning shower and the day's duties.

Raising A Family

O R Barton

Children of tender years love to chatter and be heard. The best audience in the world is mother. She gets a broadside from morning tonight and the wonder is that she is so patient and sweet about it.

The other day on the train, a lovely mother and two children had the section next [illegible] was about ten. Little brother was six or so.

Mother had a voice as soft and sweet as Shakespeare's model woman. But Buddy's voice had no indoor restraint. Some day he will be either a runner-up in a hog calling show, or else the best baritone in the Met. And Buddy wanted some questions answered.

"Mommy, has the train a speedometer?"

"I don't think so, dear."

"How can they tell how fast the train is going?"

"They have—they have—well maybe it is a speedometer. There is some sort of a gauge to tell the engineer."

"Can we walk through the train to see the engine?"

"We would not be allowed to see inside the engine, dear. But don't talk so loudly. Remember, there are people here who want to be very quiet."

The train stopped for ten minutes at a station. Of course they had to get out so Buddy could see the other trains better. When they returned it seemed that Buddy had lost something. "You see, dear, I told you to put it in your pocket. And you would not. It is best to do as I say. It may be a lesson to you."

Much searching. The other passengers were searching, too. There was something about a lollypop. I know that was what I was looking for under my seat. I wondered at all the to-do about a lost lolly pop.

But then it came out that mother thought Buddy had lost his dollar watch. Else said "We were all talking about something different." His watch is in his pocket.

Peace at last. Buddy was asleep. And mother at peace. No wonder nap time is popular with mothers.

June Bride Must Keep That Budget Balanced

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

The food budget is a bride's friend, not a stern disciplinarian waiting to take the joy out of cooking for herself and her young husband.

If a girl loves a man enough to marry him, it can be assumed she wants to keep him well and happy. That is where the modern food budget comes in. If [illegible] little money, the bride must learn [illegible] for health first. If there is a [illegible] more, then "luxuries" [illegible] considered.

Thrift in food purchase [illegible] It is a [illegible] housewife [illegible] of nourishment for the least amount of [illegible]

RECKON FOOD BUDGET VERY CAREFULLY

With that attitude in mind [illegible] Roughly, about 30 per cent of the family income will be required for food if the income is under $3,000 a year. Food, clothing and shelter are the absolute musts in budget making. You cannot do without any of them. However, food [illegible] important. Cut on clothes and rent if you must, but maintain food to the requirements of health.

Break your food dollar [illegible] parts. The first two of these [illegible] must be spent for milk and bread or other cereals. The importance of milk in the family budget cannot be overstated. If possible, allow a quart of milk a day for each person, or a pint at least. If [illegible] get is more generous, you can include white breads and white cereals.

Despite the fact that that handsome new husband of yours says he likes lots of meat for dinner, he must learn to eat other foods if his income is small, and he desires to maintain [illegible]. Only one-fifth of that food dollar can be spent on meat, eggs, fish and cheese. In summer eggs are cheap and fish is usually cheaper than meat, so learn how to cook fish and eggs interestingly, then use them often.

VEGETABLES AND FRUITS ESSENTIAL

The discovery of the importance of both raw and cooked fruits and vegetables in maintaining health and interest in life is one of the gifts of modern nutritional science to our age. At least one-fifth of the food dollar must go for fruits and vegetables. More would be better.

The other fifth of that dollar can be spent for butter and other fats, sugar, other sweetening agents and tea or coffee. If either [illegible] husband does not use tea or coffee, or very little sugar, apply the money you would have used for these to the purchase of more vegetables and fruit or milk.

So ends our first budget lesson. It is not enough to save pennies. The modern budget idea is this: spend for what you must have first, then for flavor and pleasure next.

STEPHEN LEACOCK

Stories Here and There From His Books, Lectures and Conversations

HE GUESSED RIGHT

THERE is a certain line of anecdote which often goes under the name of "grim humor." This means humor that turns on actual injury or death. Personally I've always felt doubtful about it.

STEPHEN LEACOCK

To explain what is meant, here is a story actually true, of a happening in Toronto at the old Rossin House, long ago. The baggage man who was putting trunks into the elevator (from the service chute) was called away from his job and didn't realize in the poor light that the elevator had gone up a couple of storeys and was above him. He swung the door open, called in a cheery voice, "All right, Bill, down she goes," jumped in,—and broke his leg two storeys below.

In this kind of "grim humor," as I say, I find little attraction. Yet the Scotch seem to like it,—they love the familiar stories of Scotchmen at their wives' funerals, or the story of the Scotch judge who sentenced to death a man he used to play chess with, and said, "And that's checkmate for you, Andrew."

But one such story I can quote from memory, not actually of my own but of my brother George. It concerns the death of a man in the power house of a western Ontario town (I'll name it no closer than that) where George was working, installing electrical equipment. In those days electricity was new and consequently dangerous.

One morning the assistant man of the power house came running to the workers on the line to say that his boss had been killed.

They went down, with the chief of police, to the power house, and there was the unhappy man, dead, laid out flat on the cement floor, his arms extended.

They looked at him in horror.

"How do you suppose it happened, Joe?" asked the chief of police.

"Why, I can't see how it could," said the assistant. "The only possible way, it seems to me, is that he may have picked up this terminal with one hand,"—as he said it, Joe picked up the terminal,—"and then put his other out in contact with—"

Bing! And the second man was laid out beside the first. Joe had guessed right.

Now as a matter of fact, I am glad to record that the second man, though knocked unconscious, was not really killed.

But when my brother George, who is a real story-teller, tells this story, he not only kills the second man, but the chief of police—who undertook to explain it to the mayor of the town, and then the mayor and half of the town council.

WESTERN CANADA IS RESPECTING ROYAL PRIVACY

By THOMAS WAYLING

Edmonton Bulletin Staff Correspondent

ON BOARD ROYAL PRESS TRAIN, May 27.—Western Canada is respecting the privacy of the King and Queen. The consideration Their Majesties have shown the people of the west is being reciprocated to the full.

The royal train is parked during the nights of the western progress. In Manitoba it was at Kemnay, eight miles from Brandon. In Saskatchewan it was Waldeck.

It would have been easy for hundreds of motorists to have gone to Kemnay or Waldeck to see the royal train, but with rare consideration everyone refrained.

Their Majesties therefore have spent restful, peaceful nights on the lone prairie. They have been lulled to sleep to the music of the frogs, for the drouth is ended.

There have been years when the prairies were silent, for the sloughs were dried up, the river drained away, the dwindled lake stagnated, but now the west is fresh and green with lots of water in the waterways. The frogs are back and trill to the sky, for it is spring too in frogland.

So there have been no racous motor horns to disturb the quiet of the night. And in the early morning Their Majesties are awakened by the rolling of the wheels beneath the train, carrying them on to new scenes, new vistas, into the arms and hearts of another Canadian day.

Our Greatest Need

By Nellie McClung

(Copyright Reserved)

TONIGHT I listened to a radio program where four nationally-known speakers discussed the problem of "What is the World's Greatest Need?" The speakers were a poet, a writer, a minister, and a scientist, and they spoke out of a large experience, and the whole hour was filled with good talk which surely elevated public thinking. I hope it was heard by many.

But when all was over, and the sound waves were stilled, and the radio had signed off for the night, and the glow which good oratory kindles in our hearts had cooled—what have we? I remember their conclusion. The world needs a kindling of love, honor, justice, a revival of what one speaker called "common decency." That is the world's greatest need. I could wish we had some surer way of making our people conscious of these great truths.

EASY-GOING WAYS

Democracy suffers from our easy-going ways. We expose our people to truth; we lay it before them; we offer it, as attractively as we can; but only a remnant hears, and a still smaller remnant heeds!

It is not so with the German people. They read what they are told to read, and listen obediently, taking what they are given. German parents have had to see their children taken from them; have had to be silent while their children learn false doctrines. Erica Mann, the daughter of Thomas Mann, tells of it in her book called "School for Barbarians"—the slow but sure degeneration of the German children to whom hate, cruelty and ruthlessness are carefully taught, while the parents are denied any right of interference.

FALSE GOD

Germans have followed their leader; they read the Bible he wrote for them, and have thrown away the respect of the world for a false god.

It is hard to believe that the German people like this rigid discipline, this straight-jacket education. Much evidence comes from Germany that they do not like it. Nor do they enjoy the horrible treatment that is given to some of their countrymen. The presence in concentration camps of non-Jewish people proves that the spirit of the old Germany is not dead, and that there are still people there who believe in justice and fair play, though unfortunately their numbers are dwindling. Robert Neumeller and others like him are our proof that the soul of Germany has not died without a struggle.

SENSE OF GUILT

Thinking of Germany and what has happened there, brings to us a sense of guilt. We have been so indifferent, unconcerned and superior. Fifteen years ago, Adolf Hitler wrote a book, telling what he was going to do in Europe and the world. We did not hear much about it in 1924, when it was published. Perhaps we did not know about it at all until 1931. Even then we were not interested. Even the leaders of our Empire were not interested. Some cracked-brained blighter in Germany had written a book! And what of it! Why should an English statesman bother reading it?

Mr. Chamberlain might have known more of the man he had to deal with at Munich if he had read "Mein Kampf." Even the tears in Hitler's eyes, which misled Mr. Chamberlain, are explained in the book. "The political leader must learn the fine art of deception. . . . Promises made today do not bind one tomorrow." No one can say that Adolf Hitler has not been frank—he put his plans all on paper for anyone to read. He counted on the sublime complacency of other countries.

YIELDS TO THREAT

Even the method of grabbing parts of Europe are set down in his book. "Taking a small part first is the way to proceed. . . . The nations involved will give in, saying this is not worth fighting for. . . . When a nation yields to a threat of force once, it yields again more easily!"

Oh, no, we had not read that. We are not much disposed to read books written in other languages. Unfortunately, we are not much disposed to read books written in our own, if they tell us plain truths. We had a book written before the war which if we had studied faithfully might have done something for it. It is called "The Great Illusion," and has stood the test of 30 years. It is as true today as it was the day it was written, but its doctrine was rejected then by the governments of Europe.

MEDICINE HAT STILL TALKING OF ROYAL VISIT

By THOMAS WAYLING

Edmonton Bulletin Staff Correspondent

MEDICINE HAT, Alta., May 27.—Cowhands from the range, cattlemen of the old school, men from the dry farm belt, and irrigationists, townsmen and countrymen from this district and from miles around are still talking of Friday's royal visit to this town that Rudyard Kipling once said had "all hell for a basement."

The royal train could only stop for a short time, but Medicine Hat threw its medicine hat and every other hat in the air and cheered its head off when Their Majesties arrived.

There was not time to show Their Majesties the natural heritage of Medicine Hat nor the industries based on the natural gas.

Medicine Hat grows roses—acres of them—although there is no market in the city for so many roses. Greenhouse heating is so cheap that it is easier to grow roses and ship them all over western Canada and the western States, than ship coal elsewhere and grow them.

On the station there were gas lights which hadn't been turned out for 20 years, gas being so cheap, but it will be 20 years and 20 more, before Medicine Hat forgets the welcome it gave the King and Queen or Their Majesties forget Medicine Hat.

Mrs. Tate says she had to pay $6,000 at the last election and agreed to surrender to their local association the $2,000 fee she got as a member of the house.

DUKE DRINKS TO MEMORY OF CHARLES II

LONDON, May 27.—The Duke of Gloucester drank to the memory of Charles II Friday during a visit to the Royal hospital at Chelsea where he inspected 400 "Chelsea pensioners."

In a brief speech the Duke said: "I am sure you will drink to the memory of your founder, Charles II, and to the success of this Royal hospital. In such a toast I will join you and wish good luck to you all."

The Duke drank beer which he described as "our national beverage."

Retired C.P.R. Aide Dies In Montreal

MONTREAL, May 27—John J. Scully, 67, retired general manager of the eastern lines of the Canadian Pacific Railway, died yesterday at his home here after a long illness. He had a record of 46 years service with the company.

Native of Montreal, he started here as an office boy in 1887 and won rapid promotion being stationed at various times at Toronto, North Bay, Winnipeg and Brandon, Man.

The Royal Visit

By DR. H. L. STEWART

Professor of Philosophy, Dalhousie University, and Editor of Dalhousie Review.

From the point of view of international anxieties and perils, there was much to be said for postponing the royal visit to Canada. But it was "the psychological moment" for a display of Commonwealth unity, and that reason was enough. A most practical reason, for in Commonwealth unity lies a potent force on which, in perils or anxieties, we can depend. Not so much in spite of as because of the international crisis, the coming of King and Queen to this Dominion was opportune.

Leon Blum, ex-premier of France, told the British premier not long ago that in his judgment the chief peril for the peace of Europe lay in an impression, too widespread, that neither Great Britain nor France meant business in the guarantee given to Poland. Premier Chamberlain's next speech was intended to dispel that doubt and to make clear that when he promsed to fight for Poland against an aggressor, fighting was what he literally meant. A like disastrous suspicion about British Commonwealth unity has been fostered in certain quarters of late by those interested in stimulating the dictatorial aggressor.

We in Canada know well that such growth of autonomy as the Statute of Westminster represents is altogether consistent with the spirit of Empire patriotism.

There is a gorgeous pageant, with ceremonial and surroundings that will live in the memory of the youngest Canadian child. But what is meant most of all to arrest attention abroad, as well as to live in the memories of those who witness it, is the rallying at this moment to the common imperial cause which for all British people is symbolized by the Sovereign. One by one, many other tokens of unity have disappeared; many historic signs and emblems which once made the British race all over the world externally and obviously united.

A Fascist, Mussolini wrote, in the Italian Encyclopaedia, must believe that democratic equality is absurd, that internationalism is degrading, and that perpetual peace is neither possible nor desirable.

His creed, that is to say, must extol aristocracy, national aggression and war. In contrast, whatever other features a British patriot worthy of the name may show, he must cherish the ideals of human equality, of considerate international co-operation, and of world peace.

We need a visible emblem of this. It might become forgotten or confused amid the varieties of local and temporal and racial setting which five continents display. Still more amid the many historic transformations by which the common idea has been so variously developed. The Throne is such a constant reminder, recalling us to a unity deeper far than our differences, to a singleness of purpose that transcends all the varieties of method.

In our King and Queen, so rapturously acclaimed by Canadian men and women of every social or racial or religious group, we recognize not merely an official but also a personal loyalty to this spirit of our Commonwealth. Amid the downfall of thrones and the wreck of constitutions elsewhere, as country after country has experimented with strange new ventures in government, we look on in wonder. Also, let us hope, in conscious gratitude and intensified patriotism.

REAL CANADIAN MEAL FURNISHED BY 3 BIG TROUT

CHAPLEAU, Ont., May 27.—The main course of a real Canadian meal for Their Majesties King George VI and Queen Elizabeth while they were passing through northern Ontario was three speckled trout taken from the famous fishing waters at Chapleau on the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Six trout, the largest of which was 3¼ pounds, were caught on royal flies by A. J. Grout and A. Southeran of Chapleau. The fish were placed in a freshly made box on crushed ice and on a layer of ground pine. Around the inside edges of the box was a garland of trailing arbutus tied together with red, white and blue ribbons, making a decidedly attractive package, later sent back word that Their Majesties had the three largest trout for lunch.

The box of fish was placed aboard the royal train by C. J. McGregor, superintendent, Canadian Pacific Railway, Schreiber, who

$6,500,000 Voted For Trade, Mines

OTTAWA, May 26.—The House of Commons voted $6,500,000 in estimates for the departments of Trade and Commerce and Mines and Resources last night. The items passed included the annual subsidies for steamship lines operating on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts.

City Church Activities

ARDUOUS TASK AWAITS BISHOP

It is no mean task to take up the work of Dr. Winnington-Ingram, the "old hero of London." Dr. Fisher, who has been Bishop of Chester for seven years, goes to that See without any parochial experience but has outstanding gifts for administration. He was a brilliant scholar at Oxford and gave many years as headmaster of Repton. At Chester he has been a real evangelist, going into the open-air to preach to the people. In London there are quite a number of Anglo-Catholic churches but he has been known as a "moderate High churchman." It is said that he has considerable influence at Lambeth and also that he is "the type of leader who will make the church count in the life of the nation in these difficult times." His first sermon in St. Paul's cathedral was at the anniversary of the Society for Propagating the Gospel and it was a real spiritual breeze, moving by its terse language and originality of thought.

JUBILEE PARLEY TO DRAW MANY

The Jubilee Convention of the Baptists in Ontario and Quebec, is expected to draw together 7,500 registered delegates. Dr. Bingham, Toronto, the president, has set the highest mark yet attained for making a tour of the congregations during his year of office. By securing a team of speakers he was able to visit almost the whole flock. Among the details of arrangements there is parking space provided for 1,000 automobiles, and two auditoriums will be in use, that a couple of meetings may go on at the same time. There is also what is called "The House of Friendship," where the Baptist family and their friends will greet each other. One of the leading speakers will be Dr. Nicodemus M. Joradab, a Christian leader from India. The meeting will open on Thursday, June 8th at the Exhibition grounds in Toronto.

FAMOUS SPEAKER IS COMING HERE

R. E. Wemp, field secretary for the British-Israel-World Federation, will address a series of four public meetings in All Saints' Parish Hall, 103 street, opposite the Y.W.C.A., on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, May 30, 31 and June 1, commencing at 8.15 p.m. and on Thursday afternoon, commencing at 3 p.m.

Mr. Wemp has paid particular attention to the study of current events and the present world crisis, in the light of Bible prophecy and according to authorities, combines a spontaneous Irish wit with Dutch earnestness. Reports indicate that these qualities contribute to the interesting, entertaining and educational value of his lectures.

PRESBYTERIANS HONOR ROYALTY

Presbyterian churches in this city are featuring on Sunday, special services commemorating the visit of Their Majesties King George and Queen Elizabeth.

First Presbyterian church will be the scene of a fitting ceremony for the 11 a.m. service when Rev. Ross K. Cameron, the minister, will be in charge. Units of the militia and Girl Guides will attend. The service will be dedicated to the royal visit. In the evening the minister will deal with the subject: "Is It True the Church Is Powerless in World Crises?"

St. Andrew's church, with Rev. F. D. Roxburgh in charge, will feature a royal service at 11 a.m., when music of both senior and junior choirs will be included. In the evening Dr. Boxburgh will preach on "A Great Man's Descent."

Rev. R. J. Burton will conduct a special royal visit service at Strathcona Presbyterian church at 11 a.m. and at the 7:30 p.m. service he will speak on "The Significance of Self-Control."

Westmount Presbyterian church with W. L. Clow in charge, will feature the subject "The Dominion from Sea to Sea" at the 11 a.m. service and at 7:30 p.m. will feature the subject, "The Lord and Giver of Life."

Rev. William Simons will preside at the Rupert street Presbyterian church and at the 11 a.m. service he will deal with "The Defender of the Faith."

At Beverly, Sunday school will be held at 11 a.m. and the Cherry Dale Mission will hold both Sunday school and public worship.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Ancient and Modern Necromancy, alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Denounced" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon at all Christian Science Churches on Sunday. The Golden Text is Ezekiel 13:9. One of the Scriptural citations is "Blessed are the poor in spirit: for their's is the kingdom of heaven" (Matthew 5:3). One of the correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, is "Science only can explain the incredible good and evil elements now coming to the surface. Mortals must find refuge in Truth in order to escape the error of these latter days" (p. 83).

AT KNOX CHURCH

Their Majesties' Day at Knox Church will be celebrated on Sunday by the Rev. George A. Macdonald. The choir will sing "The Coronation Ode." The soloists for the day are Jack Williams, Jim Richardson, and Bernece McBein. Dr. Macdonald's subject will be in the morning, "Canadian Heritage" and in the evening, "Crown and Sword."

Page Diogenes! Honest Man Is Found In Regina

REGINA, May 27—Times may be hard for Saskatchewan farmers, but they are still honest men.

Wilbert Miller, who lives south of Regina, and a visitor in the city the past few days, found this out Friday.

He was walking down a city street, pulled his handkerchief out of his pocket, and, unknowingly also pulled out a wallet containing $67. Angus McKay, a farmer from Strasbourg, walking behind Miller, picked it up and returned it to its owner.

To Miller's comment that he might have "needed it," the Strasbourg man's reply was—"I need the money but I'm not that hard up." Mr. Miller gave him a $5 reward.

GREAT BOOKS IN BRIEF

By ELIZABETH COATESWORTH JAMES

"ELECTRA"

By EURIPIDES

When this play opens a peasant is talking to himself, thus telling the audience what has happened to Electra, daughter of Clytemnestra and Agamemnon, after the wife murdered her husband.

Clytemnestra's lover, Aegisthus, had wanted to kill Orestes and Electra, but the mother pled for their lives. Knowing this, Orestes fled and as the peasant tells of Electra, he mentions how she has longed to see her brother. The peasant speaks with authority concerning Electra, for he admits that he is married to her.

Aegisthus hoped to humiliate Electra with children of inferior blood, so he gave her in marriage to this peasant; but that loyal man, remembered with love his dead king Agamemnon, and he would not take Electra to wife. As a maiden in the house of her husband, Electra, the princess, worked with her hands to aid in wresting a livelihood from the soil.

VOICE IS HEARD

A voice is heard in lamentation. Electra comes in gloom and fatigue. She is consumed with one desire—to get revenge for her father's death. Just then several travellers come to where Electra is working. They seek Electra, daughter of the late Agamemnon. She states that she is that one. They are astonished for they sought a princess.

In disguise, Orestes gazes upon his sister. Seeking to test her, he plies her with questions, which he says Orestes has given him to ask. He hears about his mother and her lover; about Electra's planned revenge; about the peasant's humility in his marriage with a king's daughter. Of the peasant, Orestes says, "As, lo, this man of unmarked lot has shown a prince's grace."

STABS HIS HOST

In the midst of a feast, the guest arises and stabs his host to death. When the men cry out against Orestes, he lifts his hand with authority and proclaims himself Orestes, son of the murdered Agamemnon. No one raises his hand against him. The body of Aegisthus is taken to Electra's hut.

Electra devises a message that will bring Clytemnestra to her at once: it is that she has just borne a boy child. Immediately, the queen appears in the distance. Arriving at the hut which her daughter calls home, the queen is shocked and excuses herself.

Clytemnestra enters the hut seeking the new-born baby. She is stabbed. Her voice comes to the audience crying, "O children, children, in the name of God, slay not your mother!"

Electra looks upon the body of her mother. Bitterly she speaks of it, relating the betrayal and murder of Agamemnon who came back from ten years at the Trojan War to find a wife who had placed a lover in his home and who had grown to hate him even to the depth of murder.

THE GOD SPEAKS

Electra speaks of all this, and of her overwhelming grief at the loss of her father. She adds resentment for her mother's neglect and for her own loneliness in this place of exile from her rightful position.

The god speaks to Orestes in conclusion, "One day thy doom of blood fulfilled and this long stress of penance past, thou shalt find happiness." When Orestes speaks of the obligation of vengeance which Fate had demanded of him, the god explained, "There came but that which needs must come by Ancient Fate and that dark word that rang from Phoebus in his mood."

The brother and sister embrace and separate to go to their far destinies. The Greek chorus speaks these words to the audience, "Farewell, farewell,—But he who can so fare, and stumbleth not on mischief anywhere, blessed on earth is he!"

INDIA BEHIND ENGLAND SAYS CITY VISITOR

Former Secretary To Mahatma Gandhi Here On Lecture Tour

Relations between England and India are "almost perfect now" and India would not remain neutral in a war which menaced the safety of the Empire, said Dr. D. P. Pandia, former private secretary to Mahatma Gandhi, now here on a lecture tour.

Member of the Congress party in India, Dr. Pandia is on his way to London where he will attend the conference between the British government and spokesmen for India to consider the constitutional problems of India.

Dr. Pandia is a guest at the Corona hotel, where he will speak Sunday night on "Mahatma Ghandi as I Knew Him".

GERMAN HOPES

If Dr. Schact, famous German financier, hopes to draw India into the Nazi orbit by his present visit to India, he will not succeed, prophecied Dr. Pandia.

"India hates Fascism as much as other countries," he declared.

SPIRITUAL FORCE

Tagore, famous poet, whose poem in tribute to the Empire was heard on the Empire Day broadcast Wednesday, also is a mighty spiritual force.

"You can see the change that has come about in our relations with England. Ten years or so ago, when Tagore was offered a knighthood, he refused to accept it due to the strained relations between the two countries. Now he speaks in praise of England," said Dr. Pandia.

Edmonton Prepares Decorations for Visit of Their Majesties

With the Royal Visit less than a week away, Edmonton plunges into last minute preparations for welcoming Their Majesties next Friday. At the right is the main entrance to the Macdonald hotel, where the legislative dinner will be held Friday evening. During the past few days workmen have been busy decorating the entrance and interior of the hotel with flags and bunting under the direction of Manager Claude Finlay. The Royal car will swing around the driveway and Their Majesties will pass into the hotel through the entrance shown in this picture. Above is the home of Mayor John W. Fry on 112 street, Garneau, all decorated for the visit. The Royal procession will pass along 112 street, giving patients at the University hospital an opportunity of seeing Their Majesties as they drive by.

POLIO DANGER WARNING NOW ISSUED HERE

Possibility Of Severe Epidemic Is Reported By Health Officer

There is great danger of a severe epidemic of infantile paralysis here this summer, it was learned Saturday from Dr. G. M. Little, city medical officer of health.

"In the normal cycle, it is time for us to have an increase in the number of cases here," Dr. Little said. "Last year there were a number of cases in the province, especially in the south. It is quite possible that it will work north this year.

"In Medicine Hat district last summer there were some 30 cases and there was a terrible epidemic at Turner Valley.

"One of the most indicative signs is that there have been sporadic cases throughout the province during the winter, which is unusual.

"Precautions will be taken by the health department to keep cases to a minimum and when the usual season, midsummer, arrives, we shall advise all citizens on necessary precautions.

"However, the terror of the disease is greatest in the mental factor. It is true that deformity of a limb often results but there are far fewer deaths caused by infantile paralysis than by [illegible] which is generally regarded as a mild disease."

The Inquiring Reporter

Plans and suggestions for the Royal visit are as thick as the currants in Grandma's old fashioned buns; and everyone has an idea as to just how things should be handled. One bright chap suggested that cheering sections be organized along the Royal route. "What do you think of the idea?" The Bulletin's Inquiring Reporter asked today. Here are the answers received:

BETTIE BROWN, musician: The idea doesn't strike me as being very good; for the cheers will be more natural and spontaneous if you just let the crowd cheer when it wants to.

MRS. WILLIAM BROWN, housewife: All along the way there has been no organized cheering that I know of, and if the radio brings a true sound of the cheers, the Canadians don't need any coaching.

JEANNE PRICE, stenographer: We shall all be so excited the day of the parade that any organization along cheering lines would be thrown to the four winds, so why bother?

GEORGE WRIGHT, service station proprietor: Are you insinuating that we can't cheer in this city as well and better as in the other places the King and Queen will have visited? We don't need any organization; and what's more, we'll show the rest of the Dominion that we can do as well as any of them.

Premier Aberhart left on Saturday for Calgary, where he will spend the week-end. Sunday afternoon he will address the Calgary Prophetic Bible Institute. He will return to his office here Monday.

TOUGH TRAPPER IS EGG EATER: SIX EACH MEAL

"Tin-Can Johnny" McKay, one of the oldest and toughest of the barren lands trappers, is gaining fame as a gourmet during the brief summer that he is spending "outside".

Johnny has spent eight months in the barrens at McKay lake, about as far from civilization as it is possible to get in Canada, living on caribou, rice and tea.

In Edmonton it's a different story; he not only startles "city fellers," but is the envy of his brother trappers. Johnny these days eats 18 eggs a day, six at each meal, and enjoys them.

The trouble with this fare, which is just one course in his meals, is that he finds himself too hungry at bedtime to go to sleep. So he has a T-bone steak for a nightcap.

Johnny is putting himself in prime condition for next winter's trapping. Or, at any rate, he is having a good time.

Citizens Are Requested Start Early For Seats On Royal Parade Route

Start early for your place along the route of the Royal procession, is the advice of the Royal Visit Committee to citizens wishing to see Their Majesties on June 2. The Edmonton street railway will be providing special service but will have the greatest hauling job of its history and all trams will be crowded to capacity.

Motor traffic along the Route of Royal Progress will be cut off after 11 a.m. and parking will not be allowed within a block of the route, so that the street cars will be the best means of transportation.

Thousands of visitors will flood Edmonton on June 2 and, as they will not be familiar with the city, many of them will find places in the downtown areas to view the King and Queen.

THERE ARE NO MORE BIRDS IN FORESTS THAN ON PLAINS
5-27

Most of us think of the forests as places of refuge for birds, and a place where thousands of them live in peace. But, the truth is that there are actually fewer birds in many of our forests (especially in coniferous forests) than are found on the plains or even in deserts. The same is true of animal life in general.

My parents will be married twenty-five years next month and I would like to entertain to celebrate their silver wedding anniversary. Is it proper to have open house and what refreshments would pou suggest? MRS. A. K. K.

Answer—Of course, a reception or open house would be a splendid way to celebrate your parents' twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. If you are sending formal invitations, the year of the wedding and the present year should appear at the top. The time should also be stated—as "after 8 o'clock." if in the evening, or "4 to 6 o'clock," or whatever hours you choose if in the afternoon. An interesting note would be to have as many of the original wedding party as possible to receive the guests with your parents. The decorations should be carried out in silver and white, and dont forget the wedding cake for the bride to cut. The refreshments may be simple or more elaborate as you prefer—ice cream, wedding cake and coffee; or dainty sandwiches, tea and wedding cake; or chicken salad, buttered rolls, coffee, punch, ice cream and wedding cake

Graduates From Victoria High Have Carved Varied, Colorful Niches in World

By GORDON BROWN

Every high school in Edmonton has turned out its share of doctors, lawyers, merchants and business magnates. But in the field of unusual careers, Victoria High school has, what it thinks, an unapproachable record. The roll of graduates of this school, since its beginning in 1911, contains scores of names behind which lie "stranger-than-fiction" life stories.

Practically synonomous with western wheat growing is the name of Herman Trelle. Mr. Trelle attended Victoria up to 1913 and was noted for his ability as a public speaker. The 1913 Christmas edition of the Chinook, the old school paper, briefly stated the beginning of a great career: "Herman Trelle, who won the oratorical contest last year, is now doing time on his homestead in the Peace River district."

Everyone knows of the many world wheat prizes that his "doing time" eventually led to.

EDUCATIONALIST

Whatever the training the Russians of today receive it is due in part to the efforts of Goldie Simenstein, another Vic graduate.

Goldie Simenstein came to Canada from Odessa, Russia and attended Vic from 1912-16. After a Normal course she taught school, then took her B.A. and finally studied at Columbia University for her Ph D. degree.

IMPORTANT ROLE

With a disrupted Russian educational system calling for re-organization, she left for the Soviet and played an important part in the required work, travelling all over the country in doing so. Goldie Simenstein is now a prominent psycho-analysist in New York City.

ALDERMAN

Vic can claim one city father among its graduates in the person of Alderman Hugh John Macdonald who frequented its halls for three years. During his term at the school he exhibited prowess at both athletics and academic work, and was very popular with both the staff and his fellow students. To those who knew him in his school days, it seems only natural to find him employing these same talents in later life.

BLIND

Blinded at the age of six by an accident which also cost him his right hand, James McDonald determined to make the best of his condition. He came to Vic in 1925 to be the first blind student enrolled in Alberta. He had special tuition in high school subjects and wrote his own final examinations with the aid of a typewriter, finding compensation for his blindness in the ability to concentrate better on his work.

From school Mr. McDonald went to Varsity where he gained his B.A. He is today an organizer for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

GRADS TOO

Although McDougall Commercial has undoubtedly produced nearly all the members of Grads basketball teams Victoria High can claim that a few spent time there.

Nellie Batson and Winnie Martin attended when Mr. Percy Page was a teacher at this school; Connie Smith attended here and Noel MacDonald took her last year of high school at Vic.

Incidentally these four girls combined have captained the champions thirteen of the twenty-five years of their existence.

OPENED NORTH

Edmonton's title of "Gateway to the North" is due largely to the work of several V.H.S. graduates who became fliers. The northern transport pilots, "Wop" May, "Punch" Dickins, Grant McConachie and North Sawle are but a few of the flying men who graduated from the school.

It is reported that one Vic ex-student, now a member of a New York law firm, drew up the document which united various motor firms into General Motors Limited while another Vic grad is now an operative in the Imperial Intelligence—the British Secret Service.

GAIN RECOGNITION

Two of the school's former brilliant scholars have recently achieved national recognition. Albert Prebus with James Hillier of Toronto has invented an electronic microscope which magnifies many times more than former microscopes.

Leon Alaoghs, the other, was recently appointed to a high post in an American university for his great mathematical ability.

First Aid Pointers Given Boy Scouts

CHIPMAN, May 27—Dr. Siemons, medical health officer of the Lamont school unit, gave a lecture here recently to the chipman 1st Boy Scout troop. His topic was First Aid and Bandaging. After the lecture, two films were shown on Diphtheria and Cleanliness.

Highlights From Royal Visit Across Canada

Young People of Dominion Play Major Role in Welcome to Their Majesties King George and Queen Elizabeth

The visit of Their Majesties to Canada is giving everyone, young and old, one of the greatest thrills of their lives. And it is the young Canadians who are cheering loudest and playing some of the most important roles in the history-making visit. Shown above are some scenes from the Royal Visit. In the upper left-hand corner is shown the ceremonies performed by Canadian and American Boy Scouts when they celebrated the recent birthday of His Majesty. Canadian Scouts crossed the international bridge at Alexandria, N.Y., to plant trees, while the American boys crossed to Canadian soil to perform the same rites. In the upper right-hand corner are shown Their Majesties, together with Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret Rose, looking at a map of Canada just before the King and Queen left for Canada. In the lower left-hand corner are shown a group of loyal youngsters who seized vantage points at the very feet of stalwart guardsmen lining the Royal procession route in an eastern city, while in the lower right Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth is presented with a bouquet of flowers from a little Indian girl at Fort William.

MARIE GABOURY FIRST WHITE GIRL IN WEST

How fitting that our King and Queen should visit Three Rivers. We trust, while they are there, some one told them the story of Marie Anne Gaboury, which is the story of the first white woman to come to the west. It was in the days of King George III, when Alberta was still a part of the N.W.T. that Jean Baptiste Lajimoniere, one of the Hudson's Bay's most daring scouts, went to Three Rivers for a visit and to claim Anne for his bride.

Youth and love form a combination ready to face whatever lies ahead. Armed with both she accompanied her husband over hundreds of miles to her new home where the warring Blackfoot and Cree Indians were a constant menace, and blazed the way over which generations of women would come. So strange and beautiful was she to the Indian women, that they came from every direction to see this woman of a strange people.

Their journeys, to and fro, were made on horseback and in after years, their baby was placed in a bag they had fashioned from grass, and made fast to the saddle. Many times they were forced to flee from the warring Indians and it was the friendly palisades of Fort Edmonton they came for refuge—a few yards from the spot where, on June 2, King George VI and Queen Elizabeth will receive their welcome to the city of Edmonton.

Second Annual Graduation Dance, Banquet Festivities Held By Technical School

By JAMES McBRIDE

The main dining room of the Corona hotel was the scene of Tech's second annual Graduation banquet and dance. The room was decorated in the school colors: crimson, black and gold.

From 6.30 p.m. till 9 p.m. over 160 graduands, their parents and their guests ate, drank toasts, listened to speeches, and watched moving pictures taken in the school by Mr. W. V. [illegible]

DESIGNED PROGRAM

Margaret Gordon, talented art student carefully drew and decorated the program and menu which was then "white printed" so that every guest had one as a [illegible]

During the evening, toasts were proposed by F. A. Ford, chairman of the public school board; G. A. McKee, O.B.E.; Miss Susie McC[illegible], vice-president of the Students' Union, and Walter Bessel. They were replied to by Miss Pat McMillan, president of the graduating class; Willard Worthington, academic pin winner; J. A. Ross and M. J. H[illegible]

PRESENTATIONS

Miss McMillan was presented with a beautiful bouquet on behalf of the graduating class by Mrs. Ford. Academic pins were presented to the winners by Mrs. McKee. Following the presentations, W. E. R[illegible] showed several reels of films, showing the students at work at [illegible] and activities around the school during the noon hour.

At 9 p.m. the dining room was cleared and graduands, their parents and their guests danced to the music of Don [illegible]'s orchestra until 12 o'clock sharp the familiar strains of our National Anthem marked the end of a perfect day.

EASTWOOD HIGH HOLDS LAST LIT OF THE SEASON

By RONALD JEFFELS

The final Lit. of the year was held last Tuesday in the gym. Members of the [illegible] 2 classes presented two short plays, "The Noble Lord," an English comedy, and "The Vengeance Height," a melodrama of the Tennessee Mountains. Albert C[illegible] took the part of the noble lord in his white flannels and Marion Harrison as the gold-digging American. William Rachuk supported as the valet. The second play dealt with a mountain feud and was a serious attempt at real tragedy. The cast included Bill Gulliver as the young boy with a curious sense of duty, Ruth Gordon as his blind grandmother, Jim McKinnon as the drawling mountaineer and Helen Smith as the young girl.

The two plays were directed and produced solely by four students Pat Brewster, Ma[illegible] Be[illegible], Gordon [illegible] and Jim G[illegible]. A great deal of credit is due these four for their fine effort. A [illegible] with an improvised orchestra, rounded up the afternoon.

With Exams staring students in the face, social functions are now rather restricted. However, the festival singers held a hike Saturday and the Dramatic Club hope to have another party before the end of June.

The long waited for Year Book will be out on Monday, so all be on hand to get a copy.

VICTORIA

By Gordon Brown

Graduation issue of the Argosy is due to appear Monday and from all indications will be bigger and better than ever. It will have 28 pages, eight more than last year's and will contain pictures of all honor groups, honor students and the 200-odd graduands. Congratulations to the Argosy staff for its efforts.

POSTPONED

Rain forced postponement of second round matches of the golf tournament last Saturday, [illegible] today. Favorites in both boys' and girls' divisions are still in the running.

Monday and Tuesday the school will hold Empire Day exercises in the Assembly Hall. A talk on the Empire will be given by Mr. Scarborough and cheers and songs to be used by the Vic bloc on June 2 will be rehearsed.

Medallions commemorating the Royal Visit will be distributed at the school on June 1.

McDOUGALL COMMERCIAL

By Dorothy Robb

The news is out at last and spreading like wildfire that the Commercial Grad executive have planned their last big affair, namely, a graduation banquet and dance.

So as not to have their banquet too close to those other schools the executive have set their date for June 10.

The banquet will be held in the Masonic Temple and will commence sharp at 7.30 p.m.

PATRONS

Mr. and Mrs. Page along with Mr. and Mrs. Henderson and Mr. and Mrs. Garlough will be the patrons of the affair.

Included in the program for the evening will be the awarding of academic pins to the honor students of the school by Mr. Page.

The Year Book proofs have been read, and the book will be going to press very shortly. The books will probably be distributed to the students about June 1.

The ancients believed that the dew which accumulated upon the plant known as St. John's Wort, during the night preceding St. John's' Day, possessed healing powers.

Scout Doings

Grey skies and a five-inch rain forced postponement of the May 24 rally and the event will likely be held some time before the end of July. The postponement brought a general feeling of disappointment among city troops who had been training for the past months with hopes of their teams copping the honors in the various annual competitions, but every Scout of Edmonton and district will have spent his time towards a good end, for on June 2 uniformed Scouts will line the procession route of Their Majesties and perform other public services where a smart appearance and quick, well trained action will be indispensable.

Four hundred Scouters will act as ushers at points along the bleacher routes while Rover Scouts will perform duties as station guides directing incoming traffic and assisting the St. John's First Aid stations. A special block of bleacher seats has been accorded the local Scouts on the north side of Portage avenue between 105 and 108 streets into which it is expected nearly 1,000 cheering Cubs and Scouts will be crammed.

STAY OVERNIGHT

Of the 800 boys visiting the city from outside points 250 will be staying over night at special camping grounds just north of the Prince of Wales Armories where four large marquees and two camp kitchens are being arected to accommodate them. It is noteworthy that, as all over the Dominion, so in Edmonton the Scout organization will play an important role during Their Majesties' visit and not the least portion of the waving and applauding will be the rows and rows of smartly uniformed Cubs and Scouts greeting the King and Queen from Edmonton bleachers just as brother Scouts across Canada have heralded the sovereign at his other stopping points.

Outside troops sending contingents include Andrew, Beaverlodge, Camrose, Castor, Chipman, Coal Valley, Edberg, Onoway, Lloydminster, Vegreville, Wabamun, Grande Prairie, Chauvin, Ashmont, Bashaw, Byemoor, Camrose, Holden, Millet, Red Deer, Sylvan Lake, Strome, Rimbey, Thorsby, Vermilion, Vilna, Viking, Westlock, Wetaskiwin, Mirror and several others.

SUCCESSFUL

The annual Scout Flag Day, May 20, although hampered by a steady drizzle, was considered a success by executives and door-to-door canvassing has been continued throughout the past week.

Canadian and American Scouts met at the Alberta boundary last Saturday to join in an impressive commemoration ceremony. Significant of the friendly relations existing between the two neighbor countries and paying tribute to the birthday of the King, the Montana and Alberta representatives exchanged greetings and combined in planting trees at this unique union.

GIRL GUIDES FORM COMPANY RIMBEY AREA

RIMBEY, May 27—At an impressive enrollment service conducted by Mrs. T. Palfrey, commander of the Wetaskiwin division, a company of Girl Guides was formed at Rimbey with a membership of 22. Assisting Mrs. Palfrey were Miss M. Robinson, captain of the Wetaskiwin city company; Miss Mary Enmann, lieutenant of the same troop, and Miss N. Barker, Brown Owl of the Wetaskiwin Brownies.

All entrants were successful in passing their knot-tying tests and were enrolled as second class guides. There are four patrols under leaders Enid Roper, Audrey Cutler, Viola Gunn and Patsey Johnston. Miss Mollie McLees is captain of the company and Miss Ruth Price lieutenant.

Edmonton Walther League Holds Banquet At Corona

A banquet-dinner sponsored by the Walther League Society of Grace Lutheran church and St. Peter's church was held in the Royal George hotel recently in commemoration of the 46th anniversary of the founding of the International Walther League. It proved to be an event which was greatly enjoyed by all in attendance.

Guest speaker for the evening was Rev. H. Haffner of Camrose who spoke on "International Walther League—Its Program and Purpose." He outlined the growth of the organization from 1893 to the present day, showing the total membership now to be in excess of 80,000 with 2,300 organized societies throughout the United States and Canada. Mention was made of the various business units included in the makeup of the International; included in these were the Walther League Messenger with a circulation of 5,000; the Cresset and Lutheran Witness, two other publications; the Lutheran Tuberculosis Sanitorium at Wheatridge, Colorado.

He claimed the aim of prime importance to be that of keeping the young people within the church as taken from the slogan "Pro Aris et Focis"—For Church and Home. His address, capably presented, was greatly enjoyed and appreciated by an attentive audience. Rev. H. J. Boettcher, pastor of Grace Lutheran church, and other society members spoke briefly. Val. J. Kulak presided ably as toastmaster.

After dinner recreation and sing-song was carried out under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Schmidt. The evening was brought to a close with an interesting and instructive dramatization and candle-lighting ceremony called "The Light of the World" in which the following members took part:

Misses Emelia Hennig, Elsa Hennig, Hilma Fischer, Clara Schienbein, Erna Litzenberger, Kathleen Hickey; Messrs Schmok, Krueger, Schmidt, Kuhnke, Boettcher and Cole.

C. Kuhnke was chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements for the entire program.

Joseph Waller Is Model Engine Fan

Using only the same simple tools to be found in anybody's garage or basement, and gathering material from salvage companies and plumbers, Joseph Waller of 9311 65 ave. has constructed a five-foot scale model of a streamlined C.N.R. locomotive out of scrap metal. He spent four years making the engine.

The model weighs 150 pounds and is five feet four inches long. It cost Mr. Waller just $30 to construct. For plans he used two or three pictures and blueprints borrowed from the C.N.R. and numerous pictures cut out of railroad magazines.

ST. JOSEPH'S

By Rene Boileau

Extensive plans are being made by the committee in charge, for the big "Sep. Grad Dance" to be held on June 9th, at the Silver Glade.

No effort is being spared by the committee, in trying to make this dance, at which the students and their guests will attend, the finest in the history of the school.

Joe Nadeau and his orchestra will provide the music for this gala affair.

Patronesses for the occasion will be Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Heffernan, Mr. J. T. J. Collisson, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Tighe.

The committee in charge of arrangements for the dance is comprised of Gertrude Kehoe, Jacqueline Logan, Bill Maher and Rene Boileau.

The ping-pong tournament is rapidly advancing to completion. The winner will be presented with a cup.

Today, the birth rate of England and Wales is less than 15 per 1,000 of the population, as compared to 25 per 1,000 in 1911.

Snapshots Corner

By CAMFAN

The arrival of Their Majesties next Friday will provide a real test of your photographic skill—what record of their visit will you have made? Remember that a successful snapshot is one which is sufficiently exposed and sharply focussed. The size of the picture does not matter; if it is sharp it can be made as big as you want.

Those who have purchased new cameras for this occasion are reminded that for this special event the safest procedure will be to

(1) Use "stop number" f.11.
(2) Shutter speed 50.
(3) Chrome-type film or faster.
(4) Distance scale 50 ft.

BEGINNERS' DEPARTMENT

Before attempting to develop a film for the first time read carefully the instructions given in the booklet supplied with your camera or buy a small booklet from the advertisers in this column for a dollar or less. Then get someone who already knows how to show you. If you cannot get this assistance drop a card to Camfan c-o Edmonton Bulletin and an experience amateur in your neighborhood will be asked to help you.

PICTURES AT NIGHT

Last chance to enter pictures for this contest will be May 31, the winners being announced two weeks later. Snaps or time exposures of lightning, fires, fireworks, floodlighted buildings, auto headlights or spotlights as well as unusual effects with special equipment all have a good chance. With the two dollars you can buy enough film for your summer vacation.

GLOSSARY

Speed—Eenters camera conversation in several connections. Shutter speed means the length of time during which light is admitted to the film through the lens; this may be as "fast" as 1-1000 second or even less. Lens speed is measured by the size of the opening in the "stop" divided by its distance from the film which is usually expressed as an "f-number". For example a one inch hole four inches from the film is called "f:4", etc. Finally, speed may be discussed in connection with films or subjects

Film speeds may be estimated in several ways which do not agree with one another, a subject itself for a later issue, subject speeds refer obviously to the distance through which the object being photographed moves in a given time; this and the direction of movement should usually be the deciding factor in choosing shutter speed.

Toning—This is a process by which the black silver image is converted to a colored image by chemical method. The most common type of toning is to "sepia" a rich brown by conversion of the silver metal to the salt "silver sulphide" which is quite permanent.

WENSTOB, WARRINGTON IN PEAK FORM

SPORTS BULLETIN

Looking Them Over

By Jack Kelly

Tiger Confident

This and That

TERRY TIGER WARRINGTON, the eastern Canada champion that the west has looked forward to for the past couple years as Wenstob's ultimate opponent, arrived in Edmonton yesterday and straightaway proceeded to make an impression in keeping with his record. He's a mighty tough fighting man, is Terry the Tiger, and don't let anyone tell you he isn't.

This colored clouter is a soft spoken gent who immediately gives you the feeling that he knows his way around the ring—and outside it, too. He's got that indefinable something that gives him the bearing of a champion. Eastern Canada seems to have a right worthy standard bearer in this sleek muscled Tiger that has come here to fight the best western Canada has.

Warrington appears to have no worry about Wenstob.

"I've never seen him fight," he explained. "All I know of him is his record and what I hear of him. They tell me that Killer Coates slowed him up with a heavy punch in their fight here and made him play safe for the rest of the fight. It looks as if he couldn't take it from a heavy puncher and keep on coming. If that's right, I won't have much to worry about. He doesn't seem to be able to hit very hard either."

Maybe the Tiger is right, but it is only fair to him to point out that Wenstob has never been knocked out and never knocked down for even a one-count—and Wenstob has fought a lot of men who are rated as highly as Warrington. Right now I can't see the Tiger knocking out Wenstob.

Grads Ready For Chicago

LAST night Coach Percy Page put his world champion Grads through their final practice game for their series with the Queen Anne Aces of Chicago which opens here Monday night. The Grads battled the Boy Grads for six eight-minute periods and both teams shot the works. The Grads won out by 65-64—and the game was just like that.

The world champs came through the 48-minute struggle with stamina to spare and a field shot accuracy of 36 per cent against tough checking that left Coach Page satisfied that his club was ready for the brilliant array of basketball talent that Harry Wilson has gathered in Chicago and trained for nearly three months especially for this best of five series with the Grads. The second game will be on Wednesday night and the third one on the night of June 2, the day of the Royal visit to Edmonton.

Little Helen Northup led the scoring parade last night with 19 points. In the fourth period she chalked up four consecutive baskets. Captain Noel MacDonald was next with 17 points, while Etta Dann, another of the Grads' Mighty Mites, was third with 11 points.

Coach Harry Wilson and his Aces will arrive from Chicago on Sunday over the C. P. R. He plans to hold a workout on Monday morning at the Arena. This will be the tenth trip that Wilson has made to Edmonton in search of the international championship held by the Grads. He has passed the stage when he predicts a win—but he is confident that his present team is the best he has yet brought to battle the Grads.

Booster Rally Reports Progress

MEETING in the Shasta last night, the Sport Booster Club held a check-up on its membership drive and found that it was ahead of the point reached last year after the same length of canvassing . . . which injected a lot of pep into the boys.

The Boosters' drive for membership is the first step in their preparations to give Edmonton a football club that will be a serious contender for the Western Conference title and a hockey team that will be a major contender for western senior honors.

"Produce a winning team and it will finance itself and give enough profit to build up a reserve, but to get a winning club you must first of all have sufficient money to work with," Clarence Campbell pointed out in a brief talk. "That is the reason we are out to put over this drive. Once you have winning clubs, the set-up of the Sport Booster Club will maintain that calibre without any financial strain."

That sums up the situation as clearly as any one can. Major team sports are now definitely big business. Any business man knows that a business will not start making enough to carry itself the minute its doors are thrown open. There has to be money enough to carry it until it is established as a going concern. It is to supply funds to establish major Edmonton sports on a sound, self-supporting basis for future years that the Boosters are appealing to you for support.

Softball League Stages Twin Bill At Boyle Sunday

City and District Softball Association will stage a doubleheader at Boyle street diamond on Sunday afternoon, with the first game billed to start at 1:45 o'clock.

Two strong junior teams clash in the opening fixture when Canadian Bedding meets last year's champion Eastwood Rangers. This is expected to provide a real battle for softball fans.

KYLE ENTERS BRITISH FINAL WITH DUNCAN

Scot Opposes Welshman for Golf Crown in 36-Hole Final

HOYLAKE, England, May 27.—Alex Kyle, an iron-hearted Scot with a miraculous sawed-off putting cleek, eliminated Bill Holt of Syracuse, N.Y., in the semi-final of the British amateur golf championship Friday and joined Tom Duncan, Welsh soldier, in today's 36-hole final tussle.

Kyle, who ousted Jim Bruen, 19-year-old Irish sensation, one up in the morning's quarter finals, exploded from traps or chipped up and one putted seven of the last nine holes to put out the long hitting Holt 2 to 1. It was the same Kyle who clinched the Walker cup for Great Britain at St. Andrews last year.

Duncan advanced to the final by beating Charlie Stowe, English miner, 3 and 2, in the semi-final. The finalist cut down the chief American threat, Dick Chapman of Greenwich, Conn., 5 and 3, in the quarter-final.

Kyle, a Scottish cloth designer, always either chipped dead or hit the ball somewhere on the green and then sank it.

Duncan, Welsh champion and former Oxford golf captain, beat Stowe with his putter so the final today will be a battle between two great putters.

SCHRINER DEAL IS COMPLETED BY TWO CLUBS

TORONTO, May 27.—Managing director Conny Smythe of the Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League said Friday Manager Red Dutton of New York Americans has agreed to the deal whereby Dave (Sweeney) Schriner will come to the Leafs in exchange for four players.

Schriner, high-scoring left winger with the Amerks, comes to Toronto for Harvey (Busher) Jackson, left winger, Doc Romnes, centre; Buzz Boll, left winger out with injuries last season, and Jimmy Fowler, defenceman. Fowler goes to Amerks on option for one season only, however, while the other three become Amerk property.

The deal was announced here last week but was not confirmed by Dutton until yesterday.

ENGLAND LEADING DAVIS CUP ROUND

WIMBLEDON, England, May 27—England took a 2-1 lead over France in their European zone Davis cup round Friday by winning the doubles match after splitting Thursday's opening singles engagements.

The veteran Frank Wilde and Charles Hare were carried to five sets before overcoming the French doubles pair, Yvon Petra and Pierre Pelliza, 6-3, 6-3, 3-6, 4-6, 6-3.

The remaining two singles matches will be played today.

West End Cardinals Practice Sunday

West End Cardinals, midget baseball team, will hold a workout at the Golf Links diamond on Sunday morning, starting at 10 o'clock.

All players desiring a tryout with the club are asked to be on hand

Ready For Distance

Above you have a shot of Eddie Wenstob skipping a rope at his Seba Beach training camp. He was just completing a 15-round workout when the picture was taken and wasn't even breathing hard. He figures he is in better condition than he has ever been and he is confident that he will emerge with the dominion lightheavy and heavyweight championships after his 15-round bout with Tiger Warrington of Liverpool, Nova Scotia, here on the night of June 1.

Davis Will Defend Belt At Renfrew Park June 2

ONE of the busiest men around town these days is Promoter Mike Cutcher of the grunt and groan game, who is preparing for his big one night wrestling tournament to take place on June 2 at Renfrew baseball park. This will mark Mike's first open air card held in Edmonton. Promoter Mike has one of the finest cards arranged here in many a moon.

Three weeks ago Mike held the finals of the international belt tournament which was won by Dizzy Davis. It was one of those bouts the wrestling fans in our city were talking about for weeks. There were plenty who claimed Davis got a break by drawing the bye and had it soft compared to his opponent, Pat O'Dowdy, who had to wrestle three hard opponents to the Dizzy one's two.

So to settle this argument, Mike is forcing Davis to throw the belt up for challenge on this night, and with the weather nice these days, and expecting a large crowd, Mike has selected Renfrew ball park for the match.

There will be five bouts on the card with new faces appearing. Popular Johnny Demchuk and Herb Parks arrived in Toronto from England last week and are negotiating for a bout on this card. The promoter is trying to get two outstanding grapplers to meet Demchuk and Parks on Friday night's card.

Vitt Thinks Yanks Playing Above Their Heads

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

(Pinch-hitting for Henry McLemore—Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin)

NEW YORK, May 27.—Seen and heard along the baseball trail: Buck Newsom says there's only one club with a chance to beat the Yankees. . . "What club, Buck?" . . "The club that wins the National League pennant." . . But Oscar Vitt, for one, thinks the Yankees are playing over their heads. . . "They aren't as good as they look right now and they may have some trouble before the year's out," says the Cleveland pilot.

Vitt does not think the Yanks have a super-team. "Just give me Gordon and Crosetti for my club, and let the Yanks have my two guys," suggests Vitt. "Then let us start even and we'll see who's got the ball club. Don't you think that Gordon and Crosetti don't make the difference in the Yanks and the Indians."

The Yankees do not bark much at the umpires. . . Joe McCarthy discourages his players from arguing with the umps and only one Yankee has been ejected this season. . . "Umpires don't beat you; the other team does," is McCarthy's observation.

FASTEST BALLPLAYER

Earl Mann, president of the Atlanta Crackers, says he has the fastest player in baseball on his team—Jock Rucker, a nephew of Nap Rucker, Brooklyn's famous old southpaw. . . "If there are any foot races to decide the fastest player in baseball at the all-star game," says Mann, "we want to enter Rucker. And we don't have to worry who'll be the winner."

The rumors that Don Padgett, Cardinals outfielder, is headed for the Dodgers will not subside. . . Desperate for a pitcher, Bill Terry may trade Harry Danning, Giants' catcher whose free and easy manner with scribes has not ingratiated him with Memphis Bill. . . The Indians are still after that second baseman. . . The search now is in the sixteenth year. . . They haven't had a capable defensive player at second since Bill Wambsganss.

NOT A PAIR OF REDS?

Ben Chapman and Johnny Broaca, ex-Yankees now with Cleveland, are room mates when the Indians are on the road. . . When the Indians came to Yankee Stadium, Red Rolfe yelled at Chapman: "Stalin would feel right at home in that room. He'd probably pick up some ideas, too." . . The Giants' pitchers have issued 138 walks in 31 games, which shows you how far back the league's once best control staff has gone.

Some of the experts are tabbing Pittsburgh as the team to watch in the National League race. . . With practically no help from Cy Blanton and Russ Bauers, the Pirates, who dropped eight out of their first nine, have clicked off 14 out of their last 21 and boosted their way up to the .500 mark. . . Whispers are going the rounds that Dizzy Dean's 14 scoreless innings against the Dodgers and Bees aren't to be taken too seriously and that the Cub pitcher is far from being ready to take his regular turn.

LOOKS LIKE GEHRINGER

Barnie McCoskey, Detroit's brilliant rookie outfielder, has copied his batting stance from Charlie Gehringer and looks almost exactly like the Tiger second baseman when he's swinging. . . Carl Hubbell, who faced him in the all-star games several times, has long contended that Gehringer is the craftiest hitter he ever faced. . . Red Ruffing, even with his perfect record of six straight victories, still is bothered by a muscle in his arm and has to be careful throwing curves.

Lou Gehrig, the highest-paid player in baseball at $34,000 for 1939, earns his dough carrying the lineup to the umpires and shagging balls for fungo hitters. . . But Lou, grey at the temples and looking older than when he was the Yankee first baseman, is cheerful about the sudden turn of events which have relegated him to the bench, probably forever. . . He smiles more than anybody on the Yankee bench.

MAX IS STILL ENTERTAINING SORT OF GENT

By WHITNEY MARTIN

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, May 27.—Mad-Cap Maxie Baer, no matter what he does next Thursday night against Lou Nova in a heavyweight elimination fight, still is an entertaining fellow.

He came to town Thursday night from his training camp for a broadcasting engagement, barged into Promoter Mike Jacobs' office "to build up the fight" and for an hour entertained a small audience of sports writers with as fine an act as ever was staged outside a theatre.

"SO I'M A QUITTER"

First of all Max broke a long silence—fully three seconds, and an expression of injured innocence settled on his flat, mobile face.

"I go out in the fourth round against Joe Louis, so I'm a quitter. But Jack Roper, John Henry Lewis and Max Schmeling got out in less than a round, so they're game guys," the former champion complained. He aired his hopes, his regrets. He praised, mostly Baer.

"Look at this," Maxie exploded. "I lost about eight fights, and they were against men like Loughran and Louis. Galento loses about 28 bouts, and some were surrounded by an air of antiquity, but he gets the Louis fight. A couple of lamb chops and two days' rest after the Nova bout and I'd beat Galento. I'm going to jab Nova a lot. I'm going to knock him right on his pants with a left hook, a left hook, mind you.

"I'm not a boxer, but I can be pretty cute in there. And I'm a better puncher than Louis."

"I'm a changed man now," he explained later. "I'm a family man now, and when I see my boy after the Nova fight I want him to say, 'Whee, here's the champ'."

SCOTS REVAMP TEAM TO MEET CIVIC ELEVEN

Scottish United, with a revamped lineup, are hopeful they will give their more fancied Civic opposition a real tussle this evening at Clarke Stadium when these two teams meet in a scheduled game of the Edmonton Football association.

The Scots have been taking much abuse from both the Civics and Scona United, but today they hope to lay down a defence barrier and a forward attack sufficiently defensive and offensive power to upset the more fancied Civics.

The Civics on the other hand need the win badly for with such a margin they can tie Scona for top place in the league standing. The kick-off is timed for 6:45 p.m.

Eastern Champ Gives Smart Workout Here

By JACK KELLY

Edmonton Bulletin Sports Editor

IF PERFECT physical condition, past performances and deadly earnestness mean anything in the fight game, then the 15-round battle here June 1 between Warrington and Wenstob for the dominion lightheavy and heavyweight titles should provide all that is needed to bring the fans to town.

Out at his training camp at Seba Beach, Eddie Wenstob went 15 fast rounds on Thursday for a party of fans and sport scribes—and he wasn't even breathing hard when he finished. He had enough reserve for another five rounds. Yesterday he took a rest and did nothing but go for a hike with his bow and arrows—archery being his latest hobby. Today he limited himself to four or five rounds of sparring, rope work and bag punching.

Officially recognized holder of the eastern Canada championship in the lightheavy and heavyweight divisions, Terry "Tiger" Warrington, the colored pride of Liverpool, Nova Scotia, arrived in Edmonton yesterday to finish up his training here after two full weeks of heavy work in Stillman's Gym in New York.

TIGER IMPRESSES

Edmonton fans got their first glimpse of the Liverpool Tiger in action at the Alberta Sports Limited gym Friday afternoon and they left deeply impressed. Warrington is almost a perfect double for Wenstob in physique, weight and height—he has the same long, silky muscles, the same trim hips and legs and the same massive shoulders. His weight yesterday was 177.

The Tiger contented himself with loosening up yesterday and didn't undertake any sparring. His routine of shadow boxing, bag work and rope skipping bore the stamp of a top-notcher. He went nine rounds in all and finished breathing easily. He works again today at the Alberta Sports gym in the Edmonton Paint and Glass Building, 103 street, at 3 p.m.

While a fighter that looks sensational in the gym may look like a bum when somebody starts pouring leather at him, Warrington has a poise and confidence about him that is infectious. Every now and then he ripped a right into the heavy bag that seemed to be driven with enough voltage to knock a man clean out of the ring. Like all eastern fighters, he fights from a crouching position. His left appears to be something Wenstob had better watch closely while his shift to the body looks plenty vicious.

WELL NAMED

Whoever dubbed Warrington a "Tiger" wasn't exaggerating much. He moves around the ring with the same effortless, silky movements of one of these great jungle cats. It isn't hard to imagine him stalking a man in the ring with the quiet, deadly viciousness of a tiger. He seems to be able to throw punches from any angle and all you can see of them is a blur of movement.

It has been many a year since any more able looking fighter than Warrington has worked in an Edmonton ring.

But out in the monastic seclusion of his lake camp, Eddie Wenstob, western Canada champion, isn't worrying about the deadly Tiger from the east that has prowled westward in search of him. Dressed in a mackinaw shirt and outdoor togs, Eddie stretched lazily on a cot and talked enthusiastically about the big jackfish he was catching by casting from the end of the pier. He's a nut about the outdoors and he feels right at home.

EDDIE NOT WORRIED

"I never saw Warrington, but I guess he's plenty tough according to his record," he drawled when we talked about the fight. "I don't care about that though. I've been wanting a fight like this that would give me the chance to win the dominion title—and how are you going to win that kind of a championship without fighting a guy that's plenty tough? I've been fighting here, England, the U.S. and back again hoping for a shot like this that would put me up in the big money. I'm ready for it right now."

Eddie was looking across the room at a picture of a very charming young lady and himself as he spoke. It is possible that he was weighing dominion championship payoff money in terms of romance. However that is strictly a personal matter and none of us pried into it. That sort of an angle though has

REDS BEAT CARDS TO TAKE LEAGUE LEADERSHIP

CLASSIC OAKS STAKE TAKEN BY GALATEA II

Bookmakers Take Beating As Favorite Captures Race for Fillies

EPSOM, England, May 27.—R. S. Clark's Galatea II, a brown filly by Dark Legend from Galady II and 10 to 11 odds on favorite, Friday raced to a head victory in the classic Oaks for three-year-old fillies and completely routed the bookmakers who had already been trimmed to the tune of $5,000,000 when Blue Peter, the 7 to 2 favorite, romped home in the Derby Wednesday.

There was no official estimate of the bookies' deficit on the two classic but as the betting was even money their satchels were empty last night when they pulled stakes at the end of the meeting

REPEATS FINE FORM

Repeating the form which carried her to victory in the Thousand Guineas April 28, the American-owned Galatea II took command of the race coming into the stretch and beat off a challenge by Edward Esmond's French-bred White Fox to win by a head. Superbe, a 20 to 1 shot, was a poor third.

The winner, who may meet Blue Peter in the St. Leger in September, negotiated the 1½ mile Derby course in two minutes, 40 2-5 seconds, almost four seconds off Blue Peter's Derby performance.

NO OPPOSITION

Jockey Jones said he could have won easier "if I had anything to race with me."

It was the third Oaks victory for Trainer Lawson who saddled Penny Come Quick in 1929 and Exhibitionist in 1937.

"FAREWELL to SPORT" by PAUL GALLICO

From the Reviewing Stand

ONE of the greatest of all spectator sports from the point of view of sustained action and wide-open play that anyone can understand is soccer football, and after you have seen it played in England or in Italy it is easy to understand why crowds of a hundred thousand turn out for it. But it doesn't appeal to the American, who prefers to have his football picked up and advanced concealed beneath a welter of rules and regulations that he cannot possibly comprehend. In soccer the ball is never out of sight, the players are in action, running at top speed, for the full ninety minutes.

Speed skating is fairly interesting and colorful, but it gives one the curious effect of looking much slower than it actually is. A mile run, somehow, looks much faster than a mile skate. The contestants, bent over double, string out in a line, gliding with long powerful strokes, all apparently in the same rhythm. It is striding that wins skating races, which gives them their strange placidity.

The darling of all the blade and ice sports is the free skating phase of figure-skating, which is destined to become the joy and delight of the balletomanes of the future, because it is the ballet freed almost completely from the trammels of gravity and the limitation of the human body. The speed of steel on ice gives height, distance and pure flight to leaps that cannot possibly be paralleled on foot, as well as the pure, flowing line of movement that is never broken.

RHYTHMIC BEAUTY

For lovely, sustained, and rhythmic poetry of the human figure in motion, I have never seen anything more beautiful than the pair skating of Maxie Heber and Herbert Baier, the German world-championship pair, or that of the brother and sister Paussin, the two Viennese youngsters who bring the Strauss waltzes to new life and meaning on the ice, or the solo skating of Sonja Henie of Norway, or the ice-dancing of gleaming Maribel Vinson of the United States, or Vivi-Ann Hultane, the Swedish skater

Figure-skating has still to free itself of ugly, formalized spins and meaningless whirls done in ungainly squatting positions. But these are being turned more and more into legitimate ballet pirouettes and blended into the ice dances rather given as exhibitions of ability to withstand centrifugal force and violent attacks of vertigo. Figure-skating more than any other sport has been shackled to its past, and in the fast, free skating without reverting to acrobatics for the sake of acrobatics was unthinkable. One of the first great steps towards freeing the combination sport and art from these ungainly hangovers was realized at Garmisch during the 1936 Olympic Games, where for the first time in the history of figure-skating Baier and the lithe, elf-lke Herber dance-skated their pair to music composed especially for them, and interpreted the music

THE SHERLOCKS

There is an amusing angle to figure-skating which nobody ever sees but the judges because it is unspectacular and a great bore, and that is the competition in the school figures, the rockers and loops and brackets and double three and bracket-change-bracket, the back inside rockers, and all the rest of the stylized manoeuvres that are judged by exactly what the name implies, the figures traced on the ice by the sharp edges of the skate. When the skater in the competition has completed the figure called for in the test three times, the judges solemnly stomp out onto the ice, teetering a little in their heavy overshoes, kneel down with all the hawk-like keenness of Sherlock Holmes looking for a footprint or some ash from a Trinchinopoli cigar, and examine the tracings

There is also a sinister aspect to it all International, and frequently Olympic, figure-skating competitions are for the most part as completely and joyously crooked and bought and sold as any prize-fight or wrestling championship Some of the European judges are as fine a set of scamps and vote-peddlers as you ever laid your eyes on. The sport is so completely commercialized abroads that it i vital to have the right people win it. The right people always do. It would be foolish, for instance, to have an American girl win a world championship, or an American pair, because that would entail a great deal of expense in bringing them over for these perennial European ice carnivals and exhibitions.

The dressing-room of the American skaters in Garmisch was invaded by one of the European judges offering to do a little horse-swapping of votes. If the American judges would give Miss Whosit high marks, the European judges in return would see that the American, Miss Whatsit, would place higher than she would otherwise. They laughned at him and threw him out. The American figure-skaters didn't do so well at Garmisch.

Do I hear you inquiring plaintively: "Ain't nuthin' on the level?" I dunno You tell me

SALE BOOMS ALONG

In the meantime Promoter Fred Osborne almost broke down and became an optimist as he checked over his advance ticket sale last night

"If the weather is decent and if half the people come to Edmonton that are expected for the royal visit and if the sale keeps on like it has been going—well we may sell out pretty nearly all of the 6,000 seats in the Arena," Fred admitted

Coming from Osborne, that is about the same as a forecast of a full house

The first prelims are scheduled to get underway at 8.30 p.m. with the main event due to start about 10 p.m. Five bouts are carded in addition to the dominion championship One of these supporting bouts will see Thompson of Black Diamond put his western Canada welter crown on the block against Janiten of Edmonton. They are a couple of buzz-saw punchers that should provide plenty of action. Jimmy Chapman of Edmonton battles Johnny Farr of Portland in the eight-round semi-final. Both are featherweights

A Bulletin Short Story Complete on This Page Every Saturday

- - - - - By Ernest Poole

"I'LL GO with her," Jimmy thought. For he'd seen the fear that came into her eyes and the way she tried to fight it down.

Lucy Blodgett was ten years old and her brother Pete was seven. As she buttoned his overcoat and tied an old sweater about his neck, then bundled up herself as well, her round little jaws were set like a vise and her hands trembled, for she knew it was twenty below zero outside, and past the country schoolhouse out there in Dakota that afternoon the wind howled down the icy road that led two miles to her father's farm.

Coming up that road this morning, slipping, stumbling, dragging her brother over high frozen drifts of snow, when they reached the school exhausted they'd shaken with chills and their lips had been blue. And most of the other small children who came—they were all of them small—had been like that.

Jimmy Gale, their young teacher, knew how they felt, for when he had come at seven this morning to get the place warm before they arrived, this room had been like an icy tomb and his hands had been so stiff and numb it was all he could do to start a fire in the old box stove by the wall.

Into it he'd piled small logs and as the fire began to roar he'd gone about the big square room stuffing with burlap and old rags the chinks and cracks in walls, windows and floor. Even so, it had taken till nine o'clock to get the room even passably warm. And most of the children had come at eight.

From their grim and lonely farms they'd come with the old instinct for herding together when it is cold, hungry for the companionship here and still more because of the way they were drawn to this amazing new teacher and the fascinating things he told about the big sparkling world outside.

Professor Suggests Plan To Jimmy Gale

Jimmy was only twenty-three. Until about a year ago he'd never thought of a job like this, for his brilliant record in college had opened the road to a teaching career through the high schools right up to the big university where his record had been made. But just before graduation his favorite professor there had said to him one evening as they sat and smoked their pipes:

"I've an idea for you, Jimmy Gale. Though we've made great headway in public schools, a record to be proud of, there are some lonely corners in this State neglected still. Why not try a year or so in a little country school like that and get down to the bare elementals of life? You'll find some great material there, the kind of stuff Abe Lincoln came from. And you'd be surprised to know how many of our leading men still come from country schools like that."

[illegible] Jimmy said. And so he had come here in the Fall. Getting down to elementals was right! There'd been [illegible] drought and crops had failed [illegible] the neighboring farmers were [illegible] in gloom. And [illegible] of the north country [illegible] and say at first gave the new teacher no easy start.

But there was something about Jimmy Gale [illegible] that made little tots and grown [illegible] feel he was their friend. Behind the [illegible] of his smile was a warm rebellious gaiety, rebellious against the poverty here and the grim loneliness of their lives. So in the school room, little by little he began to warm them up with the glimpses of the world outside, glimpses planned to set them [illegible].

"Here's what life can really be! If you just will [illegible] get busy, here's what's waiting for you out there."

Watching carefully, he saw the first slow kindling of response, the starved eagerness of eyes that began to fill with dreams. But he didn't want mere students here, he [illegible] to make these silent kids regular human little guys.

So at noon recess and after school he started them at games out of doors. On Saturdays he [illegible] up [illegible] wooded hills. He taught them how to make box kites and skis from the long hickory staves of an old [illegible] he had found. They made bob sleds and they [illegible] out carved pumpkin lanterns for Hallowe'en, bobbed for apples, cut [illegible] from cardboard and dressed them up for a Thanksgiving show.

He brought an old magic lantern to school and set up a small [illegible] and from the weekly [illegible] he [illegible] and story to dramatize the bigger life [illegible] the hills and far away.

More small children came to school. Fourteen at first, then were twenty [illegible]. And [illegible] Jimmy, [illegible] they were! "Here's what [illegible] gave you [illegible]" They did!

Jimmy Spellbinds School Children

But all the time through Fall and Winter, the more human warmth he'd brought into the schoolhouse the colder it had grown outside, and the [illegible] had drifted high with snow and ice.

No weather for such little kids. Most of them should be at home. But with this new [illegible] he had stirred, still they all flocked to his school! They came early and stayed late, though he found it hard to keep the room barely warm. In vain he begged the school board for storm windows and doors and a new coal stove that would keep burning through the night.

"We've got no money, Mister Gale. Crops have failed and we're down to bed rock. Let the kids stay home when it's cold. They always did in such weather before. If you've got 'em spellbound, that's your business and not ours."

"It is my business," Jimmy said. To get them spellbound, that's his job, by the old magic of new ideas and discoveries of what life can be. And he had kept right [illegible]. All through those long Winter months and [illegible] the cold [illegible]. And [illegible] of bread into their [illegible] gloom came into his [illegible] — for he had [illegible] that would make this room really warm tomorrow by eight o'clock! In the meantime he would [illegible] them home.

"Wait, Lucy, I'll go with you," he said. He caught the instant [illegible] in her face but he caught looks of jealousy, too, from other small children standing there. Careful now, no teacher's pets.

"All you who are going Lucy's way come along with us," he said, "and I'll help you over the worst of the road. The rest of you wait here if you like and I'll come back and go with you, too."

Plans New Way To Light Fires

From those two long hikes he [illegible] Jimmy came back chilled to the bone. Quickly he warmed himself at the stove. Now for that magic he had planned! From a shelf he took down his old chemistry book and studied once more a formula there. Then he brought out two small paper parcels and a tiny bottle, bought on his last trip to town.

On the iron hearth in front of the stove he [illegible] a small pile of shavings. [illegible] of powder [illegible] a few drops of acid [illegible] the powder below. [illegible]

"Absolutely O.K." [illegible]

By [illegible]

[illegible]

He [illegible] he worked till now it was already six at night and the room was already freezing.

"It won't be so tomorrow," he thought. "Those kids will find this schoolhouse warm!"

The thing was absolutely sure, for even if by some little slip the fire here should fail to start, he'd be watching from the farmhouse where he boarded, a mile away, and if he saw no smoke from the chimney he'd come right over and light up. Still he stood there looking down at his ingenious device with a queer uncanny little ghost of a premonition of trouble ahead. He laughed at himself and shook it off.

"It's this damned wind," he told himself. "It gets on the nerves. Will it never stop?"

They were drawn to this amazing new teacher and the fascinating things he told.

Absence Of Light Disturbs Jimmy

Throwing on his sheepskin coat he went out into the night and followed a path across the fields to the small farmhouse where he lived. As he drew near he could see no lights.

"That's queer," he thought and he quickened his pace. Then he heard loud barking from inside, and when he came into the dark kitchen the farmer's huge old cattle dog came to him, whining with relief.

"Hello, Dan. What's wrong?" he asked. The old dog whined and licked his hands. For Dan had been worried because he knew that he was all alone in the house and already the room was growing cold, and his long life in this north country had taught him well that dogs need men to keep up fires on such nights.

Fumbling for matches, Jimmy lit a lamp on the table and discovered a note for him there explaining that the farmer and his wife had gone in their car to the aid of a dying sister at the other end of the county. The man would be back tomorrow night. He had fed and bedded his team for tonight. Would Jimmy feed them in the morning? No other livestock in the barn, for their two cows had died in the drought.

Rather pleased than otherwise at the prospect of being alone, Jimmy piled wood in the kitchen stove. The big wood box was half empty and he decided to fill it at once. As he went out by the kitchen door the thermometer showed nearly thirty below. It would be [illegible] by morning he thought, he'd need a lot of wood tonight.

From the wood pile he took a big armful and brought it into the kitchen, then went out for a second and third. But the last time he [illegible] with his heavy load of small logs [illegible] the frozen earth. And the moment he tried to rise [illegible] from the lower part of [illegible] a sharp savage stab of pain. Quickly he [illegible] and felt the [illegible].

"Good God, I've broken it!" he exclaimed. He dragged himself up the steps into the kitchen, shoved the door shut and dropped back on the floor. All right, what could he [illegible] about that? No telephone, no doctor to call, no human help of any kind, the nearest farm over a mile away. Jimmy set his jaws on the pain. "Oh, I guess I [illegible]," he thought. "After all [illegible] broken leg and the [illegible] will be back by tomorrow night."

Prays Contrivance Doesn't Fail Pupils

"Tomorrow!" He looked up with a start. What about those small kids at school? Suppose his contrivance failed to work and they found their place of refuge cold as death, still at twenty below. Panic siezed him. He fought it down.

"It's got to work, it's got to! Forget it!" Jimmy told himself. "If you let your nerves get you like this, you're going to have one hell of a night! Think of yourself, now. What can you do?" He saw old Dan, the cattle dog, anxiously watching from where he lay in his warm corner by the stove. "You're right about it, Dan," he said. "If we want to stay alive, we'll have to get this leg fixed up enough so I can move about and keep up the fire tonight!"

As he lay there his eyes roved around for the things he needed now. He wasn't scared, just doggoned sore! There must be some way out of this! Sitting up, he reached for a soap box nearby and wrenched off two thin boards from the sides. Then from its hook on the door behind him he ripped down the kitchen towel and tore it in strips and with these rough splints and bandages he bent forward and little by little set his leg as well as he could.

From time to time [illegible] he had to rest with head bowed down and teeth shut hard till he could go on. At last he had the leg bound tight. He lay back and [illegible] for a [illegible] then dragged himself to a corner and reached for a [illegible] standing there. Luckily [illegible] to match his height and, pulling himself [illegible] he tested his weight on it as a crutch.

Yes, with this he'd be able to move about! He brought from the larder cold meat and bread, gave meat to the dog and ate some himself although the fever in his leg was creeping up all through him now. He made coffee and drank two big cups, then sat in a chair with his leg on another, filled and lit his briar pipe and tried to down the throbs of pain.

But with nothing else left that he could do in spite of his efforts to fight it off back came the thought of those kids at school. Sharply into his fevered mind leaped a picture of Lucy and her brother, [illegible] warm [illegible] he had so gayly promised [illegible] take home with them tonight.

"But it will be warm, it's got to be!" desperately he told himself. He remembered the little burst of flame that came when he dropped that acid into the powder and shavings on the iron hearth below. From there it would spread in the shavings he'd laid through the open draft into the stove to the kindling and stout little logs and soon the whole huge stove would roar!

Much Worry Nearly Causes More Grief

Yes, but would it, would it, though? Suppose through the chimney the wind blew down through the stove and the draft below and kept his fire from getting inside? Or suppose the icy puffs of air through the chinks and crannies in the walls scattered his shavings during the night, the shavings and the powder, too, so the acid couldn't do its work?

No magic, no small burst of flame, no chance of a fire, the stove still cold and tomorrow the room an icy tomb. Those desperate little boys and girls, exhausted from long battling hikes, would rush into the schoolhouse and find it like that! The sweat came out on Jimmy's forehead and he gripped the sides of his chair.

"Damn it!" he thought. "Even then they aren't babies! The oldest boy is twelve years old! The fire's all layed! Can't one of them light it? . . . Wait a minute! Wait a minute! Did I leave any matches there?" He felt in his pockets. No, they were here!

And bitterly he told himself: "So those kids will stand waiting, waiting for me, wondering where the hell I can be and what's become of that promise I made?" Then at last nearly dead with cold they'd start back for their distant homes. How many would get home alive?

"All right, what's to be done about this?" angrily he asked himself. "Don't just sit here and think like a fool! The chances are still ten to one that my plan will work O.K.! If it shouldnt, I'd meant to go over myself! How can I get some one to go in my place?"

How could he reach the nearest farmhouse? It was over a mile away. Make that trip with a broken leg? No, it was impossible! Send Dan, with a note tied to his collar? No, the old dog was too stiff with rheumatics and deathly afraid of such arctic nights.

But Jimmy remembered the team in the barn. How about hitching the mare to the bob-sled? Then he might make it! A desperate chance that might cost him his life but what else under Heaven could he do? He racked his brains for other ways of reaching help of any kind. No, there was nothing, nothing but this! And his leg was all on fire now and his mind so hot with fever that his thinking all went wild.

The thought of those kids and the howls of the wind filled him with such blind fury that with teeth set tight on his pain he got up on his crutch and made for the door. He opened it, lowered himself to the steps, slid down, slung his well leg off one side and got his crutch under his arm and slowly started for the barn. Luckily the sky had cleared and stars and planets gave some light.

But Jimmy found the great heavy barn door frozen in so hard and tight that all his efforts to open it failed. In his last attempt to wrench it free his crutch slipped out and he pitched down. Unconscious for a minute or two from the blinding agony of that fall, he came to and felt both arms and legs swiftly growing numb with cold.

"Get up! Get up!" he shouted. "Five minutes of this and you'll be like that door!"

More Worry Makes Jimmy Delirious

Struggling up on hands and knee, on his two hands and that one knee he crawled quickly back to the house, dragged himself panting up the steps and into the kitchen, shoved to the door with his last strength and fell unconscious again on the floor. His fiery leg soon brought him back and he found himself shaking with chills, for already the room was growing cold and from his place near the stove old Dan lay watching with eyes that asked, "Who's to make the fire now?"

Jimmy had left his crutch out by the barn. Slowly, slowly, breathing hard, he dragged himself across to the woodbox, threw more wood into the stove and lay close by till the chills had died down, then worked his way back onto the chair, where he had been sitting before. He'd been safe then, he wasn't now. His fever was raging, his crutch was gone.

But Jimmy didn't think of that, for the kitchen clock began to [illegible] break through the window near his seat he'd be able to see his school and watch for the smoke from that magic he'd planned.

Wait and listen to the clock on the wall and think of that other clock at school, ticking, ticking through the night toward the time of his miracle.

"It will work—its got to! It's a magic that never fails!"

Again he saw the children come but now he fiercely pictured the schoolhouse warm as he had promised them. And soon he could feel it was like that, for in his delirium he imagined he was there. Warm? He was positively hot and so were the children! He laughed at them and they laughed back, as he told of the miracle he had worked.

Twice when a blast of wind outside made him realize he must keep up the fire, he dragged himself to the big school stove and threw in more little logs. Why did he have to drag himself? What was the matter with this damned leg?

But still he fought against that wind to keep his school safe for those small kids! He made a big success of it, too, he got those youngsters all so warm that now he could warm their spirits, too, with pictures of the world outside.

"Life doesn't have to be grim and cold! Life can be wonderful! Look what's there—the chances waiting for the kids who are willing to work to get ready!" he cried.

But back in the farmhouse all this time old Dan lay watching anxiously. He watched the slim young man on those chairs, watched his hot wide open eyes, heard his talking, heard him laughing, saw him, when the room grew cold, drag himself over the floor to the stove and throw in wood, then go back to those chairs.

Why did he always go back to those chairs and how many more trips could he make like that? At last, when the chill again struck in and the young man struggled to move but failed, more and more fearful grew the old dog. For he knew that death by freezing for both of them lay close ahead.

Jim's Own Magic Proves Lifesaver

Meanwhile in the schoolhouse—for he still thought that he was there—once more Jimmy felt the cold come creeping down upon them all. More wood for the fire! But now to his rage he discovered he could not move from his chair! Fiercely he struggled and called to the children to help him, but no answer came. Like phantoms they faded all away.

And gripped by the agony in his leg, he came to his senses with a jerk. For the kitchen clock was striking six and he saw that the hour had come. Too stiff and numb to turn more than his head, he looked out of the window across the fields already gray with the first light of day and focused hard his hot sick eyes on the small school a mile away. No smoke from the chimney! One minute—two—three! Then suddenly his rigid gaze caught a tiny wisp of blue that curled up into the arctic air. Breathless, he waited, his numb stiff lips unconsciously whispering:

"More—more—more!" He waited till it came like that, pouring up into the dull gray dawn! He smiled and whispered: "Magic!" And then he fell from his chair to the floor. Only one tingling stab of pain. Then blessed numbness, blackness, dreams. Up and up and up he soared.

But down from that eternity sharply at last he was brought back by the loud hoarse barking of old Dan and high shrill voices close around him:

"Here he is! Didn't I tell you he must be sick or else he would have come to school? . . . He ain't sick—he's busted his leg . . . It's all swelled up! It looks awful! He's dead! . . . No, he ain't, he's frozen stiff! This room is just as cold as ice! . . . The fire's nearly out in this stove. Heigh! Get more wood and pile it in! And Steve, you run to Bill Belcher's farm! He's got a phone there! Phone for the doctor! Tell him the teacher wasn't at school, so we came right over to see what was wrong—and we've found him here half dead!"

More and more in his right senses now, Jimmy heard the fire roar. They dragged him close. As the warmth stole in, he opened his eyes and saw them watching. Thickly he whispered:

"Hello, kids." They bent quickly closer down and little Lucy Blodgett asked:

"Teacher! How'd you break your leg?"

"Last night."

"Where?"

"Here—outside the house."

A startled hush. The children stared.

"Then if you was here like this, how'd you get that schoolhouse warm?"

His stiffened lips slowly broke into a smile.

"Magic—human magic," he said. He looked at them and his eyes grew bright. "And magic in more ways than one! Here I thought I was saving your lives and now you come over and save mine!"

Yesterday: Duke takes Clem and Jack to the joints around the town, instructing his chauffeur to start looking for them if they are not back by 12.

CHAPTER XIV

PEOPLE will tell you that New York's Chinatown has no color, that it is a weak imitation of San Francisco's Oriental quarter. Clem had heard this remark often. Tonight she resented it. Nothing had prepared her for the picturesque winding backways through which she and Jack were being led by Martin. Modern electric signs lighted mysterious old pagoda-roofed buildings. Silent, shadowy figures leaned against dilapidated frame houses. And over all was the strange hum of another civilization: the click-clack of Oriental tongues, the flip-flap of felt-slippered feet and the flat click of fantan chips mingling with the intermittent roar of the Third Avenue El.

Through the narrow curving streets swarmed an unimaginable lot of people. Tourists, wearing heavy nondescript traveling clothes, clustered round professional guides in gray blue uniforms and visored caps. Chinese men, their parchment-like faces emphasized by [illegible] black [illegible], stood quietly about staring at the visitors with [illegible], but [illegible] eyes. Chinese women, more brilliantly attired in bright silks and bareheaded, waited behind their men, while babies, bright butterflies in native kimonos, played at their feet.

To Clem it was intriguing. She felt reassured at sight of a policeman standing in front of the native grocery at Pell and Doyers streets, but comfort of his presence was lost as she and Jack stepped with Martin into the mysterious darkness of a silent hallway.

"Chin doesn't believe in advertising his place," whispered the Duke. "Follow me and feel your way."

They had turned into one of the rickety old wooden houses which Clem had noted from the street. As the three groped their way to the second floor, a singular, acid odor pricked their nostrils.

"Hopweed," said Martin. "You can't soft-pedal an opium joint. Chin's paid his hush-money or you wouldn't be smelling that."

Down the dark hall came the swift beat of something that sounded like the flapping of bats' wings. "It's o'kay Chin," called Martin. "This is the Duke." He turned to Clem and Jack. "That's Chin's slippers we hear."

"Evidently a familiar sound to you," said Jack.

"I've heard it before," admitted Martin. "Come on, we'll follow the Chinaman. Chin," the Duke apparently was addressing a black vacuum, "these are two good friends of mine who want to meet you."

He pulled a flashlight out of his pocket and focused it down the hall. Twenty feet from them stood a wisp of an Oriental. His tiny body was hardly marked under the flatness of his dark blue robe and you would have thought him dead but for the fact that he stood upright and his small, slanting eyes turned strangely in the shrunken yellow mask.

He gave a crooked grin and bowed at Martin's introduction.

"Please meet you," he said. "I show you customers. Mebbe you like smoke too." His lips parted, revealing yellow fangs.

Up two steps here. Down three steps there. Into this entrance. Out of that.

"We're over on the Mott street side now," the Duke said. "Every good hop joint has two or three getaways."

Suddenly a door opened and a [illegible] filtered out.

"You can talk as much as you want," said Martin. "These dopes won't hear you. They're lost in sweet dreams." He waved a hand toward the rows of bunks which lined the walls.

"My bes' customers," said Chin grinning.

Clem clutched Jack's arm and pointed to a man in a lower bunk, grubby and unshaven.

"This only start," volunteered Chin. "I show you more. Velley meny ladies, too. Want see?"

Clem, rather white, gave in.

"If you want to leave, we can," reminded Jack.

She smiled wanly. "It's funny I don't like this, and yet I'm still curious. I'll always want to return if I don't see everything. I'd better get it over with now. Come on."

Women lay sprawled on rattan mats. Some clutched the small opium pipes which rested on the floor at their sides. Chin kicked a girl with his foot.

"She don' even feel it. Been that way two day. Wan' try it?" He held out a fresh pipe to Clem. "No cost you anything. Fine dreams."

"Once or twice. It's not a bad sensation."

A woman lying near Martin stirred uneasily, moaning as she moved. She was slight and small with a mass of raven black hair, but as she turned her face, Clem saw she was not young. Her features were heavy and her skin yellow. Unlike the other opium smokers Chin had exhibited, her face was pathetically impassive.

"Come, we've seen enough," said Jack.

"The air has never felt so fresh and clean," exclaimed Clem, taking a deep breath as she and Jack and Martin stepped out on Doyers street again.

The Duke pulled out his watch. "We've just about time to make May Day's, if you want to see a ritzier version of this."

But Clem was no longer intrigued. "Another night. I'm sleepy."

Jack yawned. "You've got two tenderfeet on your hands, Martin. We're not broken into this night life yet."

The Duke smiled. "There'll always be another time." He turned toward the Bowery. "I'll have Conden drive you home."

As the light from a shop window struck his face, a girl who'd been standing across the street with a couple of men, waved at him.

"Hello, Duke," she called. "What are you doing down here?"

It was Mary Franklin.

Martin frowned as she joined them. "Showing another girl the sights?" There was an edge in her tone.

"Just walked over with some boys from the paper. This is a hangout of mine." She smiled. "Watch your step, Clem. The Duke's out of your depth." Glancing back at Martin, she flung him a parting shot. "I have a gift for being in the wrong place at the right time, which is another way of saying I'm a good newspaper woman. So long. See you at Janice French's inquest tomorrow."

"I'm not going." The Duke's tone was surly.

Bunk For Bed Pleases Boy Fond of Sea

Boy who is attracted to the sea will be more than pleased with a bedroom that has a nautical touch. The mother who likes to plan an unusual room has full scope to try her talents in this direction.

For instance, a room may be panelled on the sides and beamed on the ceiling to give the nautical touch. Bunks can be built. This will leave the floor space free for the placing of other furniture. Or one wall or two can be panelled and the fourth decorated with geographical-design wallpaper.

Compass designs can be used on floors and the electric light fixtures designed in the shape of a ship's lantern. Maple furniture of the rustic type is a fine addition to rooms of this style.

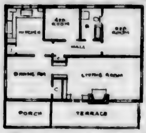
Suggestions for HOME-REMODELING



RANCH HOUSE STYLE

This charming one story house is of painted white brick with red shingled roof. Large windows, from floor to ceiling, lighten the rooms, and simple wood siding used vertically constitutes the interior. There is a fireplace in the living room, and colors, clear and strong are used throughout.

Older Rose Varieties Economical

By DONALD GRAY
Bulletin Langscape Consultant

ROSE growing need not be a luxury. A few plants can be grown successfully with little expenditure of money.

Some gardeners can grow healthy roses in the same beds as other perennial or annual plants, but most roses are grown in separate rose beds.

The first requisite for growing good rose plants and hence beautiful blooms is to find a location that gets the morning sun and is shaded from the hot summer sun from noon on. Many of the problems of mildew and black spot will be eliminated if the morning sun can dry off the night's dew.

The soil should be prepared by digging a ditch two feet deep. Provide some kind of under drainage such as tile or broken stone and bricks. Get the water away from the roots. Clay soil is one of the rose's requirements. If the soil in your garden is sand, then bring in clay for your rose bed.

Mix one-third well rotted manure with one-third sharp sand, and one-third clay loam. Plant the individual plants 15 to 18 inches apart and at a level below the graft.

There are lots of diseases and pests that come along with growing roses, but pick by hand the rose beetles and learn to spray the plants regularly during the season with some nationally known spray material which will take care of all the pests with one operation.

To be economical in rose growing buy the tried and old varieties recommended to you by your own local nursery. Never buy cheap plants, neither buy the latest named varieties because in a year or so, if these new roses are good, they will be available at the regular price.

In cutting blooms, cut back to two leaves as shown, left, to permit new flowers on same stalk as shown, right.

Today's Garden-Graph

By DEAN HALLIDAY

1 FOOT STRIP OF SOD ON BOTTOM
GRASS SEED PLANTED ON SLOPE BETWEEN 54

Giving grass a grip on terraces

In preparing the soil on a slope for grass seed, it should be raked and levelled the same as one would on level ground. For the top and bottom strips of sod use pieces one foot spuare and two inches thick. Place them evenly, then with a sod tamper firm them into place. Fill up all cracks with a mixture of soil and grass seed.

The slope area between the strips of sod should be covered with cheese cloth after the grass seed has been planted. The cheese cloth should be stretched tight over the slope surface and pegged into position. This will prevent rain washing the new seed down the slope.

PREFABRICATED HOUSE LATEST SPEED METHOD

Magic Home Manufacturing Company Can Build Residence In Week

Mr. and Mrs. Citizen can now order a new home built precisely to their own specifications and in the brief space of one week that home will be delivered to the site they have chosen on which to erect it. On delivery it won't be ready to live in. That will take another week because it will be a prefabricated home and the additional week is required to assemble it.

The Magic Home Manufacturing company at 10728 102 avenue has made this seeming impossibility a reality and is now ready to fill country and city orders.

LARGE SAVING

Due to the initiative of the Edmonton company it is now possible to build homes of higher quality at lower cost and in [illegible] the time it would ordinarily require to build the conventional wood frame home. This is made possible by the fact that the volume production of houses in the factory brings an actual saving of 25 per cent in material and 40 per cent in labor costs.

Outside walls and inside partitions are all made up in sections at the factory and are ready to put into the building. Every piece of other material is cut to size, marked and bundled and sent to the site of the home. There is no waste, no skimping and no expensive spoilage.

JOINED AS UNIT

After the excavating and foundation work is completed, floor [illegible] posts and [illegible] are set up in the conventional manner. Then the sections of walls are put into place and the [illegible] partitions placed in position. The [illegible] plate is nailed onto the top of the panels all around the outside walls and partitions. This ties the whole together as a unit.

Next step is to apply the ceiling joists and roof rafters. Other partition units are set in place after the ceilings are installed and nailed down from the top.

Siding and roofing complete the job. And all in a period of about two weeks from the time the house was ordered.

DECORATIVE POSSIBILITIES

Walls and ceilings are finished in three-ply paneling and [illegible] for [illegible] decorative treatment. Paint, stain and varnish or a [illegible] can be applied directly to the plywood.

The empty space between the studding in the outside wall sections and between the double floors are effectively insulated with Mica-Tex against the heat of summer and the cold of winter.

"The Magic Home" bids well to be one of the most popular buildings in the city of Edmonton if the success of prefabricated construction in the United States, Sweden and other overseas countries can be taken as a criterion.

The Magis Home Manufacturing company may well be commended for taking up the challenge hurled at the building trade by F. W. Nicolls, [illegible] of the Dominion Department of Finance, [illegible] Canadian Construction association [illegible] and a great impetus given to building trades if house constructors in [illegible]

FACTORY HERE

A factory in Edmonton for the [illegible] The factory, so the company's officials state, is now [illegible] mand for low-cost homes. A display room has been built at the factory [illegible] and is now open for inspection by the general public.

Tenders for Highway Bituminous Surface Treatment

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the Director of the Surveys and Engineering Branch, Department of Mines and Resources, Ottawa, Ontario, will be received until noon, June 8th, 1939, on the bituminous surface treatment of the following highways:

Project 1—Approximately 8 miles of highway in Banff Park, Alberta, westerly of the town of Banff.

Project 2—From 10 miles to 16 miles of highway in Waterton Lakes Park, Alberta, northerly from the International Boundary.

The bituminous surface treatment of each highway will consist of a bituminous mix to be applied to the prepared base, and as detailed in the specifications.

Contractors may submit tenders on either or both projects. If tendering on both projects contractors must submit a separate tender for each project and must tender in each case on the complete work and submit on the tender form for each project unit prices covering all items. Contractors must forward with their tenders the security deposit specified in each case in the general instructions to bidders.

Specifications, contract forms, general instructions to bidders and general location plan may be obtained from the following offices:

Chief Engineer, Engineering and Construction Service, Ottawa, Ontario.

National Parks Bureau Office, Waterton Park, Alberta.

Dominion Water and Power Bureau Offices, Calgary, Alberta, and Vancouver, British Columbia.

A charge of $5.00 will be made for each set of plans and specifications and contract forms in the case of each project that are taken from any of the said offices.

The lowest or any tender will not necessarily be accepted.

CHARLES CAMSELL,
Deputy Minister.
Department of Mines and Resources,
Surveys and Engineering Branch,
Ottawa, May 18, 1939.

Judicial Sale of Farm Property by Tender

Pursuant to the Order for Sale and directions of the Honourable Mr. Justice Ewing, sealed tenders will be received for the purchase of:

The Southeast Quarter of Section Twelve (12) in Township Forty-six (46) in Range Fifteen (15), West of the Fourth Meridian, containing 160 acres, more or less, and the Northwest quarter of Section Six (6), and the Southwest quarter of Section Seven (7), both in Township Forty-six (46), Range Fourteen (14), West of the Fourth Meridian, containing 318 acres, more or less, reserving out of all of the said lands all mines and minerals.

The property is offered for sale at an upset price of $9,000.00.

Tenders must be enclosed in sealed envelopes marked "Tenders re National Trust Company Limited vs. C. Devey et al, No. 23699 S.C.A." addressed to R. P. Wallace, Clerk of the Supreme Court, Court House, Edmonton, Alberta, and must be in the hands of the said R. P. Wallace not later than 12 o'clock noon on the 3rd day of June, A.D. 1939.

Terms of Sale—Each tender must be accompanied by a marked cheque for 10% of the amount of the tender and the balance of the purchase price shall be paid into Court within 60 days after acceptance of tender without interest, or the deposit of 10% shall be forfeited by the successful tenderer if he refuses to carry out the purchase after acceptance of his tender. Cheques of unsuccessful tenderers shall be returned to them immediately after rejection thereof.

The highest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

In all other respects the terms and conditions of sale will be the standing conditions of sale of the Supreme Court of Alberta so far as the same are applicable hereto.

DATED at Edmonton in the Province of Alberta, this 20th day of May, A.D. 1939.

R. P. WALLACE,
C.S.C.

Approved:
A. F. EWING,
J.S.C.

TENDERS

Sealed tenders will be received on or before noon, Friday, 9th June, 1939, by the undersigned for the General Heating and Plumbing, and Electric Wiring Contracts for the erection and completion of a Separate School situated on 120th Street, Edmonton, for the Edmonton Separate School Board.

A certified cheque or bid bond equal to ten per cent (10%) of the amount of the tender to accompany each tender.

Drawings and specifications may be obtained from the architect, William G. Blakey, 10053 Jasper Avenue, Edmonton, on payment of $25.00 which will be returned on receipt of a bona fide tender together with the drawings and specifications.

The lowest or any tender will not necessarily be accepted.

A. A. O'BRIEN,
Superintendent and Secretary-Treasurer,
Edmonton Separate School Board,
Edmonton, Alberta.

Tenders Called Separate School: To Cost $20,000

Congestion in Separate schools in the city will be relieved by the erection of a four-room frame and stucco school to be built on 120 street between 102 and 103 avenues. The cost of the proposed structure is estimated at $20,000. Tenders have been called for the building and are returnable on June 9 next.

The new school will be utilized to house pupils from Grades one to six now attending the Grandin school. Plans for the school have been drafted by W. G. Blakey, Edmonton architect.

Moral Rearmament Booklet Is Issued

With permission and full co-operation of the provincial department of education, an eight-page booklet dealing with the royal visit to Alberta and the opportunities it brings to put Moral Rearmament before the school children of the province, has been mailed to the [illegible] school teachers in Alberta.

Self to Premier

EDINBURGH, Scotland, May 27—A former serviceman mailed himself by "special delivery" Friday to Neville Chamberlain to draw the Prime Minister's attention to a campaign for bigger war pensions.

But Mr. Chamberlain, on a visit here, was too busy to see the man, whose colleagues paid six-pence a mile to mail him from the post office to nearby Holyroodhouse Palace, where the Prime Minister is staying.

The mailing of individuals is undertaken by British post offices who send an express messenger to "deliver" the human packages to their specified address, although the service rarely is used except for stunts.

Mass Jump

MOSCOW, May 27—A mass parachute jump from a height of 16,401 feet, with oxygen apparatus, by 23 Red Army officers was announced today. The jump, said to have taken place "somewhere in the north Caucasus military district," was claimed to be the first mass jump ever made from such a height anywhere in the world.

Hero Is Remembered

Silver-Haired Woman Recalls Father's V.C. For Bravery In Mutiny

When heroes are presented to Their Majesties in Edmonton on June 2—those soldiers who for deeds of valor won the Victoria Cross—there will be among the throng a citizen who recalls with pride that her father was one of the first to receive this decoration and received it from the hand of the young Queen Victoria.

Charming, silver-haired Mrs. Selena Richardson, of 10030 105A avenue, was a tiny child when her father, Sergt. John Pearson, of the 8th Queen's Royal Irish Hussars, had the bronze medal pinned on his breast by the Queen. The reward was for heroism in the Indian Mutiny at the capture of Gwalior.

"All my family were soldiers," Mrs. Richardson told a Bulletin reporter.

Her boast is amply borne out by the record of some of the achievements of her campaigning father.

REBEL HORDE

He was with the Hussars when, on June 17, 1858, they charged and routed the enemy advance at Gwalior during the Mutiny. With some Bombay Horse Artillery and Her Majesty's 95th Regiment in support, the Hussars slashed their way through the rebel horde.

They surrounded two batteries and returned to their lines with two enemy guns, though they were subjected to heavy and converging fire from both Gwalior fort and Gwalior town.

At that time a private, John Pearson, was one of four men selected to be honored with the highest decoration that is given in the service.

Four years before that, as a mere youngster in his cavalry unit, he was in the famous "Charge of the Light Brigade" at Balaclava. He went through unscratched but was wounded by a Russian swordsman while aiding a fallen comrade in the retreat.

The story is told that he and another private rode "into the valley of death" munching biscuits which they carried in their saddle bags.

Sergt. Pearson was born at Leeds, January 19, 1825 and died April 18, 1892 at Lion's Head, Ontario, where he came to farm after his retirement from the army. His grave, forgotten, was discovered last year and the plain headstone cleaned to show the inscription.

A nephew, who served in the Great War in Col. J. K. Cornwall's Irish Guards, carried his five medals, including the Victoria Cross, in his tunic pocket in France. They are now preserved in Toronto.

VARSITY PLANS FARM WEEK FOR YOUNG PEOPLE

The 21st annual University week for farm young people, will be held at the University of Alberta from June 1 to 8, according to an announcement made Saturday.

It is pointed out by officials that parents or friends who wish to come to the city for the visit of Their Majesties may obtain single rooms and board in the University residences.

The farm week is open to boys and girls between 16 and 25. Accommodation is limited to 200 boys and 150 girls.

There will be demonstrations of weaving, dairying, household economics, animal husbandry, stagecraft and many other features on the program.

Community singing will be led by H. P. Brown, the McDougall United Church Young People's Society will present a play; a service and choral service will be led by Rev. George A. Macdonald of Knox United church, assisted by the Knox choir; an organ recital will be given at Convocation Hall by Vernon Barford; a theatre night will be held, Rev. Ross K. Cameron of First Presbyterian church will give an address, and many other attractive features all promise to make this one of the most outstanding farm weeks ever held at the U. of A.

The 1894 "S" mint dime and the 1913 Liberty Head nickel are two of the modern U.S. coins for which large sums are offered by numismatic companies.

DOGS
by P. Hamilton Goodsell

THE BOXER

A German breed, that recently has made considerable progress in the show ring and in general popularity, is the Boxer, perhaps because it makes such an excellent watchdog for country house or town apartment. While it reached its present state of development in Germany during the last hundred years, it springs from a line of dogs that has been known in Europe from early in the sixteenth century.

Flemish tapestries of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries depict dogs seemingly identical with the Alano found extensively in certain provinces of Spain and also with dogs from the Azores called the Matins de Terceira. Both of these dogs have been held to be the same breed, and they are very likely ancestors of the Boxer or are descended from a common progenitor. The French Dogue de Bordeaux greatly resembles in size and appearance the old Tibetan Mastiff, and from it was developed the Bouldogue du Midi which possesses many of the points of the Boxer.

IMPROVED

While all the breeds above mentioned are undoubtedly closely related to it, the Germans have developed the Boxer along scientific lines retaining all its good qualities, but improving its appearance. In the process terrier blood was introduced and probably that of the Bulldog as well. In English pictures of about 1850 the Bulldog is almost identical with the modern Boxer. Until dog-fighting and bull-baiting were banned by law, the Boxer, like most of its cousins of similar build and strain, was used extensively in such so-called sports. From this usage it retains, like the Bulldog, all its qualities of courage, methods of defense and aggressiveness when such are necessary. The breed was one of the first selected in Germany for training in police work in which field it has given an excellent account of itself.

Mr. Goodsell will be glad to answer letters about dogs, exclusive of those dealing with sicknesses, if you will write him at Tenacre, White Plains, New York. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope.

SMALL LOSSES AT WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG, May 27.—Lack of aggressive interest due to the Whitsuntide holiday which kept Liverpool traders idle, together with a weaker trend at Chicago, brought small losses to Winnipeg wheat futures prices today. Trading was quiet and at the close quotations were ¼-⅛ cent lower, May at 64¾, July 65⅞-66 and October 67⅛.

Re-Views Hitler

Once labeled "pro-German" for his views on giving Germany "elementary justice," Lord Lothian, newly - appointed British Ambassador to the U.S., is pictured reading Hitler's "Mein Kampf." Since the seizure of Czecho-Slovakia, he has been an outstanding proponent of a grand anti-dictator alliance of peace-loving nations.

Visit of King, Queen To Canada Lauded By Sykes

BOURNEMOUTH, England, May 27.— Sir Frederick Sykkes, chairman of the Royal Empire society, Friday lauded the visit of the King and Queen to Canada and the United States as a proof of Great Britain's peaceful aims.

Sir Frederick, speaking be[illegible] branch meeting of the Empire society, paid tribute to the "courage which prompted His Majesty in making a journey at a difficult time like this."

LIVESTOCK REPORT
By Senior Markets Supervisor

Report from the Edmonton stockyards for week ending May 27.

Receipts:	Cattle	Calves	Hogs	Sheep
Week	1210	567	675	5
Saturday	48	93	[illegible]	[illegible]

The market throughout the week displayed improved action instead of a lull as was expected with prices fully 25c to 50c per cwt. higher. Lightweight butcher cattle are finding a ready market, with choice steers at $6¾ and the odd extreme top heifer $6⅞, but heavy export kinds are slow mover. Salesmen state that more good and choice butcher cattle offered this week than for some time. Fed calves were plentiful with the choice kinds selling readily at $7. The top price of the week was paid for a fed calf entered in the boys' and girls' calf feeding competition, selling to Safeway stores at 15c per lb. Cows were strong with good lightweight cows selling up to $5 while good heavies sold from $4 to $4½. The following are the quotations:

Good to choice fed calves $6½ to $7, good to choice butcher steers $6¼ to $6¾, fair to medium $5¼ to $6, common to fair $4 to $5, good to choice heifers $5¾ to $6¼, fair to medium $5¼ to $5¾, common to fair $4 to $5, good heavy cows $4¼ to $4½, good lightweights $4½ to $5, common to medium $3 to $4, canners and cutters $2¾ down, bulls $2¾ to $3.85.

Stockers and feeders in demand at steady prices ranging from $4 to $4¾ for the bulk, better kinds up to $5. Good stockers are scarce. Stocker cows bringing from $3 to $4.

The hog market up 25c per cwt. from last week's close. Off truck bacons $[illegible], selects bringing a premium of 50c per cwt. and butchers discounted $1 per cwt.

Insufficient sheep to establish a market. Salesmen state good feed lambs will bring $8, yearlings $4½ down and ewes $3½ down.

AT ST. PAUL

SOUTH ST. PAUL, May 27—Cattle 200. Medium to good steers and yearlings $8-$9, good heifers mostly $[illegible] down, plain to medium stockcalves and yearlings $9½-$8 mainly. Calves, 100. Choice $9½-$10. Hogs, 400. Good and choice 140-250 lbs. barrows and gilts $[illegible] $5.33-50. Sheep, none. Good and choice fed lambs $8¼-$9, fat ewes up to 150 lbs. $3½ late.

AT CHICAGO

CHICAGO, May 27—Hogs, 200 180-280 lbs. $6⅞-¾. Cattle, 200. Weighty steers $13½, yearlings $10.85. Sheep, 2,000. Old crop wooled lambs beat 90 lb. averages $9½, others $8¾-¼.

Airport Manager Has Headache As Citizens Complain About Noise

By HARPER PROWSE

Practically every time an airplane flies over Edmonton Captain James Bell, manager of the city's airport, Blatchford Field, knows that his telephone is going to ring and he is going to have to listen to a bunch of silly questions and crazy requests. It never fails.

And now, Captain Bell has had just about all of it that a man can stand and when he told his troubles to a Bulletin reporter Friday afternoon he was in the market for a gun. And no wonder!

A plane took off from the airport with the usual amount of noise. It circled as it climbed over the city on its way to Cooking Lake. As a group of three or four spectators stood watching its progress, they were rudely interrupted by the jangling of the telephone on Captain Bell's desk.

"Ooooooh," groaned Captain Jimmy, "here we go again." Picking up the telephone he spoke briskly, politely: "Airport."

RIOT ACT

He didn't get a chance to say any more than that. Even from where he stood the reporter could hear a woman reading the riot act. As Captain Jimmy listened he turned pale, gulped, tried to speak, failed, sat down, and finally pushed the telephone over to the reporter, whispering, "You listen to this."

The reporter put the receiver to his ear and said softly into the mouthpiece, "What seems to be the matter?"

"Is it necessary for these airplanes to make so much noise? I was talking on the phone to a friend when that last one went over, and we had to hang up because it made so much noise we just couldn't hear each other," said an indignant female voice. "It's most inconvenient, you know."

FLY QUIETLY

"I'm sorry," replied the reporter, "but that plane has a specially noisy motor. However, I'll speak to the pilot and ask him to fly more quietly."

"Thank you," said the lady and the phone clicked up.

By this time Captain Jimmy had recovered himself slightly. "That's a fair sample of what I get every time a plane comes in," he said. "People worrying about the noise. I wonder what they'd do if they lived in a seaport town and had to listen to the fog-horns blowing day and night.

"The worst one I ever had was once last winter. A plane from Coppermine was landing. It circled over the city and before it had arrived at the hangar my telephone was ringing. I knew what to expect before I lifted the receiver.

AMBULANCE FLIGHT

"It was a woman. 'I have a headache,' she says, 'and that noisy airplane bothers me, can't you do anything to make them fly more quietly?' As it happened, this plane was carrying an urgent case for a city hospital. The ambulance was waiting for the plane to land. I told that to the silly woman on the phone and she hung up without saying any more.

"The highlight of it all was when we received a phone call from a woman in North Edmonton one day who said an airplane had just crashed in the alley behind her home. We had a club plane out at the time so we figured it must be it. After a lot of worry and excitement we learned it was a model plane. Imagine!"

"You can do me a favor," said Captain Bell, as the reporter turned to go. "Tell the people of Edmonton that there is nothing we can do to stop airplane motors from making a noise. Tell them they'll have to get used to it the same as they do to trains and train whistles and the same as people get used to fog horns and boat whistles at seaport towns."

Well, we've told you.

500 REGISTER FOR MEET OF POSTMASTERS

More than 500 postmasters and postal clerks representing about 250 post offices have already registered for the annual convention of the Alberta Postmasters' Association which will be held in the Macdonald hotel here from May 30 to June 1.

Besides the regular business sessions a full program has been arranged, beginning with the formal opening of the convention by Mayor John W. Fry, and including two banquets, a luncheon, an address by John Blue, and a view of the Royal Party on the day following the conclusion of the convention.

The convention will be guests of the T. Eaton Company Western Limited, the Robert Simpson Company of Toronto, and the Edmonton Journal at luncheons, and a special block of seats have been reserved for them by The Edmonton Bulletin to enable them to view the Royal procession on June 2.

A-R-O-U-N-D . . . THE TOWN

Edmonton Regiment will be among the five militia units to take training at the Sarcee Camp, eight miles southwest of Calgary starting July 1.

Largest turnout of Canadian Corps Association members since formation of the group is expected here on June 2 when Their Majesties are in the city. Special seats have been reserved at the Cenotaph for wives of members and tickets may be had on application to the Corps office. Parade orders will be published Monday.

Imperial Veterans, B.I.C.A., Alberta Branch No. 1, has called a special meeting for Monday, May 29, to be held in the Imperial Hall at 8 p.m., for the purpose of arriving at definite arrangements in regard to the visit of Their Majesties on June 2. All unattached Imperial veterans are earnestly urged to attend when further instructions will be given to those intending to assist in the lining of the route of progress.

A concert and dance is being sponsored by the South Side Associated Study Groups Saturday evening at 8 p.m. in Acacia Hall, 10433 83 avenue. A fine program of musical numbers and an exhibition of dancing by the Cameron School will add to the entertainment. Light refreshments will be served. Arrangements for the evening were made at recent meetings held in the homes of Mr. and Mrs. J. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. B. Scott and Mr. and Mrs. J. Whyte. Mrs. Scott is the social convener.

Funeral services for Mrs. Clara Auclair of North Edmonton, who died at her residence Wednesday, were held from St. Francis church to the Lamoureux cemetery Saturday afternoon. Surviving are her husband, two sisters, Mrs. J. B. Hebert, Normandie, P.Q., and Mrs. J. Gaumont, Montreal, five brothers, J. Villeneuve of Montreal, and Peter Villeneuve, A. F. Villeneuve, Noel Villeneuve and G. Villeneuve, all of Lac St. Jean. Connelly and McKinley were in charge of arrangements.

For the second year in succession D. W. Cobbledick, Edmonton barrister, was successful in winning the annual award of the Edmonton Legal Discussion Club for the best paper on legal questions presented during the year. Mr. Cobbledick submitted a paper on "Contributory Negligence." He was presented with the prize at the club's annual dinner held Friday evening at the Country Club. L. Y. Cairns, K.C., acted as chairman. In accepting the award Mr. Cobbledick thanked the members and said the formula for his success was to "prepare a paper on an abstract subject in obtuse language." More than 30 members and guests attended the dinner.

Beverly Protests On Speed Driving

Chief Constable T. Johnson of Beverly has issued a complaint against city drivers who, he says, have been ignoring the school traffic patrol and thereby endangering the lives of school children. Co-operation of motorists is requested in safeguarding the children but if this is not received the Town of Beverly will prosecute, the chief constable states.

Optimist Carnival

Annual carnival staged by the Edmonton Optimist Club will be held in the Edmonton curling rink May 29 to June 3. Carnival manager will be A. J. Davies, and proceeds will be devoted to maintenance of the club's summer camp for fatherless boys.

Twenty Young Citizens Proud As Punch Today: Caddy For Royal Party

Gets Honor

who has been selected to caddy for His Majesty when the Royal Party plays golf during its stay at Jasper Park. Nineteen other caddies, all Edmontonians, will also be on duty at the Park during the visit.

There are 20 young men in Edmonton who will miss every single minute of the visit of Their Majesties to Edmonton on June 2. And while other Edmontonians are looking forward to the Royal Visit, these young men are not the least disappointed at the thought of missing the round of festivities, for they have been chosen to caddy for the Royal Party during the "day of rest" at Jasper Park on June 1.

The 20 young men, employees of the Mayfair Golf and Country Club, have been picked because of their personalities and well-mannered deportment as well as a "bloodhound" nose for the little white pills.

KING'S CADDY

Heading the list is Kenneth Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil F. Martin of 11011 80 avenue, who has been chosen to caddy for His Majesty should King George desire to play a round of golf at the lovely mountain resort. Kenneth, a graduate of Garneau high school in 1936, was a former caddy at the Mayfair and for the past two years has played there as a member.

The following list of 18 caddies was released by officials at the Mayfair Club this week: Ken Martin, Frank Hazlett, Dave Hazlett, James Isaac, Jack Isaac, Harold Freeman, Stewart Jones, Robert Sherwin, Harry Taylor, Dick Morrow, Douglas Jamieson, Eric McQuaig, Bruce Wilson, U. Freeman, Lorne McDermid, Joe Caswell, Bobby Clarke and J. Diollio. Names of the other two caddies were not released as it was not definitely known if they would be able to make the trip.

LEAVE MAY 31

The caddies will leave Edmonton on May 31 and will not arrive back in Edmonton until the evening of June 2, thus missing the entire stay of the King and Queen in the city. But then who wouldn't for a chance to caddy for the Royal Party and with a trip to Jasper thrown in for good measure? The young Edmonton club-toters are expected to "fill-in" on the Jasper course to help handle the great influx of visitors expected at Jasper on June 1 when not busy chasing balls for the Royal party.

WINGS NORTH

Word has been received from Grande Prairie that work has been started on the enlarging and improvement of the landing field there. As a good field is necessary for the use of the new twin-motored airliners in use by Yukon Southern, the work is being rushed, as the use of the planes on this end of the Yukon run has been suspended until improvements are completed.

Rudy Heuss of Canadian Airways, arrived in from the north with four passengers, including Max Bell and J. S. Wallace of Abasand Oils, Friday.

Archie McMullen was reported at Fort Norman on his way to Aklavik with the "down river" mail Saturday. Mackenzie Air Service officials here expect that he will complete the trip early next week.

Bob Randall, M.A.S., is expected in from Yellowknife Saturday afternoon. Mickey Found was northbound with mail and express.

Sheldon Luck, of Yukon Southern was out of Vancouver for Oliver and Trail, and Charlie Tweed from Fort St. James for Prince George.

• • •

Harry Winny and Dune McLaren are reported at Goldfields with the Hudson's Bay Company's new twin-motored Beechcraft. They will return to the city sometime next week in order to be on hand to convey P. Ashley Cooper, governor of the Hudson's Bay Company, his wife and two daughters, and George W. Allan, K.C., and P. A. Chester, on a tour of the north.

Through The Mill

Warning that severe penalties will be meted out to any persons found guilty before him of conducting or being engaged in the promotion of lotteries was issued by Magistrate Miller in police court Saturday.

The magistrate imposed a fine of $25 and costs on one man who pleaded guilty to having conducted a scheme recently in which a new model sedan was given away to the holder of a lucky ticket.

In passing sentence, Magistrate Miller pointed out that this was the first case to appear before him and would be dealt with merely as a warning to others as he imposed the nominal fine.

"This is the first case of this nature to appear before me in this court. I am treating it more as a warning to the public in general. They should be advised that the criminal code provides severe penalties for the infraction of this section, and in the future any persons appearing in this court for sentence on similar charges will receive much harsher sentences than this," he said.

The maximum provides for two years in jail, $2,000 fine and confiscation of illegal gains. Permits may be given to religious and charitable institutions to permit them to hold draws for distributing property not valued in excess of $50.

The convenient method of giving "floaters" to "vags" was invoked in court Saturday when two hard-looking parties appeared before the court. They were given 12 hours to get out of town. If they don't it will be 60 days in the Fort Saskatchewan jail for them.

C.C.F. Convention

C.C.F. convention will be held in Stettler, June 9, to set up an executive and council for the provincial riding of Stettler. The convention will begin at 2 p.m. and a public meeting at night will be addressed by William Irvine, provincial president. Miss Mary Crawford, provincial treasurer, will speak the same night in Lake Demay community hall.

WARM WEEKEND IS FORECAST: ROADS IMPROVE

Welcome news for those citizens planning week-ends at the lake or other points outside the city came Saturday morning when the local meteorological station issued a forecast for fair and warm weather. This along with reports from the Alberta Motor Association to the effect that all roads are in near-perfect condition promises to send flocks of citizens to the country resorts.

Mercury continued its climb to the higher reaches of the weather glass Friday to reach a new high for the week with a reading of 69 above. Overnight low was 44 above and came during the early hours of Saturday.

Friday passed in a blaze of color as a spectacular double rainbow threw its twin arches across the eastern sky following a brief shower which deposited a total of .01 inches of moisture over the city. The rainbows were followed by a brilliant sunset.

Veteran Visits Here

Col. R. W. Smart, V.D., Riel Rebellion and Great War veteran of Port Hope, Ont., is visiting his son here, Major G. W. Smart, officer commanding the northwest division of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals. The visitor is a brother of the late Sergeant Crawford Smart of the old R.N.W.M.P., who gained fame when with three other men he captured Chief Big Bear on his historic flight to the United States. Col. Smart aided in the chase for the chief.

Successful Sports Meet at Bashaw On Victoria Day

Edmonton Bulletin Staff Correspondent

BASHAW, May 27.—The annual celebration of May 24 held here was very successful, many added attractions made it a better sports day than ever before.

The school children's parade started at 11.00 a.m., led by the Boy Scouts troop. They marched down Main street to the school where a blue spruce tree was planted in honor of the event by school board members, J. R. Hume and J. Sills. Fitting speeches were made by Rev. T. J. Stainton and Dr. J. Roper during the ceremony.

The winners of the men's baseball games were: Donalda defeated New Norway 5-2, Bashaw defeated Ferintosh 5-3 and first money was won by Bashaw when they defeated Donalda in the final game 7-3.

The ladies' softball game was won by Bashaw when they defeated the Matlock team.

O.C. Cricket

WHEN DONA DOLORES WAS SIX, A TALL STRANGER SOUGHT SHELTER FROM HER PARENTS---THAT NIGHT BANDITS CAME TO SACK THE HACIENDA---MANY DIED THAT NIGHT, BUT THE STRANGER SAVED HER PARENTS AND DROVE OFF THE BANDITS---NEXT MORNING HE DEPARTED, NAMELESS, ALONE BUT FOR HIS DONKEY-
HE SAVED YOUR FOLKS FROM BEIN' SHOT AGAINST A WALL, AND HE RAN THOSE BANDITS OUT O' GAS, YET HE WOULDN'T TAKE ANY REWARD OR EVEN TELL HIS NAME?
NO, MY LITTLE ONE- HE SAID HE WISHED BUT ONE THING-
HE SAID A KISS FROM THE LITTLE SIX-YEAR-OLD DONA DOLORES WOULD BE HIS REWARD---AH, WHEREVER HE IS HE HAS FORGOTTEN-
HE SURE MUST HAVE BEEN A REAL GUY-- AND AWFUL BRAVE-
YES, ANNIE- BRAVE- I WAS ONLY SIX THEN- THE YEARS BRING CHANGES---BUT I WOULD KNOW HIM AMONG A MILLION---ALWAYS-HEY- THEY'RE BRINGIN' THAT OLD PROSPECTOR UP FOR AXEL TO LOOK OVER-
SO-THIS IS THE ONE WHO WANDERS NEAR OUR HACIENDA, EH? SPEAK- WHO ARE YOU?
HE ONLY BABBLES- PERHAPS HE IS DAFT-
POSSIBLY THE SO STRONG SUN TOUCHES THE BRAIN-
OH, WELL- WHAT MATTER- HE IS HARMLESS, BUT WE TAKE NO CHANCES- REMOVE HIM TO SOME REMOTE CANYON AND DISPOSE OF HIM-
AS YOU ORDER, MASTER-
COME ALONG, YOU-
WAIT! YOU MUST NOT HAVE HIM SHOT!
EH? HO-O-O? SO DONA DOLORES NOW GIVES THE ORDERS, EH?
OR IS IT THAT IN THIS ONE YOU RECOGNIZE A FRIEND? NO- BUT PERHAPS THE HEART IS SOFT AFTER ALL-- I DO NOT LIKE TO SEE SUCH WEAKNESS-
NO! NO! FRIEND? THAT MANGY ONE? BAH! SOFT HEART? ME? HA! HA!
BUT WHY DO YOU NOT OBSERVE? SEE? IN HIS PALSIED HAND-THE LITTLE SACK WHICH HE CLUTCHES--
EH? HM-M-- YES- YOU INDEED HAVE THE SHARP EYE-- HO! HAND ME THAT SACK-- DRAGONS OF DEATH! CAN IT BE? IT IS! HE HAS DISCOVERED PLATINUM! BUT WHERE?
5-28-39
HO! SINCE HE SEEMS TO HAVE MADE SUCH A CONQUEST OF YOU, YOU NURSE HIM BACK TO SANITY---AND DO NOT FAIL---I MUST LEARN THE SECRET HE HOLDS-- TAKE HIM TO MY QUARTERS AND SEE TO IT WE ARE LEFT IN PEACE-

NIP AND TUCK THERE FOR A MINUTE-- NICE WORK, DONA DOLORES-YOU'VE GROWN UP-I KNEW HIM, DISGUISE AND ALL---BUT OH, THE MIRACLE- HE RECOGNIZES ME!
LEAPIN' LIZARDS! AND I KNOW HIS NAME! "DADDY"!

THEY TELL ME HE'S THINKING OF GOING TO HOLLYWOOD-
GOOD NEWS OF 1939, EH?
BUT TELL ME, MRS. GREEN- HOW DOES HE RANK AS AN ACTOR?

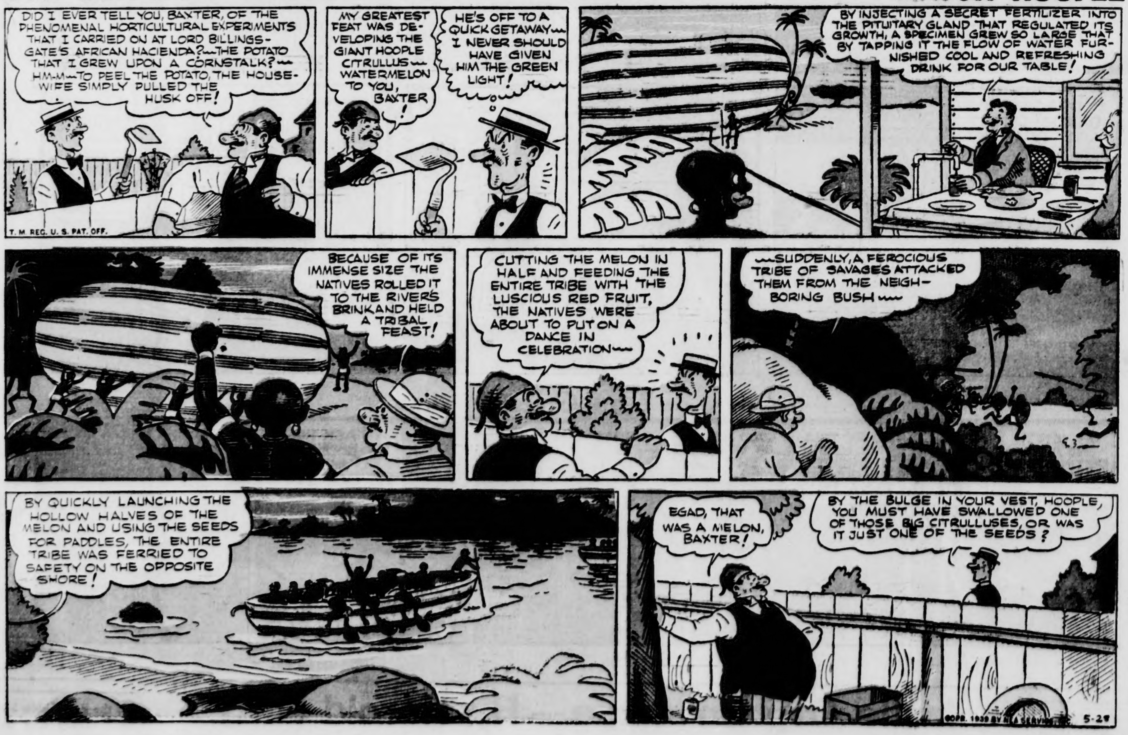
MAJOR HOOPLE



DID I EVER TELL YOU, BAXTER, OF THE PHENOMENAL HORTICULTURAL EXPERIMENTS THAT I CARRIED ON AT LORD BILLINGSGATE'S AFRICAN HACIENDA?—THE POTATO THAT I GREW UPON A CORNSTALK?— HM-M—TO PEEL THE POTATO, THE HOUSEWIFE SIMPLY PULLED THE HUSK OFF!

MY GREATEST FEAT WAS DEVELOPING THE GIANT HOOPLE CITRULLUS— WATERMELON TO YOU, BAXTER!
HE'S OFF TO A QUICK GETAWAY— I NEVER SHOULD HAVE GIVEN HIM THE GREEN LIGHT!
BY INJECTING A SECRET FERTILIZER INTO THE PITUITARY GLAND THAT REGULATED ITS GROWTH, A SPECIMEN GREW SO LARGE THAT BY TAPPING IT THE FLOW OF WATER FURNISHED COOL AND REFRESHING DRINK FOR OUR TABLE!
BECAUSE OF ITS IMMENSE SIZE THE NATIVES ROLLED IT TO THE RIVER'S BRINK AND HELD A TRIBAL FEAST!
CUTTING THE MELON IN HALF AND FEEDING THE ENTIRE TRIBE WITH THE LUSCIOUS RED FRUIT, THE NATIVES WERE ABOUT TO PUT ON A DANCE IN CELEBRATION—
—SUDDENLY, A FEROCIOUS TRIBE OF SAVAGES ATTACKED THEM FROM THE NEIGHBORING BUSH—
BY QUICKLY LAUNCHING THE HOLLOW HALVES OF THE MELON AND USING THE SEEDS FOR PADDLES, THE ENTIRE TRIBE WAS FERRIED TO SAFETY ON THE OPPOSITE SHORE!
EGAD, THAT WAS A MELON, BAXTER!
BY THE BULGE IN YOUR VEST, HOOPLE, YOU MUST HAVE SWALLOWED ONE OF THOSE BIG CITRULLUSES, OR WAS IT JUST ONE OF THE SEEDS?

CORK
THE CORK SUPPLY OF THE WORLD COMES FROM AN AREA OF SOME FOUR MILLION ACRES, ALONG THE NORTHERN COAST OF AFRICA AND THE COASTS OF SPAIN, PORTUGAL, FRANCE AND ITALY.
THE TREE THAT FURNISHES CORK IS KNOWN AS A CORK OAK, AND IS AN EVERGREEN, WITH HOLLY-LIKE LEAVES! IT PRODUCES FIRST AT ABOUT TWENTY YEARS OF AGE.
THE BARK GROWS IN LAYERS... THE OUTER LAYER DYING AS EACH SUCCEEDING NEW INNER LAYER DEVELOPS... AND THE DEAD BARK IS STRIPPED FROM THE TREE IN GREAT SLABS.
5-28
THE TREE IS UNINJURED BY THE STRIPPING, AND IS READY TO BE WORKED AGAIN IN NINE YEARS.
AFTER SEASONING AND BOILING, THE BARK IS BALED AND SHIPPED TO VARIOUS COUNTRIES TO BE MADE UP INTO A WIDESPREAD VARIETY OF PRODUCTS.
THE COMMON CORK STOPPER IS BUT ONE OF THE HUNDREDS OF USES OF THIS INTERESTING PRODUCT OF NATURE. TRULY, IT IS ONE "LIGHTWEIGHT" THAT HAS MADE GOOD!

YES, GENTLEMEN, I'M CONVINCED THE TWO "PRINCES" ARE IMPOSTORS - COMMON HOUSE THIEVES AND SWINDLERS - PASSING THEMSELVES OFF AS THE REAL ROYALTY.
PRINCES
THIS SHIRT THE COAST GUARD PICKED UP PROVES IT! THE MESSAGE, ACCORDING TO THE INTERPRETER, SAYS THE REAL PRINCES ARE BEING HELD ABOARD A BOAT SOMEWHERE OFF SHORE.
THE HOAX MUST NOT BE REVEALED UNTIL THE REAL PRINCES HAVE BEEN RESCUED, OTHERWISE THEY MAY BE KILLED.
YES! EVEN THE BOVANIAN GOVERNMENT MUST NOT KNOW THE REAL FACTS.
COMMANDER, OUR NEXT STEP IS TO COOPERATE WITH YOUR COAST GUARD CREWS TO LOCATE THAT PRISON BOAT.
RIGHT.
MEANWHILE, THE PRISON BOAT HAS ALREADY RUN INTO TROUBLE.
QUICK! LIE DOWN IN THAT TANK AND PUT THESE RUBBER HOSES IN YOUR MOUTHS.
WE'RE COMING ABOARD. WE WANT TO LOOK YOU OVER.
